Debt Parley Saved by New Plan of Gold Purchasing

President Acts to Halt International Fight for Metal.

Shuns Disturbing World Markets

English, French Banks Will Collaborate in Transactions.

By Elliott Thurston.

Prospects of an international monetary war faded rapidly yesterday after President Roosevelt agreed with Sir Frederick Leith-Ross to continue war debt discussions and assigned a trio headed by Gov. George L. Harrison, of the New York Federal Reserve Bank, to collaborate with the Bank of England and Bank of France in such gold purchases as the Reconstruction Finance Corporation may undertake in foreign markets.

The White House early in the day officially indicated that the foreign gold buying for which the R. F. C. is still perfecting details would not result in a battle on the exchanges. It was announced that Mr. Roosevelt had delegated the gold-buying preparations to a committee consisting of Mr. Harrison, Chairman Jesse Jones, of the R. F. C., and Gov. Eugene Black, of the Federal Reserve Board.

Up to last night, Mr. Harrison had not reported back to his associates on the attitude of the Bank of England, with which he was in direct communication, but the indications were that the British central bank would be agreeable to acting as a fiscal agent for gold purchases so long as they were not made in such volume as to require defensive action to protect the pound.

Program Modified.

These developments, coupled with the continued failure of commodity markets to respond as the President's advisers hoped and expected, all spelled a moderation of the gold-buying program to such an extent that various officials and observers are forecasting its gradual abandonment.

Treasury officials announced last night that the R. F. C. had actually consummated its first purchases of newly mined domestic gold, for which the Treasury's posted price was boosted for the seventh consecutive business day, to a new high of $32.26, and 14 cents above the preceding day.

Yet commodity prices continued to slump with what seemed to Prof. George F. Warren to be ironic perversity. The Cornell professor of farm management, who won the

Austrian Nazi Fight Belittled

Paper Forecasts Better Relations Between Two Nations.

Vienna, Nov. 1 (AP).—Statements in the semiofficial Reichspost today that anti-Semitism does not clash with "the warmest Austrian patriotism" and that "strained relations between Austria and Germany soon will make way for a friendlier feeling" were taken as definite straws in the wind.

"The Austrian government is fighting National Socialism (Nazi-ism), because it is imperialistic, not because it is anti-Jewish," said the Reichspost editorially.

The paper displayed an article by Walter Reihl, pioneer Austrian Nazi, who foresaw a change in the relations between the two nations.

"It may be difficult," said the paper, "always to practice proper moderation, but the insistene demand for German Aryan laws would not become so loud if moderation had been practiced on all sides.

"A stubborn and blind insistence on his bond proved a boomerang to Shylock. The Austrian's proverbial humaneness prevents him from yielding to the temptation to imitate the uncivilized methods used abroad."

Edison Temporary Injunction Vacated

Action Taken by Consent in Labor Dispute.

New York, Nov. 1 (AP).—By consent of both parties the temporary injunction restraining the New York Edison Co. from any interference with independent efforts to organize the company's 33,000 workers was dismissed late today.

Application for a permanent injunction is scheduled to be heard Monday morning.

The temporary order, obtained also against the association of employes of the New York Edison Co., alleged company union, by the Brotherhood of Edison Employes, was vacated by Federal Judge Henry C. Goddard largely on technical grounds.

Boy, 17, Wages Battle for Life In Oxygen Tent

A 17-year-old boy of District Heights, Md., was being kept alive by the use of oxygen last night.

Some weeks ago Alvin Fowler contracted pneumonia. His condition grew worse. Yesterday the Bladensburg Rescue Squad was called. An oxygen tent was erected and, working in relays, members of the squad began their battle against death.

Dr. Paul C. Van Netter, of Forestville, Md., attending Alvin, said he had "an even chance." At a late hour last night 16 tanks of oxygen had been used.

The boy's father, Harry Fowler, and his 11-year-old brother, also are ill. Dr. Van Netter said their condition was not serious.

"Tiger" Orders City Employes Back O'Brien

600,000 Potential Ballots for Tammany Ticket Seen in Move.

(By a Staff Correspondent.)

New York, N. Y., Nov. 1.—The closing Tammany drive to reelect Mayor John P. O'Brien, for which supporters of the mayor's principal opponents have been watching—when they could spare time from watching each other—was launched today.

An organization comprising representatives of civil service employes in all city departments, for whose support both McKee and LaGuardia have been competing vigorously, unanimously adopted a resolution indorsing Mayor O'Brien and the rest of the Tammany ticket.

The allied civil service conference estimates that in throwing its support to O'Brien and his associates it is bringing 600,000 votes to the Democratic ticket. The conference represents 178,000 civil service employes.

The importance of this move, which gave impetus to declarations from Tammany and affiliated leaders that O'Brien can win, lies in the fact it serves notice upon the organization rank and file that there no longer is need of going to the LaGuardia standard to beat McKee.

Mayor O'Brien himself started the ball rolling with threats of prosecution against alleged skullduggery on the part of the opposing camps, whom he accused of sending representatives to call on voters in the guise of Tammany captains and lieutenants. In particular, he charged, canvassers were representing themselves as Tiger emissaries, passing along the word that O'Brien couldn't win and that the organization was shifting it McKee. Other canvassers, according to the mayor, were spreading similar stories, with LaGuardia urged as the beneficiary of the organization vote.

O'Brien Voices Threats.

Mayor O'Brien announced he was gathering information to prosecute the canvassers.

The organization drive for O'Brien's reelection came in the face of purportedly accurate statistics showing LaGuardia still well out in front, with McKee gaining. Tammany leaders estimated today, however, that the mayor can lose a quarter of a million votes, compared with the last election, and still squeeze in. A year ago, the vote was more than 900,000 for O'Brien, 450,000 for Lewis H. Pounds, the Republican candidate, and 260,000 for McKee, whose name was written in.

Tammany men pointed out that while LaGuardia and O'Brien have

Quarrel on NRA Leads to Slaying

Bristol, Va., Nov. 1 (Spl.).—Don Cahill, young New Yorker, was dead today and Hugh McMahan, 40, a blacksmith, was in jail charged with murder, following an argument between the two over the National Recovery Act, at Newport, Tenn., near here yesterday.

Officers were told the two argued in McMahan's blacksmith shop, 2 miles west of Newport, with the blacksmith defending the NRA against Cahill's criticism.

Witnesses said the men began hurling blacksmith tools at each other and that McMahan then drew a pistol and shot Cahill.

Haitian Minister Quits in Protest

Bellegarde Assails U. S. Financial Dictatorship.

Dantes Bellegarde, Haitian Minister to the United States since 1931, has resigned in protest against what he described as the "setting up of an American financial dictatorship by executive agreement over Haiti," he announced late yesterday.

Bellegrade's decision followed disagreement with his government over acceptance of the recent executive agreement reached by the United States and the president of Haiti providing for the removal of American Marines from Haiti on October 1, 1934, and new arrangements calling for limited U. S. supervision of the island republic's finances.

Civil Service Head Shies On Age Ban

Hints Shift on 'Over 40' Bar as Protests Increase.

Congressional Inquiry on New Order to Be Sought.

Widespread criticism of the new 40-year age limit employment rule increased yesterday as Harry B. Mitchell, Civil Service Commission president, sought to discredit the importance of the innovation.

At the same time Representative Cochran (Democrat), Missouri, announced he may demand an investigation by the Civil Service Committees of Congress and President Roosevelt revealed he had requested Secretary Perkins to study the situation. The latter has indicated she considers the ban poor economic policy.

Mitchell insisted the commission "has decided on no general policy as to age limits, but merely has decided that in the interest of all concerned it is best that for stenographer-typist examinations 40 years be the maximum and that for certain arduous occupations low age limits should be fixed."

Change of Heart Seen.

Observers believed Mitchell's attitude had changed due to the storm of protest. His denial of a new policy was compared with the original commission statement, issued Tuesday, which began:

"The Civil Service Commission has adopted the policy of substantially reducing the maximum age limits for entrance to competitive examinations for clerical and allied occupations, except in the case of those who are allowed preference because of military service."

In his latest statement, however, Mitchell indicated he believed the debate was much ado about nothing. He argued there was general misunderstanding of the commission action.

He said the reduction was made after consultation with the personnel officers of all the departments, who were practically unanimous that 40 years should be the maximum, and some of them suggested a lower age as a maximum. This does not mean that people are 'through at 40,' as some of the papers have phrased it. It merely means that people are beginning at not over 40."

Cochran Aroused.

Cochran declared he would seek broad inquiries by the House and Senate Civil Service Committees unless the Civil Service Commission should rescind its action.

"The Civil Service Committees," Cochran said, "should sift the situation to find whether the Civil Service Commission and the appointive officers in the department are going beyond their powers to exclude all except the youngest applicants for jobs.

"I won't stand idly by while appointees of the Government sit in their swivel chairs and discriminate against older people, with total disregard for the qualifications of those concerned. The appointive officers seem to be going very far in always picking the youngest people on the list."

The Representative added a study of the law convinced him "the appointive officers have no power to bar anyone simply on account of age. It is unfair to say, 'I don't want that man, regardless of his ability.'"

Miss Perkins' Action Awaited.

Miss Perkins was out of the city yesterday. She probably will study the age limits today or tomorrow. Observers were confident, however, that the Labor Secretary will abide by her previously divulged opinion that the new limits are "short-sighted."

It is believed the President will refer to Miss Perkins a letter from Cochran protesting against the commission action as well as a complaint he received yesterday from J. W. Crabtree, secretary of the National Education Association.

"Permit me to say," Crabtree wrote, "that 1,000,000 teachers in this Nation would regret to see the Government assume the policy of employing only men and women below 40. Government procedure in matters of this kind become the standards for other public agencies and for private concerns."

Another critic, Representative Sirovich, New York, ranking Democrat on the House Civil Service Committee, said he would oppose the rule as "inhumane and un-American."

Davis Returning From Arms Meet

Goes to Paris for Talk With Paul-Boncour.

Geneva, Nov. 1 (U.P.).—Norman H. Davis, chief United States delegate to the disarmament conference, left tonight for Paris. He expects to see the French foreign minister, Joseph Paul-Boncour, tomorrow, prior to sailing for the United States.

Davis expects to return when the arms parley meets again on December 4.

Wiggin Admits Short Selling To Dodge Tax

Former Chase Bank Head Reveals Operations in Stock.

Evidence that Albert H. Wiggin was selling "short" while a Chase National Bank subsidiary was trying to stabilize the market for its stock in 1929 yesterday was laid before the Senate Banking Committee.

Wiggin's privately owned corporation, Shermar, was 42,506 shares short on Chase stock at the time Metpotan, a Chase affiliate, was promoting a trading account for stabilization purposes, the retired Chase board chairman told the committee.

The witness related how his $4,008,538 profit on this transaction was delayed for two years to "postpone" a $440,939 income tax payment. He disclosed at least 5,000 shares were sold short by Shermar to the Metpotan stabilization pool.

Other Deals Disclosed.

Other disclosures yesterday were: A charge by Ferdinand Pecora, committee counsel, that Wiggin "bailed out" of a loan to President Edward W. Decker, of the Northwestern National Bank of Minneapolis, by arranging for Chase to loan Decker the money to pay back Shermar.

Evidence that employes of Chase-Harris, Forbes Corporation, a Chase affiliate, offered clients advice on methods of establishing losses for income tax purposes.

A tax payment summary by Wiggin, showing he paid $1,624,326 on tax levies of all kinds over the last five years. He said his family and personal corporations paid $2,125,793 in income taxes and $2,578,090 in all taxes. The combined total of taxes paid by himself, his family and private companies aggregated $4,624,905 in those five years, he said.

Denies Cross Purposes.

Wiggin denied he was working at cross purposes with the Metpotan stabilization operations when his Shermar Corporation sold Chase stock short just before the market crash. He insisted both Shermar and Metpotan merely were reducing their holdings.

"Although they traded in the market every day, the net result was they did just what we did—sold stock," he said. "The only difference was our sales were short sales."

He said his short position was partly prompted by his belief that "all bank stocks were too high."

Wiggin argued his short sales were beneficial to the bank in providing "potential purchasing power" at a time when "violent fluctuations in bank stock with no purchases might prove injurious to the bank.

He said Chase Securities Corporation handled the short sales for Shermar, so they would not interfere with Chase operations.

Letter Carries Tax Offer.

When Pecora read a letter from a Chase, Harris, Forbes official offering a client assistance in establishing losses for tax purposes, Wiggin testified he had "no idea" this was done. He said he supposed the offer was made for "salesmanship" purposes.

Later Pecora produced an exchange of letters between Wiggin

U. S. Studies Swope Proposal For Self-Rule by All Industries; Roper Tells Why 5 Quit NRA

Advisors to Be Rotated to Give Board Benefit of Experience.

Du Pont, General Wood, Williams, Flanders, Taylor Named.

Resignations of five members of the NRA Industrial Advisory Board, effective yesterday, constituted part of a plan whereby the membership of this board will be rotated among members of the Business Advisory and Planning Council to familiarize all of the latter with the administration of the recovery act and to utilize their varied knowledge and experience, it was announced yesterday by Secretary of Commerce Roper.

Gen. Hugh S. Johnson, recovery administrator, declared he was author of the so-called "rotating plan" which caused five members of the board to resign. He planned to continue the idea by replacement of deputy administrators, he said, contending that to bring big business men to Washington often causes them to develop viewpoints sympathetic to his controlled-economy ideas.

Successors Named.

Secretary Roper at the council meeting appointed Pierre S. du Pont, of the E. I. du Pont de Nemours Co.; Clay Williams, of the Reynolds Tobacco Co.; Myron C. Taylor, of the United States Steel Corporation; Gen. Robert E. Wood, of Sears-Roebuck, and R. E. Flanders, of the Jones & Lamson Machine Co., Springfield, Vt., to succeed the retiring advisory board members. Those leaving are Gerard Swope, James A. Moffett, recently resigned vice president of the Standard Oil Co. of New Jersey; Austin Finch, president of the Thomsville (N. C.) Chair Co.; John B. Elliott, California oil man, and Walter C. Teagle, chairman of the board of Standard Oil of New Jersey.

Under the rotation plan four more will leave the advisory board December 1—David R. Coker, of Hartsville, S. C.; Henry H. Heiman, of Niles, Mich.; Louis Kirstein, vice president of Filene & Sons Department Store, Boston, and W. J. Vereen, of Moultrie, Ga. These will be replaced, according to Roper, by Thomas H. McInnerney, of New York; A. Lincoln Filene, chairman of the board of the Boston department store which bears his name, and William A. Harriman, of New York, chairman of the Union Pacific Railroad.

Others Also to Leave.

The remaining four members of the board—Henry I. Harriman, president of the U. S. Chamber of Commerce; Edward N. Hurley, of Chicago; Robert E. Lund, president of the National Manufacturers Association, and Alfred P. Sloan, jr., of General Motors—will be succeeded by Everett G. Griggs, of Tacoma, Wash.; F. B. Davis, jr., of New York; Henry S. Dennison, president of the Dennison Manufacturing Co., of Framingham, Mass.; H. P. Kendall, of Boston, and Thomas J. Watson, of New York.

Due to the suddenness in announcing resignations of Teagle and his colleagues Tuesday night, there were reports that the retirements resulted from industry's dissatisfaction with the NRA. Yesterday, however, it was explained the announcement was to have been made at the meeting of the Advisory and Planning Council.

Roper at the meeting clarified the atmosphere by stating he was appointing new board members who had been suggested by the retiring

U. S. Sued for $150,000 In Cruiser Collision

San Francisco, Nov. 1 (U.P.).—The Silver Line, Ltd., British firm, filed suit here today for $150,000 damages against the United States Government for collision of the freighter Chicago, October 24, off Point Sur.

Both vessels were damaged. Three men of the Chicago's crew were killed. The suit charged the accident was caused by negligence of the cruiser's officers.

End of Farmer Strike Put Up to Roosevelt

Demands to Be Outlined Here Today Must Be Met, Says Reno.

Des Moines, Nov. 1 (AP).—Continuance of the farm strike will depend upon President Roosevelt's disposition of agricultural demands to be presented at Washington tomorrow, Milo Reno, strike leader, said tonight.

"The strike is not called off in any sense of the word," Reno asserted. "And it never will be until our demands are met. It's up to President Roosevelt now."

Reno called the present status of the 11-day strike that of "inactive suspension," permitting dairy farmers to market their perishables. The order to withhold grains and livestock still is in force, he said.

In Wisconsin the situation was confused. Arnold Gilberts, State holiday leader, sought to stop picketing, while the Wisconsin milk pool pushed plans for a finish fight.

Creameries at Plymouth, Sheboygan and Fond du Lac, Wis., were bombed today.

Several Wisconsin pickets were arrested, milk was dumped and city-bound trucks near Milwaukee halted.

Minneapolis, Nov. 1 (AP).—Renewed impetus was given the national farm strike in this State tonight as Minnesota Farmers Holiday Association voted to "tie everything up tight" by "peaceful picketing" starting immediately.

Every farm product will be withheld from market in an effort to force higher prices, John Bosch, of Atwater, president of the State holiday unit, said. The association also coupled its nonmarketing decision with an expressed determination to pay no taxes, no interest and to countenance "no forcible collection of debts."

"If violence occurs contrary to the wishes of the organization," Bosch said, "we will feel the responsibility will rest largely on the people who refuse to cooperate with us."

9 Wounded As Bomb Rips Havana Jail

Missile Found in Street Blows Up While Being Tested.

Havana, Nov. 1 (AP).—Nine policemen were gravely wounded this evening by the explosion of a bomb in police headquarters.

The neighborhood was thrown into an uproar.

It was reported at headquarters that an unexploded bomb found in a street had been carried to headquarters, where an explosives expert was preparing to open it when it exploded.

Immediately automobiles carrying heavily armed soldiers and policemen dashed up to the building and began scouring adjacent streets.

Police Chief Goes.

Another stir was caused with the announcement from the presidential palace that Police Chief Franco had been granted an indefinite leave of absence because of "ill health."

Meantime, leaders of almost all factions continued to urge Col. Carlos Mendieta to assume the office of president.

Col. Mendieta, leader of the Nationalists, still was undecided whether he should become provisional president and reliable circles said he favored the return of Carlos Manued de Cespedes.

Machadistas On Trial.

A court of five today opened the long-awaited trials against those accused of outrages under the regime of the deposed President Gerardo Machado.

The first defendant, Clemente Carrera, former chief of the palace secret police, was accused of firing on anti-Machado followers. The prosecuting attorney asked the court to sentence him to 12 years at hard labor.

Bonds Redeemed Pass $800,000,000

More than 50 per cent of the Fourth Liberty Loan bonds recently called for redemption have been turned in to be exchanged for the new Treasury bonds, Acting Secretary Acheson announced yesterday. The value of the bonds turned in exceeds $800,000,000. The total called was $1,875,000,000.

Acheson said he was pleased with the response. He said the subscription books will remain open for exchange of Fourth Liberty bonds for Treasury bonds, whether or not called for redemption.

The Libertys bear 4¼ per cent interest. The new bonds will bear interest at the rate of 4¼ per cent for one year and 3¼ per cent thereafter. They are redeemable in 1945.

3 Die, 10 Hurt In $1,000,000 Factory Fire

Explosion of Fuel Tank at Plant Starts Blaze; 4 Cities Send Aid.

Tiverton, R. I., Nov. 1 (AP).—Three men were killed and 10 injured today after an explosion of a fuel tank at the New England Terminal Co. plant.

Damage was estimated at $1,000,000.

Late tonight the fire was raging, but firemen from four cities believed they had it nearly under control.

Huge columns of smoke rolled into the sky while the fire defied the efforts of Tiverton, Fall River (Mass.), Boston and Providence firemen.

Two Oklahomans Killed.

The dead:

"Chief" Gaylor Henshaw, a Cherkee Indian, of Vinita, Okla.

Lester Hornback, of Tulsa, Okla.

Henry St. Piette, 23, of Fall River.

The injured:

Hubert Smith, Oklahoma, shoulder fracture.

Frank Aguiar, 42, North Tiverton, spine injuries.

Christopher Aguiar, 47, North Tiverton, possible internal injuries.

Manuel Luiz, 30, North Tiverton, possible internal injuries.

Manuel Duarte, 21, North Tiverton, head contusions.

Edward Hornback, Tulsa, Okla., leg injury.

Frank Aguiar and Luiz were not expected to live.

Huge Tank Collapses.

The tragedy began with the collapse of a new tank which was filled with 80,000 barrels of water for a test. A leak was discovered and was being welded when with a hiss and roar the structure crumpled.

The tons of water tossed the crew of workers around like sticks of wood and rescuers had to struggle to extricate them from the wreckage. All available ambulances were called from Tiverton and Fall River.

Soon after a fire broke out, believed to have been caused by a short circuit. Flames leaped from one oil-filled tank to another that burst with a roar. For six hours the fire fighters kept the flames confined to the center of the plant.

Industrialist Charged With Gold Hoarding

Milwaukee, Nov. 1 (AP).—A Federal warrant charging George J. Meyer, Cudahy bottling machinery manufacturer, with possessing $100,000 in gold in violation of the anti-hoarding act was issued by United States Commissioner Floyd B. Jenkins today.

United States District Attorney B. J. Husting made the complaint. Meyer is out of the city. Husting said prosecution probably would be halted if Meyer turned in his gold.

Gen. Johnson Supports Plan for Drastic Shift in Set-up.

Officials Are Told Of 'Dissatisfaction'

Resistance to Plan Held Certain, With Labor Out of Picture.

By Franklyn Waltman, jr.

With the spokesman for organized business in the United States reporting "much dissatisfaction" with NRA's activities, a semiofficial committee last night was set up to study a proposal, put forth by Gerard Swope, designed to return to business and commerce the right of self-government, with Federal supervision reduced to a minimum.

Adoption of the Swope proposal—which has not been disclosed fully as to details and was offered to serve as a basis for discussion—would mean a radical revision of the National Recovery Administration as it has functioned since last July. In some quarters, it was regarded as a proposal for the establishment of an industrial fascism under which all business would be controlled by the leaders of industry, with the Government standing by as an umpire.

Mr. Swope projected this plan in his capacity as chairman of the Business Advisory and Planning Council, the agency set up some months ago by Secretary of Commerce Roper. Mr. Swope also is president of the General Electric Corporation. He resigned yesterday as a member of the NRA Industrial Advisory Board, under a plan to rotate the personnel.

Johnson Indorses Plan.

Gen. Hugh S. Johnson, recovery administrator, gave prompt approval to the Swope plan. He said he was in "thorough agreement" with Mr. Swope, but at his press conference the administrator placed a greater stress than Mr. Swope did on the necessity for governmental supervision in such an arrangement.

Henry I. Harriman, president of the United States Chamber of Commerce, approved the Swope plan "in principle" and was enthusiastic in pointing out that such a step had to be taken if the NRA were to become a permanent success. Although reporting "much dissatisfaction" with NRA activities and contending that "many mistakes" have

Sarraut Faces Test in Budget

French President Expects Majority in Chamber Vote Friday.

Paris, Nov. 1 (U.P.).—Premier Albert Sarraut tonight was believed certain of a majority when he faces the Chamber of Deputies with his new ministry.

However, the decisive test of his newly formed cabinet will come when he presents his financial redressment proposals to Parliament next week. The United Press learned his declaration on government policy Friday will discuss:

The delicate 1934 budget situation, on which the Daladier government fell.

His plans for the Nation's economic recovery, including a large public works program.

Foreign policy.

Sarraut intends to follow former Premier Edouard Daladier in presenting an emergency budget balancing bill, comprising economies and new taxation, prior to completing his 1934 budget estimates.

King Offers Medals For English Poetry

London, Nov. 1 (AP).—A statement from Buckingham Palace tonight said the king intends to offer annually medals of gold and silver for English poetry.

The poems must be published within the empire in volume form by British citizens. First awards will be made in December, 1934.

$4,000,000,000 Lost Revenue Cost of Dry Law for 13 Years

(Associated Press.)

The cost of the 13 years of prohibition in lost Federal revenues was estimated unofficially yesterday by Government fiscal experts at upward of $4,000,000,000 on the basis of the average yearly receipts for the five years preceding the eighteenth amendment.

Earnings of Federal prohibition enforcement units were shown by official figures to total approximately 45 per cent of their cost. Expenditures of these units aggregated $141,335,453 while receipts totaled $64,099,209.

None would say how much actually had been lost to the Federal Treasury by the prohibition law, which became effective in 1920, but from the voluminous files of the Bureau of Internal Revenue—grown musty through the years—the following figures were gleaned:

Taxes on distilled spirits and wines ran from $114,119,699 in 1915 to a high of $365,311,252 in 1919—when everybody was stocking a cellar, and a low of $7,935,095 for the fiscal year of 1933. Taxes on beer ranged from $79,328,946 in 1915 to a high of $120,285,857 in 1918.

The yearly average for distilled spirits, wines and beer in the 1915-1919 period totaled $326,550,441—which, multiplied by the 13 years since 1920 aggregated $4,345,155,733.

G. O. P. Maps Drive to Regain Congress Rule

House Seats to Be Main Objective in Launching Comeback Fight.

Becoming active after eight months of silence while the "new deal" was getting under way, the Republican National Committee is preparing an intensive campaign to regain at least a part of its lost power in Congress as a preliminary to an attempted comeback.

The line of attack already has been revealed with issuance of the handbook in which the committee accused President Roosevelt of violating most of the pledges made in the Democratic platform and in his preelection speeches.

The main objective will be the House of Representatives, where there are now 308 Democrats, 115 Republicans, 5 Farmer-Laborites and 7 vacancies. Next year there will be 32 senatorial elections, and the Republicans hope to seize some of these seats, but they have no expectation of gaining control of the Senate.

Hot Battles Forecast.

Politics, which was more or less adjourned during the last session of Congress, is expected to flare hotly when Congress convenes in January. The Republicans have not only the problem of increasing their membership in the House and Senate but also that of regaining some of the State governorships lost in the landslide last year. The floors of Congress will be an important battleground in both campaigns.

Representative Snell, of New York, Republican floor leader, estimates that between 70 and 80 seats now held by Democrats will be returned to Republicans. Some Democratic leaders concede they will lose 50 to 60 seats now held by Democrats representing normally Republican districts.

Of the 32 Senate seats that will be contested in the next election, 17 are held by Republicans and 15 by Democrats.

Nine Contests in House.

Meanwhile, there will be nine contests for House seats when the new session opens. There originally were 14 disputed seats, but five contestants did not press their claims.

In these contests almost every violation of elections laws is charged, from buying votes for as low as 50 cents each to tampering with voting machines and using garbage cans and waste paper baskets for ballot boxes. All the defendants have denied the charges and some of them have made counter-charges.

South Trimble, clerk of the House, is hearing the charges and will turn the testimony over to the elections committee. Next Tuesday Trimble will take testimony in the contest between former Gov. Ralph O. Brewster, of Maine, Republican, and Representative John G. Utterbach, Democrat.

Harry A. Estep, defeated Republican, has protested against the seating of Henry Ellenbogen, Democrat, from the 33d Pennsylvania district.

Other Contests Pressed.

Ellenbogen has not taken his seat in the House because Congress adjourned June 16, a day before he would have been a citizen of the United States for seven years, as required by the Constitution.

Other contests being pressed are: Claude Chandler (Democrat), vs. George Burnham (Republican), 20th California; William C. Fox (Democrat), vs. William L. Higgins (Republican), 2d Connecticut; Martin E. Gormely (Democrat), vs. Edward W. Goss (Republican), fifth Connecticut; John McAndrews (Democrat), vs. Fred A. Britten (Republican), ninth Illinois; Lloyd Ellis (Democrat), vs. Lloyd Thurston (Republican), fifth Iowa; Charles Bowles (Republican), vs. John D. Dingell (Democrat), fifteenth Michigan; Mrs. Anna E. Felix (Republican), vs. Michael Muldowny (Democrat), thirty-second Pennsylvania; Albert C. Tipton (Democrat), and O. B. Lovett (Independent Republican), vs. B. Carroll Reese (Republican), first Tennessee.

Wiggin Explains Tax Manipulation and Decker, of the Minneapolis bank, in which they agreed to a joint account in 100 shares of the membership bank stock.

Wiggin put up the original money for the purchase and later suggested an $18,750 Chase loan to Decker to repay Shermar for advances made the Minneapolis banker, the letters disclosed.

When Pecora suggested Wiggin was "bailing out" through the Chase loan, the witness denied any such intention.

"It was the bank's business to lend money," he said. "That was not the business of Shermar."

Pre-Crash Dealings Told.

Short-selling operations engaged in by Shermar just before the market crash were explained in detail by Wiggin in a prepared statement. He cited legal precedents to prove there was no violation of the income tax law by the Shermar Corporation, which closed out its short account in 1931 through merger with Murlyn, another private Wiggin corporation.

"The Shermar Corporation covered its short position to the extent of 5,000 shares by a purchase in 1930 and closed out its short account in 1931 after merger with the Murlyn Corporation by utilizing the shares of Chase stock then owned by Murlyn," Wiggin explained.

"The result of these transactions was to defer to 1930 and 1931, respectively, the realization of profits which otherwise would have been taxable in 1929 if the Shermar Corporation had covered its short position in that year."

Pecora contended the merger with Murlyn brought about combined losses that offset Shermar's profit from the short sale coverage, rendering income tax payments by the merged companies unnecessary in 1931.

New Members of NRA Advisory Board

Harris & Ewing.

U. S. Studies Swope's Plan for Self-Rule Of Industry With Government as Umpire been made, Mr. Harriman contended the NRA idea was "fundamentally sound."

Despite Gen. Johnson's indorsement of the Swope plan, it appeared certain last night it would meet with resistance. Other Administration leaders kept their tongues in their cheeks and labor leaders remained to be heard from, William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, was reported out of the city.

Neither the Swope plan as formally outlined nor Mr. Harriman's explanation of it contained any provision for retaining either the Labor Advisory or the Consumers Advisory Boards. Under the scheme labor would have no direct representation on any of the trade or control boards and would have to look to representatives named to protect the general public interest to safeguard the gains it has made under NRA.

The Swope plan was regarded in many quarters as a proposal whereby business could continue to enjoy the immunity granted to it from the Federal anti-trust laws and at the same time shake off the irksome restraint of being policed by Government officials. Industrial leaders many years ago proposed similar schemes for freedom from anti-trust legislation, with the Government sitting as an umpire with a veto power on their actions.

Swope Denies Usurpation.

Apparently disturbed by such interpretations of his plan, Mr. Swope late last night issued a statement disclaiming any intention to "supplant the NRA or to set up any industrial self-discipline without Government participation or to omit the organization of labor parallel with the organization of industry.

"What I proposed," he continued, "was my personal idea of a goal for ultimate attainment. It is built on the thought that industrial organization is necessary to industrial self-discipline and that, I take it, is intrinsic in the Industrial Recovery Act.

"There is no difference of opinion between the Recovery Administration and myself and my temporary relief by another industrialist on the Advisory Board does not separate me from the NRA. I am still on the Labor Board of NRA, and my services are at all times available to the administrator."

Scheme May Be Tried.

The day's developments indicated that eventually there will have to be some changes made in the NRA set-up. It is doubtful that the Swope plan as originally outlined will be adopted, but that scheme may be modified to make it acceptable to all groups. This task will be undertaken by a committee of five members from the Business Advisory and Planning Council and a committee to be named by Mr. Harriman.

Coincidentally with the projection of the Swope plan, which has for its object taking the hand of the Government out of business, Charles E. Stuart, well-known engineer and a technical adviser to the Soviet Russian government on occasion, urged the creation of a superplanning board to have jurisdiction over agriculture, finance and transportation as well as industry and business. Such a board, in his opinion, should be armed with sufficient governmental authority to enforce its edicts.

NRA Worries Mount.

In the face of the rising tide of opposition, evidenced again last night when three governors from the Middle West arrived here with demands that further relief be given to agriculture, the Roosevelt Administration undertook to combat criticism with statistics.

This was done through the disclosure that Cabinet members had laid before President Roosevelt reports indicating increased wage rates, shorter working hours and increased prices. The decline in factory output, it was contended, was due to overrapid expansion between March and July in the steel, leather and textile industries. Present factory operations, it was contended, remain well above the highest levels for last year.

Another factor of improvement cited was an increase in export trade from $132,037,000 in August to $160,000,000 in September, or an increase of about 22 per cent, compared with the average monthly increase of 14 per cent. Imports in September totaled $147,000,000, leaving a trade balance of $13,000,000.

Secretary of Labor Perkins reported to the President that the increase in average hourly wage rates and the decrease in average work hours a week in August had continued through September. Combining the two months, hourly wages increased from 42.7 to 51.4 cents, while the average hours of work per week declined concurrently from 42.3 to 38.1, changes attributed to NRA codes.

Fights Farm Criticism.

The Administration undertook to combat the criticism that industrial prices were rising faster than farm prices. It was pointed out to the President by his interpreting economist that whereas between March and the middle of October the index of farm prices had advanced from 40 to 52, the prices of things which the farmer buys had gone up from 68 to 77. In the index 100 equals the 1926 price level. Thus, whereas farm prices went up an average of 12 points, industrial prices advanced only 9 points. It is figured this gave the farmer an increase of about 20 per cent in his purchasing power.

Undoubtedly President Roosevelt will call these figures to the attention of Governors Herring of Iowa, Berry of South Dakota, Langer of North Dakota, Olson of Minnesota and Schmedeman of Wisconsin when they call on him today to demand currency inflation and immediate price-fixing for farm products. The first three governors arrived in the city last night. Governors Olson and Schmedeman are expected by train today in time for the visit to the White House.

This group of Middle Western governors, in whose States complaints against the recovery program appear to be in greater volume than elsewhere, will lay before the President the program they drafted at Des Moines Tuesday. Included in their program is a proposal for payment of the Fourth Liberty Loan bonds, which in part have been called, with "greenback" Treasury notes. They also want the Federal program for refinancing farm mortgages expedited.

Provides for "Rebels."

Swope's plan contemplated trade or code authorities collecting information and reporting it to the NRA or other designated Government agency. If the governing board of the codified association is "unable to exact compliance with the code by any recalcitrant member, the complaint shall be laid before the Federal Trade Commission or the Department of Justice, or both," Mr. Swope proposed.

He would group all other trade or commercial associations into organized units, along with the establishment of a statistical gathering and tabulation bureau and a bureau of standards, all headed up under the "National Chamber of Commerce and Industry," located in Washington. He suggested this organization might "well be an enlargement and development of the present Chamber of Commerce of the United States."

This national organization would be divided into divisions to deal with retail and wholesale trade, industry and manufacturing and associations representing local or geographical divisions. The delegates to the National chamber would elect a board of governors for the organization, which in turn would select officers. The Secretary and Assistant Secretary of Commerce would be members of this board.

Appeals Board Included.

This board would elect a panel of an undetermined number of members "which will sit in Washington and act as a board of appeals on any questions that may arise in the interpretation and enforcement of the National code provisions and will endeavor to see that such interpretations are consistent."

On this panel also would sit a number of representatives named by the President. All these members would hold office only four months, one-fourth of the board rotating each month. All the expenses would be paid by manufacturers and merchants allied with this organization on an assessment basis.

As explained by Mr. Harriman the public interest would be fully protected, because although the Government's representatives would be without votes—a fact Mr. Swope did not bring out—they would have a veto power. He said the interest of labor would be fully protected but he did not specify how this would be done. He said he did not know "how the Wagner National Labor Board fits into this picture."

Mr. Harriman admitted that on adoption of the Swope plan there would be "little of the present NRA remaining." Asked whether it did not mean moving the NRA into the Chamber of Commerce Building, Mr. Harriman replied: "Well, yes, but I hope it will not be the bedlaw here it is down there."

Sees Good in NRA.

The chamber president asserted there was "great permanent value in the NRA which would be enhanced if carried out by a group of business organizations under Government supervision—using existing agencies."

"The NRA will become a failure if it is simply a Government bureaucracy," he asserted. "It can not succeed without the enthusiastic support of industry and labor. This plan is one way to get the cooperation of one of those two groups. You can not go on having the Government trying to police the thing as it tried to police the eighteenth amendment. You won't be able to do it unless you get business to supervise itself."

In discussing the measure of Government control under the scheme, Mr. Harriman appeared to think the NRA, as such, would be abandoned. He said that probably the Secretary of Commerce or the Federal Trade Commission or some new board might be given the final veto power of the Government over what the business organization proposed.

Points to NRA Errors.

Asked the cause of the dissatisfaction with NRA that had developed, Mr. Harriman said that "many mistakes have been made—I won't say unavoidably—probably it was inevitable." He said that costs had been increased too rapidly and out of step with wage increases. Many small merchants had been hurt. He also cited the complaint that industrial prices had advanced faster than farm prices.

"When you consider the whole thing," he continued, "there are not many men who are not broad enough to agree that the NRA is doing much good. In many trade groups not 100 per cent are happy, but I think they are all infinitely better off because of the NRA."

Gen. Johnson, in applauding the scheme, seemed to have a different idea about it than expressed either by Mr. Swope or Mr. Harriman. He said he had talked the proposal over with Mr. Swope and had favored, since the World War, a plan of self-government for business.

He said that was "the whole idea here." But the general contended his local compliance boards would remain, as well as most of his organization, and that the proposed Swope organization would constitute a double check. This was contrary to Mr. Harriman's idea. He emphasized the necessity of getting away from the Government policing industry. Gen. Johnson also pointed out the Government would have to have power to "prevent abuses."

The committee which will examine the Swope plan on behalf of the Business Advisory and Planning Council, consists of George Sloan, president of the Cotton Textile Institute; Gen. R. E. Wood, of Sears, Roebuck & Co.; Henry S. Dennison, president of the Dennison Manufacturing Co.; Everett G. Griggs, lumberman, and Edward N. Hurley, former chairman of the Shipping Board and Chicago industrialist.

Modified Gold Policy Saves Debt Parleys

President Acts to Halt International Fight for Metal.

President to the present experiments, has left for Ithaca and in his absence other counselors are importuning the President to abate the experiments as quickly and quietly as possible.

White House Statement.

After Leith-Ross, special representative of the British Treasury, had called on Mr. Roosevelt in mid-afternoon, the White House said:

"This was a conference on the subject of the debt settlement—a continuation of the discussion. The discussions will be continued. There was nothing at all final. So far as gold purchases in England are concerned, that subject was not brought into the discussions at all."

This bulletin was highly significant, for the seeming threats of currency war had paralyzed the already unproductive debt talks between Leith-Ross and Acting Secretary of the Treasury Dean Acheson. Had the White House meant to go through with any extensive and disruptive gold buying abroad Leith-Ross was prepared to sail for home. The debt talks would have become entirely hopeless. Hence the decision to go on implies moderation, if not abandonment, of the gold program. It also preserves a good face for debt exploration that have encountered nothing but pitfalls to date.

Debt Agreement Remote.

Hopes of a satisfactory permanent readjustment of the entire debt are as remote as ever, so that the question looming is whether the British cabinet is prepared to make a second token payment on December 15, in order to maintain good will and a chance for ultimate reconciliation in the widely differing political and financial viewpoints of the two governments on this aging issue.

Sir Ronald Lindsay, British Ambassador, accompanied Leith-Ross to the White House and Mr. Acheson was called in from the Treasury. Mr. Acheson has been conducting the debt discussions with the British for the past month.

Officials have been careful to avoid saying what was commonly commented upon on the outside—that uncertainity over what the dollar is going to be worth has made it impossible to discuss terms of final settlement, since neither Acheson nor the British could guess at the kind of dollars in which the payments would be made.

Were in Despair.

When this still prevailing uncertainity was added the possibility of a currency war that would leave the pound as imponderable a factor as the dollar, the debt negotiators were ready to throw up their hands in despair. Apparently the President's talk yesterday with Leith-Ross removed apprehension on the score of war on the pound. Acheson is to meet Leith-Ross for resumed debt explorations again today.

Meanwhile, however, Chairman Jones was reporting that the R. F. C. expects to begin gold buying abroad at once on the theory that, despite refusal of the commodity levels to respond so far, actual purchases of gold may send the dollar down and the commodity levels up. The legalities of the procedure are as vague in the minds of various officials concerned as was the case in domestic gold purchases by the R. F. C.

Question Still Academic.

Up to yesterday the question remained academic, since no R. F. C. notes had actually been exchanged for domestic gold, but the Treasury's report of consummated transactions—the amounts to be announced by the R. F. C. later—makes the legal point pertinent. As yet the White House has not consented to reveal the Attorney General's opinion, which is said to cite legal authority for the gold operations at home, if not abroad.

Officials concerned in the gold operations hesitate to relate the dollar's gyrations in exchange to the gold maneuvers, for though the dollar has been driven down on exchange, to a low of $4.79¼ to the pound yesterday, neither Treasury nor R. F. C. authorities are prepared to say that this effect was induced by pending gold operations. Various economists think the effect flows from the general uncertainty, with little demand for dollars for which the Administration decreed progressive depreciation.

Jones Makes Statement.

In a radio speech last night Chairman Jones said the mechanism for foreign gold buying has already been put in operation. He said:

"The R. F. C. intends to fulfill its functions in connection with the President's monetary plans and plans to increase the price of commodities. For instance, the R. F. C., under authority vested in it by the President, has authorized the Federal Reserve Bank of New York to dispose of notes of the corporation and take in payment foreign gold imported after November 1, 1933."

He declined to amplify this save to say actual purchases of foreign gold will begin tomorrow, with the Federal Reserve Bank of New York acting as the sole agent for the R. F. C. What price is to be bid remains, likewise, a mystery. Jones said the price would be announced probably today. Other officials were also unable to shed further light on the subject, though it was indicated that Jones was apparently referring to the fact that the gold-buying procedure has been arranged with Gov. Harrison rather than to the amounts to be bought or the prices offered.

Ford Believed NowComplying With Full Code

Expected to File Data on Wages, as Do Firms that Actually Have Signed.

Detroit, Nov. 1 (AP).—Tacit compliance by the Ford Motor Co. with the provisions of the NRA automotive code was understood in well-informed circles tonight to be an established fact.

Repeated assertions by the Ford company that it was complying with all phases of the code save the actual signing of the trade agreement were backed up again today by information that the reports on wages and hours at the Ford factories, required by the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce from firms under the code, would be placed in the mails this week. The reports are required to be in Washington not later than November 6 or 7.

Claims Fair Treatment.

Although the Ford Motor Co. has not announced its attitude on the matter of collective bargaining, statements issued last week during a controversy with Hugh S. Johnson, NRA administrator, contained an assertion by company officials that the Ford company has dealt fairly with its workers and has had no trouble with its employes for 30 years.

Whether the filing of the wage and hour reports will alter the position of the Government that Federl contracts shall be let only to those concerns displaying the Blue Eagle is not known.

Strikers Get Reply.

Edgewater, N. J., Nov. 1 (AP). Recognizing their right to bargain collectively through representatives of their own choosing, but declining to commit itself definitely to establishment of minimum wage scales, the Ford Motor Co. today replied to the demands of 1,500 strikers at the Edgewater assembly plant.

The company states that it hopes it will be able not only to meet the demand for a $5 minimum daily wage "if conditions permit" but to restore the minimum of $7 which prevailed before 1932.

Postal Company Workers Protest

Discharge of Manager Claimed Unfair.

About 100 employes of the Postal Telegraph & Cable Co. met at the Parkside Hotel last night to protest discharge of L. L. Herndon, night manager of the Dupont Circle office.

Frank B. Powers, international president of the Commercial Telegraphers Union, said Herndon had been discharged three weeks after appointment as union organizer. He said the company claimed discharge was for incompetency.

The employes adopted a resolution asking that union officers press the matter before the National Labor Board.

Thomas P. Dowd, superintendent of the Postal Co., could not be reached for a statement.

Clause in Code Urged to Show Finance Costs

Consumers Board Thinks Buyer Should Know of Credit Charge.

The Consumers Advisory Board has decided that the installment plan buyer should know exactly how much he is paying for the article he buys, and how much he is paying for the privilege of postponing his payment.

To this end the board has requested the insertion in the code for finance companies of a clause providing that the cash and deferred payment price be expressed not only as money but as a percentage computed on the unpaid monthly balance.

Mrs. Constance Kent, of the Pollak Foundation for Economic Research, has represented the consumers board at the code hearings and submitted the board's plea that the purchaser be told the interest rate, or service charge, each month.

The board contends that an installment house performs two different functions—the sale of merchandise and the extension of credit for which a charge is made.

"The only fair and accurate way of expressing this charge is by a given percentage on a given principal for a given period of time," said Mrs. Kent yesterday.

Pointing out that the principal involved decreases every month as an installment is paid, Mrs. Kent advocated a detailed statement given to the purchaser to show him exactly what rate he is paying each month on his unpaid balance.

Mrs. Kent also pointed out that many installment credit houses which advertise a 6 per cent rate, really charge as high as 30 per cent, if their charges were computed on the monthly reduced balance basis.

The Consumers Board does not believe the present charges for deferred payment are necessarily too high.

Sister Plans Visit To Lady Astor

Mrs. Gibson Will Give Her "Political Pointers."

New York, Nov. 1 (AP).—Mrs. Charles Dana Gibson, political campaigner, social welfare worker and the original Gibson girl, will go to London next week to give some "political pointers" to her sister, Lady Astor, a member of Parliament.

"I'm sailing to visit my sister for six weeks, the day after the city election," she said. "I want to give her a few pointers on politics. I taught her all she knows. I knew her when!

"Mr. Gibson and I will celebrate our thirty-eighth anniversary on election day, by the way. I take that as a good McKee omen."

Nash Slaying Suspect Escapes Hail of Shots

Chicago, Nov. 1 (AP).—Two men, one of them believed by Department of Justice agents to have been Verne Miller, notorious Southwestern outlaw, escaped amid a barrage of bullets in an automobile chase on Chicago's North Side tonight.

Miller has been sought in connection with the slaying of Frank Nash, former convict, and four peace officers in an attempt to free Nash from custody at Kansas City on June 17.

Employes Ordered To Back O'Brien

"organized support," outside the Bronx there is no strong political group working for McKee.

It also is claimed the straw votes are not penetrating corners of the metropolis from which O'Brien will draw greatest strength. For one thing, O'Brien has no metropolitan newspaper supporting him. The Times, Tribune, World Telegram and Post continue strongly for La Guardia, the others are for McKee, including the Hearst newspapers.

Mrs. Ruth Baker Pratt, former representative, today came out openly in support of McKee.

In Mrs. Pratt's opinion there was no comparison between McKee and LaGuardia.

McKee lost one of his promised supporters, however, when former Police Commissioner Mulrooney, now head of the State Alcholic Beverage Board, announced he had been misquoted in reported intentions to support the Recovery Party candidate.

McKee's Claim Challenged.

McKee's claim that his votes as a member of the board of alderman would prove him an ardent opponent to Tammany extravagance was challenged by LaGuardia backers. Frequent instances when McKee voted to raise salaries—his own and Jimmy Walkers and the latter's secretary's, among others—were furnished.

Among developments regarded as favorable to McKee today was a statement by James W. Gerard, former Ambassador to Germany, showing LaGuardia, in 1915, had written an article opposing Jewish colonization of Palestine. Mr. Gerard said he felt it only fair to call attention to LaGuardia's article in view of the fact McKee has been bitterly attacked on the ground of race prejudice.

Mrs. Charles Cary Rumsey, chairman of the NRA consumers' board, came out strongly for McKee. Bainbridge Colby, Secretary of State under President Wilson, was another who spoke today for McKee.

Among the most important moves for LaGuardia was a 24-hour radio campaign by Prof. Leo Wolman, of the National Labor Board, who hailed him as the friend of organized labor.

A mass meeting at which 100,000 garment workers were to gather this afternoon at a LaGuardia rally brought out about one-quarter of that number.

Swope Outlines Plan for Industry

Underwood & Underwood.

Gerard Swope, who resigned as a member of the Industrial Advisory Board of the NRA, outlines his plan for a proposed National chamber of commerce and industry, to take over many of the powers and duties of the NRA, to Secretary of Commerce Roper, at the latter's office. Walter C. Teagle, who also resigned as chairman of the Industrial Advisory Board of the NRA, is on the right.

'Rotating Plan' Removed Five NRA Advisors

Roper Says Assistance of Many Big Business Men Is Desired.

appointees, and that he was carrying out their wish to have appointments limited to members of the Advisory and Planning Council, since he had named the original board from that source. In a letter dated October 24, which he read, the resigning members outlined their requests and asked that all future incumbents be denied more than four months' service.

The letter explained the members who had cast aside their personal business when the recovery emergency occurred, now felt it necessary to return to their money-making jobs since "the progressive organization of the NRA has achieved a stage where the emergency character of the board's duties has largely passed, and the time has arrived for reorganization on a more permanent basis."

The rotating plan, they said, would preserve continuity of policy and action, since there would be a two-thirds carryover.

"At the same time," they added, "opportunity will be given the other members of the council not only to familiarize themselves with the administration of the recovery act, but also to bring to it the benefit of their varied knowledge and experience. It is recognized by the incumbents it was not intended that they should continue to act indefinitely for their associates on the council."

E. R. Stettinus, jr., a General Motors official and liaison officer between the board and the NRA, has been granted extended leave by his company to continue in his present capacity, they said.

The Advisory Council comprises 60 outstanding business men, who were appointed by Secretary Roper June 26 for the purpose of creating a permanent body to advise him as to economic conditions and trends and the manner in which the Commerce Department should be conducted.

At the beginning of the advisory council's meeting, a message from President Roosevelt was read, declaring it "is indeed heartening that these actions of prominent business men display the interest and take the time to come from all parts of the country to advise with us in our efforts to build a better business structure."

"Our progress out of this fearful depression," he continued, "will be greatly facilitated through the cooperation of the business leaders of the country. Their constructive criticisms and specific suggestions will be of great value in the accomplishment of our desired objective, the restoration of confidence, business and reemployment."

Roper revealed that a committee of the advisory council, seeking a more definite securities exchange supervision, is continuing a study of the securities act under guidance of Assistant Secretary of Commerce John Dickinson, Henry J. Richardson, of the Washington bar; Undersecretary of the Treasury Dean Acheson and A. A. Berle and Arthur H. Dean, of the New York bar. Commissioner James M. Landis, of the Federal Trade Commission, has been called on for advice. The President suggested the study, Roper said.

U. S. Medical Group Invites German Exiles

Doctors Suffering From Hitler Rule Welcomed to America.

Minneapolis, Nov. 1 (AP).—Opening the medical field in the United States to physicians in Germany suffering under "racial and religious persecution of the Hitler regime" was recommended today by the Association of American Medical Colleges.

The association closed its forty-fourth annual meeting.

This should be done as long as it is "consistent with the maintenance of high educational and professional standards," involving the usual test for foreign physicians, it said.

The report was prepared by the committee on foreign medical students, with Dr. Harold Rystins, of Albany, N. Y., as chairman.

The association elected Dr. Ross V. Patterson, of Philadelphia, president, and decided to meet in Nashville, Tenn., next October. Dr. C. W. M. Poynter, of Omaha, was named vice president, and Dr. C. W. Rappeleye, of New York City, and Dr. W. S. Leathers, of Nashville, were elected to the executive council.

Dr. Fred C. Zappfe, of Chicago, was reelected secretary, and Dr. B. C. H. Harvey, of that city was renamed treasurer.

Dr. Luther Hit By Untermyer

German Envoy Described as "Most Destructive of Propagandists."

Cleveland, Ohio, Nov. 1 (AP).—Samuel Untermyer, prominent New York attorney, in a speech here today charged that Dr. Hans Luther, German Ambassador to the United States, is "masquerading as the German Ambassador" and is "one of the most destructive of propagandists."

Addressing a luncheon meeting of the American League for Defense of Jewish Rights, Mr. Untermyer said "that isn't the first time we have met with that situation."

"It is known," Mr. Untermyer said, "that recently the German government devoted 10,000,000 marks, a little over $3,000,000, to propaganda which it put in the hands of the minister of propaganda; that most of it has come to this country and is being spread here in this Nazi propaganda."

Mayor O'Brien Weds Actress and Musician

New York, Nov. 1 (AP).—Mayor O'Brien took time off from his political and official engagements today long enough to perform a marriage ceremony.

The principals were Greta Granstedt, motion picture actress, and Ramon Ramos, a musician. The ceremony was performed in the mayor's reception room with Nancy Carroll and Xavier Cugat of the motion pictures acting as witnesses.

Pierre du Pont Man of Many Public Offices

Renamed State Tax Chief as NRA Appoints Him to Board.

Dover, Del., Nov. 1 (AP).—Jobs are piling up on Pierre S. du Pont, one of Delaware's most prominent citizens.

Already State liquor control commissioner, Du Pont today was appointed by Gov. Buck to a third four-year term as State tax commissioner.

On top of that came word from Washington that he had been named as one of five leading industrialists to serve on NRA's industrial advisory board.

He is chairman of the board and a member of the finance committee of E. I. du Pont de Nemours & Co. and an officer of General Motors Corporation.

The manner in which Du Pont has revamped the State tax department has excited public attention. The creation of the department in 1924 with the establishment of the State income tax was looked upon as affording desirable berths for political workers.

In 1925 Gov. Robert P. Robinson appointed Du Pont commissioner because of his known executive ability. Immediately Du Pont converted the department into a business institution.

Du Pont was appointed State liquor control commissioner last May by Gov. Buck, with the approval of the legislature. In that capacity he is charged with the duty of enforcing a new liquor control law, passed last April, in anticipation of National prohibition repeal. Incidentally, he is in control of the 3.2 per cent beer business.

Legion Leader Raps Roosevelt

President's View on Care of Disabled Veterans Is Criticized.

Pittsburgh, Nov. 1 (AP).—Edward A. Hayes, national commander of the American Legion, said tonight that legionnaires do not agree with President Roosevelt's views on the care of disabled veterans.

He spoke before a legion meeting after visiting several hospitals where former service men are treated.

"The President came to our national convention in Chicago and gave utterance to a principle which we believe is diametrically opposed to everything that has ever been the attitude of our Government in regard to taking care of our disabled war veterans," he said.

"President Roosevelt said that in his judgment, before a veteran should receive hospitalization at the hands of the Federal Government, he should first go into his community, as a pauper, asking the community * * * to give him hospitalization.

"If he is turned down there, then he should go to the State in which he lives * * * and if he is turned down there he should go to the Government which he served and ask hospitalization.

"Well, your legion doesn't agree with that."

Dinner Aids Fire Funds.

More than 100 persons were served dinner last night by the woman's auxiliary to the Ballston (Va.) Volunteer Fire Department at Firemen's Hall. The proceeds will be used by the department for maintenance.

St. Louis Italians Hail Their Orphan Girl Who Became Star

Elda Vittori Returns to Those Who Heard Her Sing in Moonlight.

St. Louis, Nov. 1 (AP).—A little girl who dreamed of grand opera when she was appearing in a nickelodeon in the Italian colony here, came home to sing tonight for her most enthusiastic admirers.

She is Elda Vettori, the orphan girl who rose from poverty to the Metropolitan Opera stage.

In her first triumph before the Diamond Horseshoe of New York six years ago, there were "bravos" and "vivas" from her wealthy listeners, but tonight at the Odeon Theater she faced the almost reverent adulation of the playmates and friends of her girlhood.

For years the colony has looked forward eagerly to the time when she should give her first concert here as a full fledged opera star.

Money Found for Tickets.

Economic adversity has struck cruel blows at Miss Vettori's music-loving well wishers. Cupboards are none too well-filled with spagetti and minestrone. But somewhere, somehow, the money has been found to buy tickets.

Long before tonight's concert lithographs advertising the recital disappeared from store windows. They were snatched by admirers who pasted the singer's likeness in their albums.

The little girls of the colony have heard the story often—told by mothers who went to school with Miss Vetori.

Dream Came True.

She sang at her work. She sang at home. There was the night her mother took her to hear "Cavaleria Rusticana." On the way home her mother was skeptical of Elda's assertion that "I can sing 'Santuzza' better than it was sung tonight."

So Elda skipped away to a vacant lot, and in the light of a full moon gave an al fresco presentation of the role.

She sang in nickel moving-picture shows, in churches, and finally in the municipal opera here. Going to New York as a first-class milliner, she obtained an audition with the Metropolitan.

A year later she was acclaimed in the role of Santuzza, the same that she sang on that moonlight night in St. Louis.

Crisis Nears In Holy Land

Observance Today May Strain Arab-Jewish Situation.

Jerusalem, Nov. 1 (AP).—Great apprehension was felt throughout the Holy Land tonight as the prolonged agitation of Arabs against an increasing Jewish immigration approached a crisis—the sixtieth anniversary tomorrow of the fateful Balfour declaration.

Even in normal years the Moselems stage a mass protest on that day against the hated, historic document in which Great Britian promised to facilitate the establishment of a national Jewish home in Palestine.

What they can do tomorrow with a rigid military rule in force, because of frequent rioting in which at least 30 have been killed and 200 wounded, remained a matter of conjecture.

A general Arab strike continued today, causing a delay in shipping.

Telephone wires between Jerusalem and Bethlehem were cut tonight.

Three Cairo newspapers were banned in Palestine on the ground they contained exaggerated reports of disturbances.

British Duke, Famous Warrior, Haled to Court in Lottery Case

London, Nov. 1 (AP).—The Duke of Atholl, grizzled 62-year-old Scottish warrior and former lord chamberlain, was summoned today to appear in Bow Street Court November 10 on a charge of violating the lotteries act.

News that the summons had been issued created a national sensation. The peer represents one of the greatest families of the land and has, himself, added to the luster of his name by navy military exploits.

His wife, the duchess, is equally known for her hospital activities during the war and for her literary and political work since.

The charges on which the duke's summons was issued arose from a private "mystery fund" of more than £150,000 (currently $738,000) he raised from voluntary subscriptions.

Of this amount, the duke set aside £60,000 for charities and distributed £36,000 among the subscribers—much in the manner of the Irish Sweepstakes. The prizes awarded went to the holders of 748 tickets, and ranged from £10 ($48), to £2,000 ($9,600).

Immediately after the awards were announced, October 21, Scotland Yard men conferred with the duke at his Great Blair Castle in the Highlands of Scotland, following which the director of public prosecutors applied for the summons at the Bow Street Court.

Farmers Pay U.S. Loans Fast; Borrow Slowly

Government Goes Ahead in Plans to Distribute New Millions.

While Henry Morganthau, jr., governor of the Farm Credit Administration, announced yesterday that farmers are paying back Government loans faster than they are incurring new obligations, the Farm Administration is going ahead with plans for payments to farmers that will total many millions more.

Some of this money will be in the form of loans, but a great deal more will be outright payments, especially to hog and corn farmers, for reductions in production. New loans will include 10 cents a pound on cotton and 50 cents a bushel on corn. Loans to sugar beet and cane producers also are in the making, and loans to wheat farmers are being discussed.

Morganthau said 41 per cent of this year's crop production loans of $53,843,000 were paid in advance of the time due. Farmers paid $22,000,000 up to last Saturday on loans due October 31.

Regional farm credit corporations have made loans since their organization a year ago of $209,000,000, of which repayments to date aggregate $61,000,000.

Corn Price Fixing Urged in Illinois

Conference of Midwest Governors Sought.

Springfield, Ill., Nov. 1 (AP).—Conference of Midwestern governors to establish a basic minimum price for corn was proposed in State Legislature today.

Gov. Horner was asked to call the conference. Minimum price of 60 cents a bushel for corn on the farm was proposed, with the farmers to receive the differential between the present price in cash from the Government, if 1934 corn acreage is reduced 20 per cent.

Hit-Run Killers Worry, Walk 7 Miles to Yield

Scotts Bluff, Nebr., Nov. 1 (AP). Three hours after their automobile killed a pedestrian today, Carl Schmidt, 22, of Lakin, Kans., and Alex Peel, 24, of Scotts Bluff, surrendered to the police.

They drove home and went to bed after the accident, but worry prevented sleep. They then walked 7 miles to the police station.

RETURNS in the poll of Congressmen on immediate repeal of the pay-cut provision of the economy act stood yesterday at 92 pledged definitely for, 20 favorable but unpledged, 11 not definitely decided, and 2 against.

E. Claude Babcock, president of the American Federation of Government Employes, under whose auspices the poll is being conducted, reported eight returns for the day with seven definitely for repeal and one rather indecisive, but not against. The most heartening letter came from Senator Dill, of Washington, who declared in emphatic terms that he could be depended upon in the fight for restoration of pay without delay.

Too Old!

You say you're forty years of age?
Well, Pop, to tell the truth
You're much too old to earn a wage,
The call is now for youth.

I know you're hale and hearty, but
You're on the downward wave,
Past thirty-nine, you're in a rut
And ready for the grave.

You've got a wife and children, too?
And badly need the job?
I'm sorry, but we can't use you
You'll have to beg or rob.

You may be strong and quick and smart,
And able, too, no doubt.
But, though this really hurts my heart,
You're forty—and you're out.

BERTIS B. THOMPSON, chief clerk, Surgeon's Office, War Department, who retired Tuesday after 53 years of Government service.

BERTIS B. THOMPSON, chief clerk and legal counselor in the office of the surgeon general, War Department, has retired from active duty, after more than 53 years of Government service. He is 70 years old.

A native of Indiana, Mr. Thompson received his elementary education in the public schools of that State. He came to Washington at the age of 12, and graduated in 1878 with the pioneer class of boys at the Washington High School. After a course at Emerson Institute, he took up the study of law, receiving his law degree from National University in 1882.

From the time he entered Government service in 1880 until he was made chief clerk in the surgeon general's office, Mr. Thompson had a varied experience in clerical work in the War Department. In 1917 he was promoted to assistant and counselor, a new position established under the war appropriations and in 1920 he became chief clerk.

On his last day at his desk, Mr. Thompson was tendered a farewell reception by his coworkers and friends. Among the latter were former Surg. Gen. Ireland and Brig. Gens. Fisher, Keever and Darnall. Surg. Gen. Robert U. Patterson, in presenting gifts on behalf of the office, paid warm tribute to the exceptional qualities, the energy, sound judgment and loyalty of the retiring chief clerk.

Serving under 13 surgeon generals of the Army, the period of Mr. Thompson's long and varied career is aptly delineated in a book of autographs presented to him by his friends and fellow workers—"From Arthur to Roosevelt; from Victoria to Stalin; from Tom Jones to Philo Vance; from Jenny Lind to Lilly Pons; from Lillian Russell to Mae West; from bicycles to Fords; from horse cars to air transports; from bustles to rolltops; from A. P. A. to NRA."

Federal Bowling League.

The Postoffice five strengthened their hold on first place in the Federal Bowling League by sweeping their set with Commerce. Dwyer and Boston, with sets of 359 and 349, respectively, led their team.

Government Printing Office finally hit their stride, winning three from the Veterans' Administration. Barnard with 377, and Brown's 347 were the high figures of the match.

In the other matches Bureau of Prisons took two from National Capital Parks, Navy Yard took two from Patent Office, and Internal Revenue did the same to Investigation.

Leroy Burdette, of the Navy Yard, with a 154 game and 390 set, established a season record for high set, and Seyforth, of Investigation, scored a record for high game with 158, and prevented his team from being shut out.

The standings:

Postoffice, 14 and 4; Navy Yard, 11 and 7; Commerce, 10 and 8; National Capital Parks, 10 and 8; Patent Office, 9 and 9; Bureau of Prisons, 9 and 9; Government Printing Office, 8 and 10; Veterans' Administration, 8 and 10; Internal Revenue, 6 and 12; Division of Investigtaion, 5 and 13.

Storm Leaves Ten Dead in Jamaica

Kingston, Jamaica, Nov. 1 (AP).—Patched communication lines brought word today that 10 deaths and about $3,000,000 damage had been caused by the hurricane which struck northwestern Jamaica last week-end.

Scores were homeless. It was estimated 90 per cent of the banana crop was lost.

The stricken area was cut off from the rest of the colony after telegraph and telephone lines were broken and roads blocked.

How to Keep Well

By Dr. W. A. Evans.

Fractures.

Several years ago Dr. C. R. Murray went over a large number of records of fracture cases. The record covered the case from the time of fracture to the time when the patient was back at his job, able to do his work efficiently without pain, swelling, or undue fatigue.

The old conception of the undertaking in a fracture case was to see that the bones healed properly and in good position in a reasonable length of time. No particular thought was given to the discomfort of the patient, what happened to the muscles and the nerves, or whether or not the injured member was returned to effective, comfortable use.

It was while repair of the bone was the only objective that the cases referred to were under treatment. Even a partial disability, lasting nine months, is a very great tax on the resources of a man and his family. The newer objective is to get a good union of the fractured bones without great pain and discomfort, without stiffness of nearby joints, with no muscle wasting, no loss of function, and no drug habits.

The time elapsing between the accident and the ability to work efficiently is far less than nine months. Unfortunately it is not always possible to obtain these objectives.

The treatment of a fracture divides itself into four stages. First, getting the bones into good position without much tearing and cutting of the soft parts by the jagged bone ends, and holding them securely enough to prevent slipping. This is the physician's job exclusively. About the only immediate responsibility of lay people to the injury at this stage is to see to it that the injured parts are not moved unless splinted by some emergency method. The jagged bone ends may cut muscles, tendons, ligaments, and nerves, or severe hemorrhage may result from severed blood vessels.

The second step is the stage of swelling which lasts for three days after the fracture. In this stage the doctor, with the help of masseurs and lay helpers, can do much to lessen the after affects of the injury. First, the fracture appliances should be so applied as to permit the application of low heat for long periods and to allow of very gentle massage. The dressings should not splint any more joints than is necessary to keep the fractured bone in position.

The application of very mild heat for long periods and the use of very gentle massage will be found of more service than morphine in relieving discomfort. These physical agents, properly used, will decrease inflammation and swelling, and promote the absorption of blood and serum from the muscles, ligaments, and tendons. The first three days after the fracture is the time in which there is greatest need of this massage and heat. Its use should be continued until the tenth day.

The third stage extends from the tenth day to the period in which the splints are removed. Physical therapy should be given. The principal one of these is daily use of as much electricity to the muscles as can be withstood without cramping and pain. This means stronger muscle contracting currents than are used in the after treatment of poliomyelitis. In addition the physician uses as much bending of nearby joints as is possible without throwing the injured bone out of joint. Mild massage and voluntary muscle contraction helps.

The fourth stage is that which follows removal of the splints. That part of the treatment is almost wholly in the hands of the patient. It consists in daily use of the injured limb. Use is far better than massage, electricity, or heat for the purpose of restoring working capacity.

M. P. C. writes: I have found that a strong solution of bichloride of mercury applied to chigger bites will stop the itching at once and cure promply. I have cured ringworms of the feet with it. It will cure a wart if the growth is pared closely and the solution is applied twice daily thereafter. Nothing is better for a wasp bite.

Reply.

The greatest drawback to the use of a solution of corrosive sublimate is the fact that it is a violent poison. Having bichloride around the house has been responsible for many fatal accidents.

Mine Strikers Carry Dispute To Roosevelt

Soft Coal Men Refuse to Work, Name 8 to See President.

Uniontown, Pa., Nov. 1 (AP).—Fayette County's union miners tonight petitioned President Roosevelt for an audience to tell their side of the fight waged through 14 weeks of turmoil in an effort to get open recognition from steel company-operated soft coal mines.

More than 100 local leaders, who claim to represent 15,000 coal diggers, decided against immediate return to the pits, as had been ordered by high officials of the United Mine Workers, and appointed eight men to see the President.

Their sharp-tongued leader, Martin F. Ryan, was named chairman of the committee. Seeing that he was hopelessly outnumbered, William Hynes, district president, who urged the men to return to work, agreed to ask Mr. Roosevelt for an interview. He was made a member of the committee.

Other members are Patsy Minerd, Howard Hall, Ralph Courley, Andy Richie, Sam Lynch and Dan Sabula.

Ryan has been an implacable foe of the H. C. Frick Coke Co.'s nonrecognition policy.

In his rich brogue he has hammered into the miners that the Frick concern, a United States Steel subsidiary, will "trick" them unless forced to sign a union contract.

Hynes said tonight he believes the men will agree to return to the pits if they hear President Roosevelt request them to do so.

Ryan said the committee will seek amplification of the captive mine agreement and assurance from the President himself that it means union recognition. He added:

"We have 90 per cent of the miners enrolled as United Mine Workers and we want these men recognized before they reenter the pits."

Mine operators indicated they do not plan to attempt to reopen the pits immediately. A spokesman for one of the companies said he expected this move "about Monday."

The message addressed to President Roosevelt follows

"A very dangerous condition exists in Fayette County, Pennsylvania. Open warfare seems certain. Men are very much confused about the settlement. If mines are opened before the men get an understanding, very serious outbreaks may result in loss of life.

"At a meeting of the representatives of the miners this morning, there was selected a committee of eight and said committee begs of you for a conference for a few minutes to get a clear understanding of this vital arrangement. We hope no move will be made to open the captive mines until we can see you.

"And Mr. President this is being done in the hope of avoiding a very serious situation in the lives of our people.

"We do this as good American citizens with faith in our President and our country."

The mesage was telegraphed to the White House tonight.

Kidnap Band Frees Judge After Week

Missing Candidate Tells of His Abduction in Kentucky.

Corbin, Ky., Nov. 1 (AP).—Willis Staton, missing candidate for circuit judge, appeared at a Laurel County farmer's house today and said he had been kidnaped and threatened with death unless he withdrew from the race and ceased to aid in organization of a coal miners' union.

Reports that Staton had been kidnaped last Friday morning near Pikeville had been under investigation by Pike County officers and by a Department of Justice agent following a report by his nephew, Joe Staton, that four masked men had seized him. The candidate said he had been knocked unconscious and chained in a cabin for several days before a woman prevailed upon his captors to release him.

Staton, about 55, was without a hat or tie when he reached here. His clothes were disheveled and his face showed nearly a week's growth of beard. He carried a bush to which he said he had been tied. He caught a bus for Pikeville this afternoon saying he was going to get back into the campaign and took the bush along to show it.

Woman, Man Freed In Attack Killing

Mrs. Nash, of Riverdale, Wins Exoneration.

A Prince Georges County Circuit Court jury yesterday acquitted Mrs. Margaret Nash, 40, Riverdale, Md., and Homer Wellman, 35, Louisa, Ky., of a manslaughter charge in connection with the death of Richard C. Cooley, 65, of Riverdale.

Marvin S. Peach, attorney for the defense, contended that Cooley attacked Mrs. Nash at her Riverdale rooming house June 12, and that Wellman attempted to protect the woman.

County Policemen William Clifton and Claude Reese testified they found the man dead in a second floor bedroom. He had been beaten with a cooking utensil, they said.

Pieces of Eight — Tearful Wedding — By Charles B. Driscoll

Capt. Teach soon gained consent of Mme. Lutrelle to his marriage to her daughter. But Prudence, in face of the wisdom of her elders, was reluctant, afraid. She shrank from advances of the gigantic captain. She remembered tales of his bloody deeds at sea.

Gov. Eden, powerful friend of the pirate, had brought his prayer book along for this very emergency, and insisted upon performing the marriage rite at once. The two pages who held the horses without were called in as witnesses.

As soon as the marriage ceremony was over, Gov. Eden said, "Now, my friend, Capt. Teach, is to sail upon a long voyage with his bride! The ship awaits. Let us hasten to the marriage feast!" The tall bridegroom grinned triumphantly.

Prudence, unwilling bride, was lifted to the saddle horn by her powerful husband. Her mother mounted behind the governor. So the party made its way toward Plum Point. The bride was silent, depressed. Mother Lutrelle was proud. The governor was elated.

Muzzle Urged For Dimitroff In New Tirade

Defendant in Fire Trial Taken From Courtroom for "Insolence."

Berlin, Nov. 1 (AP).—A clamor went up tonight for the "permanent muzzling" of Georgi Dimitroff, whose defense in the Reichstag arson trial is a constant thorn in the Nazi flesh.

The outspoken Dimitroff, one of five defendants in the hearing, was excluded again today from the courtroom for what the court considered an "unspeakably insolent" comment on procedure.

The Boersen Zeitung angrily demanded that the presiding judge, Wilhelm Buenger, deal more sharply with the Bulgarian because "world attention is focussed on him and his Communist agitation."

"How much longer will Dimitroff's insinuations be tolerated?" the newspaper asked.

"The circle of testimony against the Communists defendants," boldly declared Dimitroff in court yesterday, "is now complete. It started with the Nazi Reichstag members, was continued by Nazi journalists, and is now finished by a thief—a common thief!"

Dimitroff, protesting loudly, was led away by police. Similar remarks have caused the Bulgarian to be ejected from the court before.

Woman, 109, Tells How to Develop Happy Husbands

Philadelphia, Nov. 1 (AP).—From experience acquired during three marriages—she says she's 109 years old—Dr. Charlotte Davenport philosophized today on love.

Visiting the Philadelphia Board of Trade, which is commemorating its 100th anniversary, she talked vivaciously and caustically on how happy marriages are made.

"Happy marriages," she said, "aren't the result of accident, but the planning of a woman. Let a woman begin with a man's stomach, tickle his palate and then praise his hair—his greatest vanity.

Drought Ruins Virginia Crops

Weather Bureau Reports North Carolina Also Is Suffering.

Late truck crops in southeastern Virginia have been almost ruined because of lack of rain, the Weather Bureau in its weekly summary of crop conditions reported yesterday. North Carolina crops also are suffering.

While rainfall has been slightly heavier in other sections, it has not been sufficient to produce normal crops of wheat, corn, cotton and tobacco. The best crop conditions were reported in Pennsylvania, New Jersey, Maryland and South Carolina.

The cotton crop has been mostly picked. Live stock is holding up well, although many have been moved from the dry areas, due to lack of food.

Tobacco is ready for stripping in Tennessee, but it is awaiting moist weather, while the late crop is fair to good in Maryland. Fruit picking is practically completed, except for some late apples in the East and the Pacific Northwest.

Liquor Control Plan Delivered

Roosevelt Given Report of Committee Study on Repeal.

The coordinated study of liquor taxation and control problems undertaken by a group of Government departments by order of the White House was delivered to President Roosevelt yesterday.

The document embraced the most comprehensive study of repeal as it will affect Federal and State Governments yet undertaken. On it President Roosevelt is expected to base recommendations to Congress on taxes, revenue and liquor control.

The report was not announced.

It was emphasized at the White House that the ban now in effect on importations of liquor will continue until repeal. It is anticipated that no more foreign medicinal liquor will be needed than is now under bond in this country.

The taxation phase of repeal is under consideration by the House Ways and Means Committee, meeting in executive session. Many authorities are looking for a tax on domestic liquor of around $3 a gallon.

Senator Is Indicted In Ohio Bribe Case

Grand Jury Lobby Probe Brings Charge.

Columbus, Ohio, Nov. 1 (AP)—A grand jury investigation of charges that lobbyists have exercised dominating influences upon the Ohio Legislature brought today the indictment of Senator William H. Herner "poet laureate" of the State Assembly, on a charge of soliciting a $1,500 bribe.

The chairman of the powerful Senate finance committee and member of the State board of control immediately retorted:

"I have never accepted nor solicited a bribe from any one. I am absolutely innocent."

NRA Held Written By "Big Business"

Columbus, Ohio, Nov. 1 (AP).—The Agricultural Adjustment Act and the National Recovery Act were written by "big business," John Simpson, of Oklahoma City, president of the National Farmers Union, contended here today.

Simpson addressed a meeting called by the Farmers-Workers Federation. He added:

"The marketing plan given us provides that the Government regulate the marketing of crops on a basis of fixing a processor's tax at a difference between world price and parity price; then, after paying all expenses of operation out of the processors' tax, sending the farmers a check about Christmas for the balance, signed Santa Claus."

Hitler to Free British News Correspondent

Alleged Attacker of Nazi Will Be Expelled From Germany.

Munich, Germany, Nov. 1 (AP).—Noel Panter, a British newspaper correspondent accused of misrepresenting a recent Nazi gathering at which Chancellor Hitler spoke, will soon be released from the Munich Jail and expelled from the Reich, an official statement said tonight.

The states attorney in Leipzig, the communique related, found after mature consideration that there was no further cause for prosecuting Panter and that "a continuance of his sojourn in Germany is undesirable."

Panter, London Daily Telegraph correspondent, was arrested October 25 and held at police headquarters on an official charge of "suspicion of espionage."

At the time of his arrest, Panter was unofficially told he aroused the anger of Nazi authorities by his article on a speech Hitler delivered before storm troopers near Kelheim, Bavaria.

London, Nov. 1 (AP).—Noel Panter, a British newspaperman who spent a week in Munich Jail as a suspected spy, will be released and expelled from Germany as an undesirable alien, the foreign office was informed today by the British Embassy, in Berlin.

Independent Commissions.

Two members of Federal bipartisan commissions recently have been involuntarily retired from their positions by Presidential action. In one case a legal fight is contemplated. In the other, the commissioner has stepped out at the request of the White House without any attempt to thwart the desire of the President to name a representative of his own choosing to this post.

Only the courts can decide the extent of the President's power to remove members of the independent commissions where no specific charges are made. But the practice of ousting from bipartisan commissions members who represent the opposition party, merely because their views do not run in channels approved by the White House, is a matter of policy that is of vital concern to the public. It involves the very character of these independent, bipartisan bodies set up by Congress to exercise specific functions.

These two dismissals are certain to produce reactions among the members of the independent, bipartisan commissions. Men chosen to these positions are human. Most of them doubtless wish to hold their jobs. Perhaps a majority of them are strong enough to maintain their points of view in spite of constant fear that they may be asked to resign. Nevertheless, the effect of this unexpressed threat, hanging like the sword of Damocles over their heads, is bound to be demoralizing. Can commissioners be expected vigorously to uphold principles which they believe to be right when their fellow members are being ousted from their jobs for similar conduct?

It is obvious that the disruption of these quasi-judicial bodies tends to destroy their usefulness. Congress specifically provided long terms for members of the Federal Trade Commission, the Tariff Commission, the Interstate Commerce Commission, the Power Commission, &c., to avoid a change of personnel with each incoming administration, and thus to strengthen the independence of these bodies. If these terms are to end at the discretion of the President, that purpose will be frustrated and the quasi-judicial bodies will become agencies of whatever administration happens to be in power.

When Congress reassembles a vigorous protest against this handicap which has been placed on the bipartisan and independent commissions may be expected.

Germany's Supplementary Exports.

Germany has developed an elaborate system for utilizing various kinds of "blocked" marks, representing balances due to foreigners which can not now be transferred to creditor countries, in order to expand her export trade. A partial moratorium announced last summer resulted in suspension of 50 per cent of the interest payments due to foreign holders of German bonds, exclusive of the Dawes and Young plan obligations. Arrangements since have been made for mobilizing the scrip given in lieu of withheld interest payments and using it also as a means of facilitating the export of German goods.

Under regulations recently issued, all types of blocked accounts used to finance exports hereafter will be handled through the Gold Discount Bank. That is, the Gold Discount Bank will acquire these blocked marks at a discount and transfer them under certain conditions to exporters. For example, if an exporter can prove to the satisfaction of the authorities that he is unable to sell his goods abroad in countries with depreciated currencies, he may be permitted to quote a price that enables him to sell at a loss and then cover his losses by taking part payment in scrip or blocked currencies surrendered to him at a discount, but subsequently convertible at full value in marks. The system permits a reduction to be made in the export price of goods in terms of gold marks, which in effect gives Germany a means of overcoming some of the competitive handicaps of currency depreciation abroad.

This practice gives rise to criticism abroad, since foreign creditors protest that additional exports forced by utilization of blocked marks, selling at a discount, take place at their expense. In defense of the policy, the Germans point out that they can only pay their debts by selling goods and thus building up foreign credit balances. As the additional or supplementary exports financed by transfers of blocked accounts could not be effected if payment had to be made entirely in foreign currencies, they maintain that such transactions really will help the country in the end to fulfill its obligations to foreign creditors.

Recently, another ground of complaint has arisen, because Germany has made arrangements which enable Swiss and Dutch holders of scrip representing unpaid interest on German bonds to obtain payment in full, whereas the Gold Discount Bank is preparing to pay approximately 50 per cent of the nominal value of the scrip held by other groups of creditors who consent to surrender it. The preferential treatment accorded the Swiss and Dutch creditors is due to the fact that Switzerland and Holland have agreed to increase their purchases of certain German products. Thus, Germany is taking advantage of the existing partial moratorium upon interest payments, not only to force her exports into outside markets but also to bargain for trading concessions by offering especially good terms to certain creditors.

Reproaches coming from the British are loud, alleging unjust discrimination against their country. However, Germany is not the only country that is following similar methods in dealing with creditors. In a world in which the repudiation of obligations, public and private, has become widespread, even in cases where the necessity of such repudiation is open to doubt, Germany apparently feels justified in taking advantage of opportunities to reduce the burden of her indebtedness and extract such advantages as she can from her financial embarrassments.

Reclaiming Land, Destroying Crops.

Some members of Congress from the Western States have taken issue with the policy of the Public Works Administration regarding reclamation projects. Officials of the P. W. A., it is said, are reluctant to authorize the expenditure of vast sums to bring new lands under cultivation while the Agricultural Adjustment Administration is paying other large sums to induce farmers to keep part of their land fallow or to plow under part of their growing crops. To congressmen who are interested in building up the West this is no valid reason why funds should be withheld from irrigation projects in their respective States.

In reply to a complaint by Representative Martin, of Colorado, the Public Works Administration contends that "the record speaks for itself." A total of $145,000,000 has been allocated to irrigation projects and combined power and reclamation projects from the public works fund. This is not enough to satisfy the demands of Western congressmen, but in view of the administration's intensive efforts to curtail agricultural production, it does not appear that the P. W. A. is leaning backward to slight Western farmers.

Two projects for which public works funds have been allotted will bring new land under cultivation. They are the Caspar-Alcova irrigation and power project in Wyoming and the Owyhee project in Oregon. The dam at Owyhee has been under construction for about six years, but the Caspar-Alcova undertaking is entirely new. It will bring under cultivation a large area of semi-arid land especially adapted to sugar beets and alfalfa. Sponsors of the project claim that it will not increase the output of surplus crops, such as corn, wheat and cotton. Nevertheless, it may increase the output of substitutes for those staples, and encourage the planting of more sugar beets at a time when the A. A. A. is trying to negotiate an agreement that would limit the domestic production of sugar to its present volume.

The Grand Coulee Dam on the Columbia River will be used exclusively for the generation of power during the next few years. But the structure is to be erected on a foundation that will permit an addition to the dam for the purpose of irrigating an enormous area of new land. An allotment of $38,000,000 was made to speed the completion of Boulder Dam, which also is designed to irrigate immense stretches of semi-arid land in the Southwest.

Irrigation projects that merely improve the agricultural possibilities of land already in use without opening any new areas to farming appear to have had favorable attention at P. W. A. headquarters. A recent compilation showed that $15,415,000 has been allotted to 14 projects of this type. In some cases farmers living in these areas are able to present cogent arguments in favor of help from Uncle Sam. Yet it is difficult to understand how officials who are trying to plan for agriculture on a national scale can justify the expenditure of Federal money to increase the yield of some lands while it also is paying farmers to take good land out of cultivation.

The Last Rabelaisian.

The death of George Luks recalls not only a lifetime of distinguished production in the arts, but it recalls also an era in American living that seems now to have come to a close—unless repeal should revive it.

George Luks and the group around him flourished in New York in those last golden years before the war, when the metropolis was adapting to itself some of the richness and color of European capitals. It was the era of great gusto; the tables at Mouquin's, Rector's, Delmonico's were crowded with people who had not yet learned dieting and jazz, and who were enjoying life before the night of war and prohibition descended upon them.

Gathered to themselves were groups of artistically-minded men who imported some of the bohemianism of Europe and combined it with the fresh appetite of this continent. Around the carved tables at Luchow's on Fourteenth street sat a disputing, singing and wining crowd presided over by the summus episcopus of conviviality, James Huneker.

Painters later to become famous, like George Bellows and John Sloan, were there; musicians like Walter Damrosch; writers like H. L. Mencken. But the prize features of the cultural exhibit were the artists, Robert W. Chanler and George Luks.

Giants in physique, Carusos in voice-power, and Falstaffs in convivial capacity, they were the deadly foes of all conventions. Their friends, together with statesmen and esthetes, were river-pilots, longshoremen and barkers. They used them all as subjects for their lusty canvasses which portrayed the virile flow of American life. They had them all at their sessions of disputation and merriment.

Both Chanler and Luks were fine artists, independent of all doctrine; and both were grandiose human beings of a type that one rarely finds today.

Graf Zeppelin's Flight.

The safe arrival of the Graf Zeppelin at Seville crowns an achievement which would have been accounted a miracle a few years ago. Today a flight that embraces three continents, at a speed far exceeding that of an express train, and bidding defiance to ordinary ocean storms, is an every-day fact. Is it not an achievement which opens up wonderful future possibilities?

The Graf Zeppelin is sustained by hydrogen gas, and propelled by powerful motors. American airships are provided with helium gas, which is nonexplosive and practically noninflammable. The Zeppelin is beautifully designed, and under the skillful direction of Dr. Hugo Eckener it has proved to be completely manageable in stiff gales.

Dr. Eckener is a cautious navigator who never deliberately courts a battle with the elements, but he has demonstrated that a dirigible capably handled can make headway even in heavy storms. He reached Seville only 10 hours behind schedule in a voyage of more than 3,000 miles.

The practicability of the airship for long-distance flight need be questioned no longer. Apparently the secret of successful operation of these giant ships is found in experienced management. The pilots must be carefully trained for their work. The Graf Zeppelin's record makes it appear that the Navy's plan of constant shifting of airship personnel is a mistake. Air navigation evidently is an art which can be acquired only after long and constant practice.

Female Nimrods.

Connecticut is trying out a new experiment in feminism by setting aside 300 acres in the Farmington Valley for women who wish to hunt game. Last year a woman game warden was appointed and a trout stream was reserved for women anglers. Now they are encouraged to try their hand at such game as Connecticut yields—rabbits, quail, and perhaps a groundhog now and then. Deer may not be killed in Connecticut, and bears seem to have disappeared, although they are to be found in Vermont, New Hampshire and Maine.

One peculiarity of the Connecticut plan is that women are permitted to shoot throughout the 55,000 acres of public shooting grounds, while men are excluded from the feminine preserve. Is this the beginning of a new deal, to culminate in the elimination of man and the development of female Nimrods holding a monopoly of hunting in the Nutmeg State? The authorities say no; they merely suggest that women are backward as hunters, and that the special preserve will encourage them to become good shots. The warden, Miss Edith Stoeher, will be on hand to furnish clay pigeons to amateur gunners, and they will be instructed in the game laws, "so that they will know which kinds of game are protected, and do not blaze away wildly at anything that comes within range."

Naturally, the preserve set aside for women would prove irresistibly tempting to male hunters, but for the danger of being mistaken for wild game. If they are wise they will keep out of this preserve until the women learn how to handle firearms and to withhold their fire until they see their target clearly. A shotgun in the hands of an excited female is notoriously a lethal weapon!

France and Brazil at Outs.

France and Brazil are engaged in an economic war of retaliations which threatens to paralyze commerce between them. The dispute began when France refused to accept the terms offered for the release of French frozen credits in Brazil. These terms were identical with those accepted by British and American exporters. French exporters to Brazil complained that they were compelled to pay cash for the 500,000,000 francs' worth of goods bought from Brazil last year, but were unable to collect any part of the 120,000,000 francs' worth of goods sold to Brazil.

The French government on July 8 applied tariff increases to all Brazilian products. Brazil retaliated by protesting against payment in gold of Brazil's debt to France, amounting to $368,975. Then France imposed an import license system requiring importers to deposit 10 per cent of the value of goods imported from Brazil. President Vargas thereupon doubled the duty on French imports, and withheld payment of the debt, which was due on October 30. The latest action is that taken by France in trebling the duties upon Brazilian products, taking effect October 31.

About 90 per cent of the coffee consumed in France has come from Brazil. The treble duty amounts to about 60 cents per pound, in addition to the 8 per cent ad valorem duty. This impost will act as an effectual bar against the importation of Brazilian coffee. But Brazil is enjoying a greatly increased business in coffee exports, and may be in a position to withstand exclusion from the French market. Coffee exports from Brazil reached 4,200,000 sacks in the third quarter of 1933, the highest for a similar period in 10 years. The milreis is quoted at twelve to the dollar, a decided increase, and unemployment in the country is not a serious problem. In the circumstances France may have great difficulty in collecting the gold due from Brazil.

The far-away look on senatorial faces signifies the incubation of speeches that will solve all these baffling problems early in January.

LITTLE TALKS ON THE DOLLAR
No. 2.

The other day we carried our readers pretty deeply into the question of the managed dollar; in fact, it might be called a new low for the movement. Today we take the subject up where we left off, unless you can prove to the contrary.

* * * *

To understand the daily raise in the price of the gold dollar you must ask yourself, "What have I been getting for gold?" If you haven't sold any lately it may be necessary to phone the man next door and see what he has been getting. He probably will hang up on you. So let us get at it another way.

* * * *

Behind every dollar is so much gold. Not right behind, of course. You can't expect to turn a dollar around and see gold in the immediate background. But far, far back of it, so far back that you would have to go by car to find it, there is gold. How much gold? Well, not enough. Or maybe it's too much. (You can't be sure of anything.)

* * * *

Anyhow, the situation demands a more active dollar. The dollar has been inactive, almost comatose. (Elmer Twitchell had a dollar the other day that he was so sure was dead that he buried it.—Ed.) So Washington decides to make the dollar more vigorous, more virile. It wants a dollar that is full of vim and that will go places and do things. Today when (and if) you have a dollar, what is your impression? It makes you feel like 30 cents, and you're giving the dollar all the best of it.

* * * *

What we want is the 1926 dollar. (The 1929 dollar seemed pretty good to us. It certainly had lots of life and kept us guessing.) Why do we want the 1926 dollar? Well, there are three schools of thought. Prof. Einstein says we want it because we want it. Rear Admiral Byrd says we want it because any dollar that is still around after all that happened since 1929 must be good. Senator Phootle says it is the only way we can avoid war with Japan.

* * * *

But suppose we can not get the 1926 dollar? (As a matter of fact, people who have looked all over the house for a 1926 dollar say they have had no luck at all.—Ed.) Should we take the 1927 dollar? Why not? Should we take the 1929 dollar? (Applause and laughter.) The Court: "Unless the galleries are quiet I shall clear the courtroom." Voice: "How about managed liquor?"

* * * *

All of which brings us to the commodity dollar, the dollar commodity or vice versa and ipso facto. And then what? Well, it all depends on the outcome of the row between Gen. Johnson and Gen. Ford. In either event we shall do well to avoid any entangling alliance with Russia.

(To be resumed despite the protests.)

Some one has checked up on the correspondence schools of this country, according to the Los Angeles Times, to discover that they are serving 200,000 in the United States, 19,000 in India, 46,000 in the Argentine and Chile, 12,000 in Mexico, 17,000 in the Philippines and 7,000 in China with a gross income of $7,000,000 annually.

Daily Talks About Books and Authors

Jean Christophe

At Paris in 1904 appeared the first volume of this novel and in 1912 the last—ten volumes in all. It has been translated from the original French into all the modern languages of Europe. The American edition (not condensed) is in three volumes. It is the story of the career of a German musician; but its greatest value lies in the fact that it gives a remarkably accurate picture of political, social, artistic life and thought on the continent of Europe from 1900 to the beginning of the World War. The author's name is Romain Rolland.

The greatness of this novel was immediately recognized; it was believed that it would become a classic and take its place as a permanent addition to the literature of the world. The years since its publication have strengthened this belief.

Rolland was born in France, January 29, 1866, studied in Paris and at the French School in Rome, and became professor of the history of art, first at the Normal School and later at the Sorbonne, where he introduced into the curriculum as a regular study the history of music. On this subject he is a leading authority. His book on Beethoven has had a wide circulation.

He received the Nobel Prize in literature in 1915. His tastes in literature and drama are rather rigidly classic; he never admired Cyrano de Bergerac or the acting of Sarah Bernhardt.

One winter day in 1903 I bought his book "The People's Theater" at a Paris bookstall, having no idea that in a few years its author would be famous. Although he has been active in many ways, the book by which he will be known in the future is undoubtedly the epic novel Jean Christophe.

Do You Enjoy Watching His Big Car If He Hasn't Paid You for Groceries?

By Robert Quillen.

A certain man borrowed a dollar from one of his acquaintances and three years later offered to return it. "No, keep it," said the acquaintance, "I wouldn't change my opinion of you for a dollar."

America's taxpayers now have opportunity to make a similar decision.

The nations allied against Germany in the great war borrowed billions of dollars from America.

In doing so they chose the less of two evils.

If they borrowed such enormous sums, and in future did their utmost to pay the debt in full, their people would be bankrupt and the burden of taxation would keep them impoverished for many generations.

If they failed to borrow they would lose the war, in which case Germany would compel them to pay as much and also take their colonial possessions and reduce them to the rank of second-class powers.

Being practical as well as desperate, they chose the way that afforded immediate safety and shifted their burden to America.

Now it may be true, as they claim, that payment of the debt would impose unbearable hardship. But it is not true, as they imply, that America is responsible for their present suffering. If you save a man's life by going for a doctor, as he begs you to do, are you responsible for the doctor bill?

The Allies escaped one evil by choosing another, and now they would escape the second one also.

Having avoided paying Germany by promising to pay America, they now wish to avoid paying anybody.

But they are not content to avoid payment. They wish to keep their money and their honor, too.

They offer to pay a fraction of the sum they borrowed, provided they are given a receipt in full.

Here, then, is the question to be answered by the American taxpayer.

Since you will not get your money back in any case, which course will afford you the more satisfaction: Branding your debtors as welchers, or generously permitting them to save their reputations as well as their money?

Having been easy marks, as usual, Americans must pay for Europe's war.

As you hand your earnings to the tax man, year after year, in order to pay your share of the bill, will it make you happier to hear Europeans say: "Yes, we borrowed your money, but we settled the debt. And here's your receipt to prove our honesty."

Changed Wage Rate Deprives Poor of Employment in South—A Case of Chiseling.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: While stopping at a store in the lower part of Hampton County, S. C., I heard three Negroes pleading with the storekeeper to get them work somewhere; that they had nothing to eat at home. They said they did well while they worked 11 hours a day at 60 cents during the winter, but since the rate was changed to 40 cents an hour they were not allowed to work. I talked to the storekeeper and found that since the scale was changed to $2.40 for eight hours the class that needed the work was not getting it. Farmers who drive automobiles and have cotton stored in their barns from last year have taken the place of the poorer classes who worked in cold water digging ditches during the winter months.

At Yemassee, S. C., I made inquiry and was told that the only way you could get work on the relief gang was by doing your trading with a certain merchant. The storekeeper said that he had reported the conditions existing to the chairman of the county relief fund on four different occasions, and immediately the hands were paid off in the woods to prevent the storekeeper from knowing just who worked.

I am sure that such conditions do not exist with the approval of the administration.

Housewives Should Listen In on Increased Cost of Necessities.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: It is to be regretted that the publicity man of the Agricultural Adjustment Administration did not give more publicity to the hearing on the cause and origin of the increased prices for textiles. The public, especially the housewife, should have been requested to attend the hearing to hear the local merchants present their side of the story.

The merchants made it very clear, with the evidence presented, that the increase in textiles originated with the manufacturer—probably 90 per cent of the increase. This increase was from 15 to nearly 80 per cent of the wholesale cost as of June, 1933.

I would suggest that in the future similar hearings should be given more publicity, a larger and more conveniently reached committee room be secured, and the housewife be asked to give evidence from the consumer's standpoint.

The next hearing might well be on household furniture.

BARGERON.

OH, IT'S ALL very well to talk about making the Civil Service Commission rescind its ban against men over 40, but the damage has been done. The commission has told how it felt. Everybody knows now that whether it is made to rescind its order or not, it really doesn't consider a man over 40 any good. Any man benefiting by a rescinsion always will have the hang-dog feeling that he has his job only by sufferance, that he isn't looked upon in high esteem.

There would seem to be really no good purpose served by making the commission change its mind. Even if it should apologize and say that it was only kidding it would be like the fellow who bawls you out when he is drunk and tries to explain it away the next day. One can never escape the suspicion the fellow was giving his real opinion in the first instance.

* * * *

NO, whatever the fixers-up may accomplish now, there never will be quite the same feeling between the Government and men over 40. They may grin and shake hands when they encounter each other and outwardly be of the most friendly spirit, but in the heart of each there will be a feeling of distrust, a bitterness.

Governments can't say those things, you know, and then try to take them back, to say it was all just so much fun. My observation is that as a man approaches 40 and, particularly, just as he reaches the mark, he is a most thin-skinned individual, certainly about that matter of age.

It so happens that he himself about that time is beginning to wonder if he is any more good. Grave doubts have arisen in his mind. By 50 he has developed a new philosophy which carries him on down the decline, but at 40 he is in a most uncertain mood. I suppose it is because 40 is supposed to be the crossroads, the turning point.

* * * *

IT will be just so much waste in this waging controversy, too, for the academic minds to try to reassure the 40-year-old man, to give interviews to the newspapers to the effect that "why, the 40-year-old man is just in his prime; he does his best work from 40 to 50." They won't do any good. The 40-year-old man has had his doubts himself. Now that the Government, and particularly one in which the people have so much confidence as they have in this one, has said that the 40-year-old man is taboo, there will be no reassuring him anywhere.

He will appreciate the efforts, of course, of those who try to reassure him, who denounce the Government and say that of all the silly things a body could say, this was the worst—he will appreciate these efforts, but he will know they are simply trying to cheer him up. He will have an inferiority complex from now on.

* * * *

Of course, the die-hard can get some solace from the fact that the Government is not infallible, not even this one, that it was wrong in turning under the wheat, the cotton and little pigs and as it has admitted itself, that it was wrong in applying the NRA to small towns. If it was wrong in these things it may be wrong about the 40-year-old man. The tests at the Bureau of Standards may have gone wrong in this instance, may have turned out a conclusion full of faults.

I remember once, in fact, when its ballistics expert was utterly wrong in a murder case here, at least so the jury thought.

It may be, too, that this is not a permanent attitude of the Government, that like everything else it is just an experiment, simply another quarter back play in Mr. Roosevelt's football game.

There would be more hope in this contemplation, however, were it not for the fact the women have come to play such a large part in our Government. You reckon they had much to do with the decision? There is no getting away from the fact they consider the 40-year-old man absolutely dead.

Just Folks.

Crime

When I was covering crimes for my paper long ago
I used to see the bad boys stand
all shackled in a row,
And all the time I wondered why such sorrows had to be
And why the mothers had to weep such tears incessantly.
I used to ask the officers to tell me if they could
Why doing wrong appealed to some instead of doing good;
But they were used to criminals and watching mothers cry,
And deeper than the sin itself they'd little time to pry.
All history tells of prison cells and dungeons dark and deep
And men being led away to them
the while the women weep;
Nor all we've learned, nor all we've seen in countless years of time
Has taught us how to cure the cause and stop the source of crime.
'Twas forty years ago or more I saw them gathered in,
Poor foolish victims of a game they had no chance to win,
And still the prison shuts them in from earth and sea and sky,
And still the mothers weep for them, and still I wonder why.

U. S. Officials Plan Welcome For Litvinoff

Hull Will Greet Russian Minister on Arrival at Union Station.

Maxim Maximovitch Litvinoff, Soviet foreign commissar, will be accorded exactly the same reception upon his arrival in the United States as would be extended to any other visiting minister of foreign affairs, the Secretary of State announced yesterday.

Litvinoff is expected to arrive in New York Harbor early next Tuesday morning. He will be welcomed officially while still aboard ship by James Clement Dunn, chief of the State Department's Protocol Division.

The visitor will be taken by tender to the Jersey shore, where a special train will speed him and his entourage of two to Washington.

Hull to Greet Visitor.

Secretary Hull and leading members of the State Department staff will greet the Russian at the Union Station, probably in the afternoon of the same day.

Plans have been made for Litvinoff to stay with Boris Skvirsky, unofficial Soviet representative for the last 12 years, at Skvirsky's residence, 1637 Massachusetts avenue.

Upon his arrival in Washington Litvinoff will call upon the President. But it is not expected that the actual recognition discussions will commence until the next day.

Procedure will be developed as the conversations advance, it was indicated at the State Department. The arrangements are to remain in the hands of the White House, but meetings with State Department officials will take place as well, it was learned yesterday.

No Social Functions.

No official social functions are scheduled in connection with the Litvinoff visit, so far as could be learned. The visitor desires to get to work at once, it was indicated.

Litvinoff's arrival falls on the sixteenth anniversary of the October revolution, the date on which the Bolsheviki overthrew the provisional government of Kerensky.

It was suggested in some quarters yesterday that Litvinoff's announced belief that discussions could be completed in half an hour, so far as he was concerned, might have been prompted by a desire to obtain American recognition for the U. S. S. R. in 16 years flat.

More serious-minded observers, however, expect the discussions will continue about a week. They point out that even if the Soviet Union is highly conciliatory, the list of Aboard Steamship Berengaria, Nov. 1 (U.P.).—Maxim Litvinoff, Soviet foreign commisssar was enroute to Washington tonight, hopeful of negotiating with President Roosevelt next week for prompt recognition of the Soviet Union.

The peoples' commissar was established in the luxurious imperial suite of this British vessel. He refrained from making any statement concerning his mission.

Litvinoff sailed from Cherbourg at 4 p. m. for New York, accompanied only by two aids, Constantine Umansky, chief of the press bureau in the Moscow foreign office, and M. Divilkovsky, his secretary.

Hope to Avoid War.

Peiping, China, Nov. 1 (U.P.).—Soviet authorities in China intimated today that Moscow looks to early recognition by the United States to preserve peace in the Far East and prevent another Russo-Japanese war.

The Soviet ambassador in Peiping, M. Bogomoloff, apparently reflecting the views of Moscow, made it clear that no matter what the provocation, Russia can not fight Japan until Russia has won diplomatic recognition from Washington.

It is felt that recognition, on the other hand, would tend to hold Japan in check in further territorial ambitions in Asia. The attitude of the American public would be vital, the Russians feel.

Needleworkers Meet Today in Battery Park

The annual ingathering and exhibition of the Bethesda branch of the Needlework Guild will be held in the Battery Park Community House at 2:30 p. m. today. Mrs. E. F. Kohman, chairman of the branch, is in charge.

Guests will be Mrs. Charles Leonard Chambers, president of the Woman's Club of Bethesda, and Mrs. Benjamin Potter, president of the Newcomb Club of Bethesda. Speakers will include Mrs. Virginia Lee Benentt, executive secretary of the Montgomery Social Service League; Dr. J. M. Bird, president of the league, and Mrs. Harry Elkins, secretary of the Montgomery County Federation of Women's Clubs.

Service Arranged Today For Orin Judson Field

Funeral services for Orin Judson Field, 65, custodian of securities for the Federal Farm Loan Bureau since its organization in 1917, who died Tuesday at his home in Kensington, Md., will be held today at 2 p. m. at the residence. Burial will be in Rockville Cemetery.

Mr. Field, born in Watauga, Ill., received two degrees from the National University Graduate School. He is survived by his widow, Mrs. Edith Houghtelin Field; a daughter, Miss Adelaide Field, and a brother, James D. Field, Oak Park, Ill.

Clarendon K. of C. To Entertain Visitors

Dr. C. R. Ellis, faithful navigator of Washingtton Assembly, master of the fourth degree, Knights of Columbus, together with his staff, and Supreme Treasurer D. J. Callahan, will be guests at the meeting of Edward Douglas White Council tonight.

Hearing a Great Man Talk

A Concentrated Liberal Audience Sits at the Feet of Dr. Wiggin

By William Harlan Hale.

"Gee," said the messenger boy at my elbow as Mr. Wiggin revealed more of his figures, "how much do you suppose that guy's worth?"

I made a quick guess as to the total, and then added a couple of millions to it, wondering whether the boy in his olive uniform might come back with some comments on the inequalities of monetary distribution. I was eavesdropping for signs of discontent in the popular mind. But his only reply was "Gee!" and he looked upon Mr. Wiggin with a wide-eyed gaze of admiration.

The reporters, filling yellow sheets at a mad rate at the long press table, were too busy to be seduced into conversation. So, between the news of a Shermar Corporation profit and a Metpotan Corporation loss, I slipped over two of the chairs open to the public.

The size of the audience was small, yet it was anything but nondescript. To my right were some slicked-up, young gentlemen, obviously down for a short swing from New York; nothing they would say could interest me. To my left sat a bevy of intellectual maidens, perhaps doing some field work on American institutions for their high school seminar. I decided to forego the temptation of talking to them, and find more substantial material.

What I wanted to find was some determined liberal, some serious person who had come here as a protagonist of reform, or of some social cause. I wanted to find him and get his reaction to the singular display unrolling itself before his eyes. (I was interrupted in my hunt by more highly interesting and somewhat astronomical revelations regarding that good old stand-by, the Shermar Corporation.)

But finally, ha! I found him. He was sitting by himself in a corner, puffing on the kind of tumble-down pipe that immediately identifies a Progressive. His eyes were eagle-sharp and blue; and he had a Lincoln Steffens beard. I knew right off that he was just waiting to talk.

Just then came the news from the big green table that Mr. Wiggin had sold short the stock of his own bank. The room was hushed at such a sensation; only the telegraph instruments down the hall clacked on. It was a first-class chance for opening a conversation with the liberal beard.

"A sweet story, eh?" I ventured.

"It seems to have surprised even the committee," he said. "I thought they were getting used to little incidents like that."

"Well, I don't suppose it will add to Mr. Wiggin's fame," I continued, hoping to draw him out.

"Mr. Wiggin's fame? Young man, Mr. Wiggin's fame is growing by the hour."

His superior assurance aroused my cynicism. "Among the editors of the Nation, for instance?"

"Exactly! If the editors of the Nation fail to appreciate Mr. Wiggin, they are missing a great chance."

"Pardon me, sir." I was about to retire in confusion. "You are an officer of the Chase Bank?"

There was a sudden explosion of merriment; the eyes rolled, and the pipe became entangled in the beard. A policeman looked us over coolly.

"Young man, at present I don't even have a deposit account to my name. No, I am merely one of the thousands of people who are profoundly grateful to Mr. Wiggin for coming down here and telling all. At first he was a bit shy and reticent, but now he has let us have the whole story.

"And that's just what we didn't have—the whole story. We knew some things, and we guessed a lot of others. But we never had the authority to go into secret places and draw out information as to mysterious market operations, tax evasions, interlocking directorates, and all the rest of it. There have been a lot of investigations before, but they have only gotten at fragments of the truth Now Mr. Wiggin tells us everything."

"That makes him into a new style of benefactor. Who benefits?"

"Young man, the liberals benefit. I benefit. 'The Nation' benefits. Every day Mr. Wiggin has been giving us, gratis, more fascinating food for thought—more ammunition, you might say—than we ever had before. He simply never fails.

"I say this just because I don't like to see people get supercilious about him, and demand that he give up his $100,000 pension. I think he is worth it, every penny. From my point of view, I might almost call him a great man."

U. S. Advised To Spread Cash

Consumers Here Just Need Money, Is Discovery of Oxford Expert.

Oxford, England, Nov. 1 (A.P.).—Frederick Soddy, economist and chemist, believes that a return of money and credit to the consumer is the key to American monetary problems.

The well-known Oxford professor also advocates the control by President Roosevelt of the United States banking system, and issuing of new money.

"Democracy can not afford to leave the power of the issue of money in the hands of anyone but its own government," he said today.

"It is impossible to keep the value of money constant if you allow people to issue and destroy it as a business. You can not have stabilization as long as you have bank credit.

"I don't see any way for a government to relieve the situation except by giving more money to consumers.

"Payment of pensions or bonuses to war veterans would do the same thing in a rough way."

Fog Aids Firemen At Big Oil Blaze

Dozen Tanks Destroyed in Michigan; One Killed.

Mount Pleasant, Mich., Nov. 1 (A.P.).—Firemen battling flames which destroyed more than a dozen storage tanks at the Roosevelt Oil Refinery here today were aided by a heavy fog, which helped check the advance of the flames toward other tanks. Officials believe the loss will reach $150,000. Claude Yaeger, employe at the refinery, was instantly killed shortly after the blaze started yesterday. Three others were hurt.

26 Known Victims In Albania Floods

Food Rushed to Southern Area; Reports Meager.

Tirana, Albania, Nov. 1 (A.P.).—Food, clothing and medical supplies were rushed to southern Albania today, where 26 persons were known dead in disastrous floods.

Fragmentary reports indicated there may have been many more drowned.

A number were killed at Premedi when 22 houses collapsed in flood waters of the rain-swollen Viosa River.

U. S. Abandons Efforts to Try Samuel Insull

There Will Be No 'Let-Up,' However, in Prosecution of 24 Aids.

Chicago, Nov. 1 (A.P.).—Samuel Insull's exile in Greece probably will go on undisturbed, it was indicated today, and upon a score of Chicago business and financial leaders will fall Federal prosecution in the collapse of his utilitiy companies.

The Federal Government and the State of Illinois have spent perhaps $100,000 in futile efforts to bring Insull back for trial. The Greek courts have twice refused his removal.

A high Government official said today there probably would be no further Federal attempts to extradite him.

But there will be no leniency shown toward 24 Chicagoans named in two indictments charging mail fraud and violation of the Federal bankruptcy laws, the same Federal official said. They were men who served as officers or directors of utility companies in the $4,000,000,000 Insull network.

Also named in the indictment were Insull's son, Samuel, jr., and and his brother, Martin J., who is fighting extradition from Canada.

Athens, Greece, Nov. 1 (A.P.).—Samuel Insull thought of work today after months of extradition proceedings.

"I will start to work," he told a throng of friends who came to felicitate him on the refusal of a Greek court to permit his return to the United States to face charges in connection with the collapse of his Middle West utilities systems.

"But," he added smilingly, "I will talk later."

U. S. Authorizes Air Line to Ohio

D. C.-Cincinnati Service Via Charles Town Slated.

The American Airways, Inc., yesterday was granted authority by the Department of Commerce to start operating immediately a daytime fair-weather passenger service between Washington and Cincinnati, via Charles Town, W. Va.

Trimotored Ford planes, carrying two pilots, a stewardess and holding 11 passengers, will be used. Planes will leave Washington at 12:30 p. m., arriving at Cincinnati at 4:38 p. m. The airline has been sending pilots along the route for the last three weeks to familiarize them with fields and flying conditions.

Intermediate landing fields at 50-mile intervals have been improved, and the airport at Charles Town has been reconditioned. Connections to the Southwest also will be arranged.

Rules Revised For Mortgage Registration

U. S. Trade Commission Changes Classification of Exemptions.

The Federal Trade Commission yesterday revised its classification of real estate mortgages exempt from registration under the securities act.

The revision repealed the commission's order of July 27 last, which set up exemptions. The new rules apply not only to small issues consisting of notes and bonds directly secured by first mortgage on real estate, but also to any issue of aggregate offering price under $100,000 subject to specified conditions.

Real estate issues exempt from registration include:

Notes and bonds, the total issue of which does not exceed $15,000, directly secured by first mortgage or first deed of trust on real estate used as the owner's home.

Securities issues totaling not over $100,000 provided they are to be sold for cash; that no other securities which would bring the total over $100,000 had been issued within the year; that no other similar securities shall have been issued within the year for anything other than cash; that distributive commissions not exceeding 10 per cent of the issue; that bonds be not less than $500 each, stocks not less than $100 per share and other types of securities be not less than $500 units, but notes or bonds secured by first mortgage may be issued at less than $500 provided a detailed prospectus is furnished.

A third class exempted from registration is replacement, extension or renewals of outstanding obligation when par value of securities to be exchanged does not exceed $100,000.

Suit Filed to Regain Cash Held as Evidence

District Supreme Court yesterday was asked to require return to Dr. Vlademar Gregory Burtan, of New York City, $2,300 taken from him and allegedly held as "evidence" by Secret Service agents.

Attorneys claimed the money was seized illegally and without a search warrant. Demands for the return of the money have been met, they said, with the reply that Government officials desired it for "evidence." The nature of the evidence was not disclosed.

Data on Nazi Activity Gathered by Dickstein

New York, Nov. 1 (A.P.).—Representative Samuel Dickstein (Democrat), New York, collected data on Nazi activities here today while agents of the United States Bureau of Investigation continued their search for Heinz Spanknoebel, missing Nazi leader.

Five States Move For Liquor Control

Cleveland, Nov. 1 (A.P.).—Five States tomorrow will seek to get the jump on the liquor situation by anticipating repeal of the eighteenth amendment with regulatory legislation.

Called by Joseph N. Ackerman a conference of representatives of Ohio, West Virginia, Pennsylvania, Michigan and Indiana will study problems of manufacture, sale and traffic after, and if, repeal becomes effective.

Possibly a representative of Kentucky also will attend.

Boston, No. 1 (U.P.).—Gov. Joseph B. Ely today called a special session of the Legislature for November 8 to consider the report of a committee on liquor laws which recommended that a State commission have "absolute supervision and control" of hard liquor in Massachusetts.

Retailers Told To Form NRA Trade Councils

Groups to Deal With All But Labor Disputes Asked by Jan. 1.

The organization of local retail trade councils to adjust complaints arising from the retail code was authorized yesterday by the National Retail Trade Council, governing agency of the code.

The regulations stipulated that no complaints dealing with labor, hours or wages of employes should be dealt with by the local bodies.

Local merchants associations are charged with the work of initial organization by January 1. If by that date any retail trade area is not provided with its local council, the NRA will create the local organizations.

The local groups will be established in all metropolitan districts and in trading centers of over 2,500 population. More than one council may be formed in congested metropolitan sections, while small towns may form councils if it is found necessary.

The duties of the councils will be, in addition to answering all queries concerning the application of the code and receiving and adjusting complaints except those of labor, to secure compliance with the code "through explanation, conference and adjustment."

The councils also will be empowered to receive from the retail merchants notice of reduction of price below the minimum fixed by the code in order to meet a competitor's figure.

Texas Inquiry Hits Ferguson

Job Selling Charges Linked to Paper Edited by Governor's Husband.

Austin, Tex., Nov. 1 (AP).—Job-selling charges were linked with the Ferguson Forum, edited by James E. Ferguson, husband of the governor, today as a legislative subcommittee resumed investigation of reports that State jobs had been promised in exchange for cash.

Joe E. Sims, of Whitney, Tex., exhibited a receipt issued in the name of the Forum which he said had been given him by R. H. Burck, also of Whitney. Burck recently was indicted for swindling in the investigation.

Burck testified he had distributed thousands of copies of the Ferguson paper during the campaign of Gov. Ferguson for office.

German Jew Aid Program Adopted

London Session Plans Plea for $10,000,000.

London, Nov. 1 (Jewish Telegraphic Agency).—A comprehensive program of action for the relief of the Jews of Germany was adopted today in the closing sessions of the World Jewish Conference.

A central allocations committee to which "the committee in each country shall be free to hand over all or part of their resources" and which will advise organizations in the various countries how best to direct their expenditures, was decided upon.

It will advise local committees, but will be able to coordinate the distribution of funds raised and plan in advance where the money may be applied to the best advantage. It was reliably learned an appeal for $10,000,000 will be made.

Widow, 55, Slain, Killer Fires Home

Woman Beaten to Death After Holiday Party.

Rockport, Mass., Nov. 1 (AP).—Mrs. Augusta Johnson, a 55-year-old widow, was beaten to death today and an attempt made to hide the crime by burning her cottage and body.

Firemen who entered the burning house found her badly burned body on a bed. Dr. Ira B. Hull said wounds on the head had been caused by blows.

Mrs. Johnson attended a Hallowe'en party last night and was driven to her home at 10:30 p. m. by Mr. and Mrs. August Olson. That, as far as is known, was the last time she was seen alive.

Highway to Norris Dam To Have No Signboards

The Tennessee Valley Authority announced yesterday that W. W. Boxley Co., of Roanoke, Va., had been awarded a contract at $256,223 for the construction of a heavy duty 22-foot highway from Knoxville, Tenn., to the site of the new Norris dam.

An Associated Press report said the right-of-way, 250 feet wide, will be beautified with native shrubbery, and that no sign boards will be permitted.

Thieves Ransack Home in New Hampshire Ave.

Thieves who broke into the home of John H. Richter, 4143 New Hampshire avenue northwest, early yesterday ransacked the house and escaped with a gold watch valued at $50, he reported to police.

Sam Silverman, proprietor of a grocery store at 1100 New Jersey avenue southeast, reported his store was entered and 25 pairs of silk hose and a quantity of meat and groceries stolen.

Hopkins Urges Greater Speed In Relief Work

Need for Haste Phoned President Yesterday From Chicago.

Harry L. Hopkins, relief administrator, telephoned President Roosevelt from Chicago yesterday urging speeding up of the Federal relief program. Although approximately $250,000,000 of the $500,000,000 appropriated for relief remains unspent, it was indicated the program will require additional appropriations from Congress.

Relief plans call for the purchase of tremendous quantities of foodstuffs. Distribution of butter bought by the Relief Administration for the needy will begin within 10 days, C. M. Bookman, assistant administrator, said yesterday.

Next Monday bids will be opened on 15,000,000 pounds of beef for the needy. The Relief Administration also is completing negotiations for purchase and distribution of coal.

Beef Ready in 30 Days.

Beef shipments may be ready in 30 days. It will be necessary for packers to buy range cattle and turn them into canned beef. Beef already packed will not be accepted, because one of the purposes is to cut down the supply of live beef.

Local relief officials, Bookman said, will select wholesalers and retailers in each community to handle distribution of food and fuel. Tickets calling for fixed quantities probably will be distributed to families.

Bookman stressed that Government food is to be dispensed in addition to local relief already being given. The purpose is to raise the standard of unemployment relief.

Total Is $230,664,583.

During October $54,927,689 was granted to 48 States, Puerto Rico and the District of Columbia, bringing the total since June 1 to $230,664,583. Bookman explained that of the total distributed thus far, $185,709,123 is money used to match appropriations by States on the basis of one Federal dollar to three State dollars. After October 1, it became discretionary whether additional money would be distributed on this basis or given outright.

A total of $472,000 has been allotted 24 States and the District of Columbia for transients. The District's share was $12,000.

Morris Lewis, transient relief director said a weather bureau station at Bluemont, Va., is being considered as a site for concentrating District transients.

Riviera Calls To Lindberghs

Long Stay There Likely, Paris Says; Plan Hop for Amsterdam.

Paris, Nov. 1 (AP).—Col. and Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh plan a long sojourn on the Riviera after completing a European survey for a prospective commercial transatlantic air route.

Their bags were packed tonight in preparation for a hop to Amsterdam, where they intend to spend several days before flying to Spain and the Azores.

Snow and rain fell today on the route to the Netherlands and the departure northward may be made tomorrow or Friday, if the weather permits.

Possibility that the Americans might take up residence in southern France has been rumored repeatedly since the middle of May. It was thought likely they might return for a short stay in the United States before coming to the Mediterranean coast.

"We wanted to see Paris quietly on this visit," the colonel said today as he left his hotel for farewell calls at the air ministry. He refused to comment on the plans, which were revealed tonight through French sources.

Incinerator Closing Attacked at Rally

Expensive Economy, Says Southeast Group.

Closing the Southeast incinerator plant was characterized as expensive economy at last night's meeting of the Southeast Washington Citizen's Association at the Buchanan School.

Maladministration of District affairs and lobbying activities of railroads were held responsible by speakers for the present condition.

John C. L. Ritter, southeast candidate for Commissioner, scored junk yards whose never-dying waste fires begrimed the entire Southeast business and residential section. Operation of the incinerator would dispose of this evil, he said.

The association approved the old-age pension bill sponsored by Representative Black.

Women Aiding Sibley Hospital Meet Tonight

An illustrated lecture on Shenandoah National Park by Dr. Roy Lyman Sexton will feature the annual roll call meeting of Sibley Hospital's Woman's Guild tomorrow night. Addresses will be given by the Rev. Dr. Charles S. Cole, superintendent of the hospital, and Dr. Lewis H. Taylor. Mrs. Samuel A. Mooers, president of the guild, will call for reports from division leaders.

With a membership of more than 2,000, the Woman's Guild strives to promote the hospital's welfare through church circles and the help of friends. Its present objective is to equip Sibley completely with innerspring mattresses.

Students' Mothers to Meet.

The Students Mothers' Club of St. John's College will meet at the college on Vermont avenue tomorrow at 2 p. m. Tea will follow a short business session.

Radio Waves and Ripples

ANY girl who thinks a fresh manicure, a new wave and a smell like the Botanical Gardens will get her that WJSV announcer job, has another think coming.

Aware of an incapacity completely to submerge preferences in womankind—blonde or brunette, for instance—the gentlemen with the minds have determined definitely not to see any of the applicants.

The interviewing will be done by Announcer Robert Trout, who first thought it would be a good idea if the listeners who get up early enough in the morning to hear the Sun Dial, heard a feminine voice instead of his own.

The minds will do the announcer choosing themselves. It's just that they don't want their ideas on voice personality to get all mixed up with blue eyes, light brown hair and trim ankles.

Whitecaps.

WRC—Fleischmann Hour, New York mayoralty candidates with Rudy Vallee, 8 p. m.; Show Boat, 9 p. m.; Paul Whiteman and orchestra with guest artists, 10 p. m. WMAL—British political discussion, Arthur Greenwood, former Labor member of Parliament, 4:15 p. m.; Echoes of the Palisades, Charles M. Schwab organ concert, 10:30 p. m.; KDKA Anniversary, Gov. Pinchot, Dr. Frank Conrad, 100 entertainers, 11:30 p. m. WJSV—Eddie Dooley, former All-American quarter back, discussing sports, 6:30 p. m.; Gladys Rice, soprano, with concert orchestra, 10:45 p. m.; Isham Jones and orchestra, 11:30 p. m. WOL—Nell Paxton, organ, 10:05 a. m.; A. B. S. Concert Orchestra, 8:30 p. m.; wrestling matches, 9:30 p. m.

WJSV and WMAL sunrise Announcers Robert Trout and Clubman Arthur Godfrey reported sick yesterday. Harold Gray worked for Trout, Jim McGrath and WMAL Hostess Mary Jane Klare for Godfrey. Both Gray and McGrath begin the day for Columbia and N. B. C. here, anyway.

WMAL's night hostess, Mary Davis, got herself a husband the other night. He's Charles Nicholson, of the Navy Yard.

Representative Chester Bolton, Ohio, is next on WRC's Community Chest series Saturday at 7:15 p. m.

WJSV is bringing Homer Rodeheaver, Billy Sunday understudy, to a microphone for a bit of revivaling Saturday night at 7:15. Homer broke into the Capital air lines on WJSV about a year ago.

The Alexandria Teachers' Association does its bit for American Education Week with a WJSV broadcast from 1:30 to 2 p. m., November 7.

And that Marine Band, long an N. B. C. broadcaster, has gone over to the Columbia chain for a series of programs to begin Monday at 3:30 p. m. through WJSV. The Taylor Branson unit has been reserved a half hour at that time for a yet undetermined number of Mondays.

National is putting New York's mayoralty candidates on the air with Rudy Vallee at 8 tonight. McKee, LaGuardia and O'Brien will be introduced by Heywood Broun. You know, Broun has come out strong for the one-time stormy petrel of the House.

The Leonids are coming for another collision with the earth, a thing they do every 33 years or so.

There was a time when this sudden shower of sparks from the heavens set folks running for home with their hands over their heads, but that was before people knew the Leonids and came to understand them.

Dr. Robert H. Baker, astronomer, will tell the story of the Leonids on an N. B. C. network tomorrow night at 11:15.

Arthur Greenwood, British Labor party leader, broadcasts from London today at 4:15 p. m. in the third of National's weekly series on English politics.

Politically, Greenwood is lined up with the opposition to Ramsay MacDonald's Nationalist government. India, by common consent, is the only subject he is denied the opportunity of discussing.

The broadcast will be shortwaved from the London studios of the British Broadcasting Corporation.

Columbia's welcome to WBBM last night was to make the C. B. S Chicago key station feel at home on a full commercial Columbia schedule, not, as somebody said in a press release from New York, to hail WBBM to a full-time schedule. It seems that WBBM can't broadcast after 10 p. m. even now.

The only reason we said anything about this at all was because the minds all thought there'd be a lot of misunderstanding around this winter if we didn't. So we did. And now there's going to be a lot of confusion instead.

Columbia brings another Philadelphia Orchestra concert to the loudspeakers tomorrow, the Stokowski unit playing two compositions by American women—Frances McCollin's "Adagio" and Ione Pickhardt's "Mountains." The balance of the program is Dvorak's Symphony No. 5 in E minor, "From the New World," and excerpts from Wagner's music drama, "Die Walkure."

The concert will be broadcast from Philadelphia's Academy of Music from 2:30 to 4 p. m. WJSV has scheduled it.

Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt comes to another N. B. C. microphone tomorrow night in Washington to aid the celebration of the twenty-first anniversary of the Girl Scouts' founding.

Her address, "The Girl Scout in Her Community," will be broadcast from 10 to 10:15 p. m. Each day in the anniversary week has been given a designation by Girl Scout leaders, and tomorrow happens to be community service day.

Great Soprano Praises Post Opera Series

Carmela Ponselle Glad to Sing Here in Bargain Week, She Writes.

Carmela Ponselle, one of the greatest and most popular of living sopranos, yesterday congratulated The Washington Post for bringing grand opera to the Capital at the lowest prices in all its music history.

From her home in New York, Miss Ponselle, who has arranged with directors of the Metropolitan Opera, which holds her contract, to sing leading roles in two of the operas here this month by the International Opera Co., under Post auspices, wrote in a letter to the newspaper's editors:

"It is with great pleasure that I am coming to sing in Washington with my friend Mr. Maurice Frank (International Opera director). Your newspaper is certainly to be commended for supporting the great cultural plan of opera for the masses and it makes me happy to be among the great array of stars in the coming opera venture at Washington.

"I am hoping for your paper the thanks due from the Washington public and a great triumph for the opera series.

"Sincere best wishes,

"Cordially yours,

(Signed) "CARMELA PONSELLE."

3,000 Seats at Half Price.

Several years ago Miss Ponselle broke all Sunday night attendance records at the Metropolitan Opera House in New York in "Carmen." She will sing the leading role in the same opera for Washington music lovers the night of Monday, November 21, and will also sing the lead in "Aida" Thursday night, November 23.

Every night of the week beginning Sunday, November 19, that the International Opera stars will be playing at Washingon Auditorium the best seat in the house is available at 55 cents to Post readers.

That is because The Washington Post has reserved for its readers 3,000 choice seats for each opera to be sold at half price. When The Post's seats have been disposed of at prices of 30, 46 and 55 cents, the International Opera will put its seats on sale at the regular prices of 50, 75 and 90 cents.

Sang at White House.

Hosts of Post readers already have availed themselves of the opportunity of hearing grand opera at bargain rates by calling at the Stieff piano store, 1340 G street northwest, where the seats are on sale, each with a copy of The Post to identify him as a reader. Hundreds more, unable to come to the store in person, have mailed seat orders with identifying portions of The Post to the piano store and have received their reserved seats by return matil.

Miss Ponselle is well known to Washington operagoers. She sang here last, doing bits from Carmen, a little more than a year ago before a capacity house. She and her sister, Rosa Ponselle, also a Metropolitan soprano, have sung at the White House. Miss Ponselle will sing the same "Carmen" role for the Metropolitan next season that she will sing in Washington. The opera will be staged completely in the Metropolitan tradition, with full chorus and orchestra.

To Sing in "Carmen"

CARMELA PONSELLE, Metropolitan Opera Company soprano, who will sing leading roles in "Carmen" and "Aida" in a Washington grand opera series The Washington Post is making available to its readers at half price.

Hyattsville Charities Heads Meet Tonight

A meeting of the executive committee of the Associated Charities of Hyattsville and vicinity will be held tonight in headquarters on Johnson avenue, Hyattsville, at 8 o'clock.

Plans will be made to place several men at work again on the wood pile maintained by the organization. Much work has been furnished the unemployed through this means in the last few years.

Job Insurance As Protection Of Child Urged

Miss Perkins Declares Industry Should Evolve Practicable Plan.

New York, Nov. 1 (AP).—A planned system of industry, in which there would be prevention of unemployment and insurance for protection of the child, was recommended today by Secretary of Labor Frances E. Perkins.

"We must demand of business that it evolve techniques for the prevention of unemployment so that we won't have recurrent periods of unemployment in which the children of the parents out of work are the chief sufferers," she said.

She spoke at a luncheon rally which opened a campaign for funds for the crusade for children.

"Employment insurance, if properly safeguarded," she added, "would constitute a certain definite measure of security for many workers, their children and other dependents. If they had such insurance, loss of jobs would not leave them destitute and almost immediately the objects of public or private charity, as has been the case so often in recent years.

"While Wisconsin is the only State to pass an unemployment insurance law so far, there is a growing movement now under way to bring about legislation along these lines in other States. Eventually such a system, if found practicable, would minimize the evils growing out of widespread unemployment benefiting the great army of workers and their families."

Trial of Army Officer In Attack Postponed

San Antonio, Tex., Nov. 1 (AP).—By agreement of attorneys, preliminary hearing for Lieut. John H. Murrel, former football star at West Point, on a charge of criminal attack on Blanche Ralls, was postponed indefinitely today by United States Commissioner P. A. Lockhart.

The charge against Murrel alleges the attack occurred October 22. Murrel is a member of the Ninth Infantry at Fort Sam Houston here.

Grateful User Praises Telephone Service

"I Can Never Thank You Enough" writes C. E. Ankney

A sick wife in Washington . . . the husband somewhere between Pittsburgh and Cleveland, driving . . . and a telephone operator who wouldn't give up, that was the situation. And the result? Let the husband, C. E. Ankney, tell in his own words:

"It is with deep appreciation that I wish to write you about the splendid service rendered by your company.

"On September 4 my wife was taken to the hospital for an emergency operation. A call was placed for me at Pittsburgh, Pa. At the time I was driving to Cleveland, Ohio. Your office traced me through the two states named and I was paged at all hotels along the line of travel and in Cleveland. All garages were given my car number, and every other means possible was used to locate me. It goes without saying that the effort was successful. I can never thank you enough."

Not only in emergencies but for everyday friendly chats out-of-town telephoning is first choice.

Call after 8:30 p.m. and you can talk 135 miles for 45c.

Senor Cohen Guest Of Chilean Envoy

Counselor of Embassy Entertained at Buffet Supper on Eve of Sailing for His Home in Santiago.

The Ambassador of Chile, Senor Don Manuel Trucco, will entertain at an informal buffet supper this evening in honor of the Counselor of the Embassy, Senor Benjamin Cohen, who will leave for New York after the party. He will sail on Saturday for his home in Santiago, Chile, where he will be for a short stay before going to Montevideo, where he will be a Chilean delegate at the conference.

Countess Szechenyi, wife of the Hungarian Minister to the Court of St. James, who passed the late summer and early fall with her mother, the dowager Mrs. Vanderbilt, at her home in Newport, will sail this month to join Count Szechenyi in London. The count, who made an extended visit to Hungary, returned to the British capital a week ago, and is making his home at the Ritz Hotel. When Countess Szechenyi arrives in London they will take up their residence at 35 Eaton square, which they have leased for the winter.

Senator Robert R. Reynolds, who is in North Carolina campaigning for the State election, will return to Washington November 7.

Senator Royal S. Copeland is spending a few days at the Shoreham, having recently returned from Chicago, where he presided as chairman of the National Crime Conference. He will join Mrs. Copeland in New York later this week.

Representative Sam Rayburn, of Bonham, Tex., is a guest at the Raleigh Hotel.

Mme. de Wichfeld, wife of the Counselor of the Danish Legation, arrived in Baltimore yesterday aboard the City of Havre, coming from her home in Denmark, where she has spent the summer.

Mr. H. Gabriel da Silva, First Secretary of the Portugese Legation, is now at the Wardman Park Hotel, where the Minister of Portugal and Mme. de Bianchi make their home. The offices of the legation are also at the Wardman.

Mr. and Mrs. James Roosevelt, son and daughter-in-law of the President and Mrs. Roosevelt, who have been in Europe for several weeks, sailed yesterday for this country. In the party accompanying them on the trip were Mr. and Mrs. Cord Meyer, of New York; Miss Mary Cushman, sister of Mrs. Roosevelt, and Miss Katherine Halle, of Cleveland.

Mrs. James C. Pilling has leased her home at 2407 California street to Mr. and Mrs. Robert W. Malone, of Berryville, Va. Mrs. Pilling for the present will be at the Portland Hotel on Thomas Circle.

Mrs. George Barnett, has leased her house at 1622 Rhode Island avenue to Dr. and Mrs. W. W. Campbell, of California, who will take possession shortly. They passed last winter in Washington, occupying the home of Mrs. Cresson Newbold on Nineteenth street.

Dr. Campbell is president emeritus of the University of California, director emeritus of the Lick Observatory and president of the National Academy of Science. At present he is serving on President Roosevelt's advisory board of scientists.

Mrs. Barnett is in town for a few days, but she will return at the end of the week to Wakefield Manor, her country home in Virginia, where she has been all summer and where she proposes to remain until December. She will take an apartment in Washington for the winter months, possibly going abroad later in the season.

Col. and Mrs. Brooke Arrive in City.

Col. and Mrs. Roger Brooke have arrived in Washington, and have taken an apartment for the winter at the Cordova.

Mrs. William Croghan Denny, of Washington, has reopened Tralee, her winter home in Bermuda. Mrs. Denny is president of the Bermuda Garden Club and one of the three island commissioners of the Girl Guild movement.

Mrs. Watson Honor Guest At Reception.

Mrs. James E. Watson, wife of former Senator Watson, of Indiana, will be the guest of honor at an informal reception before the regular monthly meeting of the League of Republican Women of Washington Monday afternoon, November 6, at 3 o'clock in the Italian garden, Hotel Mayflower. Mrs. Harry Hull will speak of the work of the women's crusade in behalf of the Community Chest.

Miss Janet Richards will be the guest speaker, taking as her subject, "Vital Issues of the Hour." She will be introduced by Mrs. George Thorpe, chairman of the program committee.

Mrs. Jenny H. Sauls announces the marriage of her daughter, Miss Anne Leonah Sauls, to Mr. Earl D. Macgruder, of Clarendon, Va., on October 12, 1932, at Point Pleasant, N. J.

Mrs. J. J. Mack gave a luncheon yesterday at the Shoreham, followed by contract bridge at her home in Wesley Heights. Her guests included Mrs. Carl A. Droop, Mrs. Peter A. Drury, Mrs. Charles P. George, Mrs. William E. Rodenberg, Mrs. Morris Evans, Miss Evans, and Mrs. Frederick Stephan Wynn.

Miss Ethel Mathews, who is the guest of Mr. and Mrs. LeRoy at the Shoreham, has changed her plans and will remain in the Capital for a week or 10 days more before sailing for Europe to join her parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Mathews, at their home in Havre, France.

Mr. and Mrs. Alexander D. Whitemore, who have been touring the South, are making a short visit at the Shoreham before returning to their home in New Rochelle, N. Y.

Miss Gertrude Lee Coffman has opened her apartment at Wardman Park Hotel for the winter season. She has been spending some time in Harrisonburg, Va.

Dr. and Mrs. Norman W. Gillespie are at the Shoreham for a few days, on their wedding trip, and will go from here to spend a week at the Waldorf-Astoria in New York. They will make their future home in Boston, where their wedding was an event of last Saturday. Mrs. Gillespie is the former Miss Mildred Nicholson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Nicholson.

Mr. and Mrs. E. R. Ferguson and their daughter, Miss Mary Elizabeth Ferguson, of Lakewood, Ohio, are at the Shoreham for several days while in Washington to visit their son, Mr. Bert Ferguson, a student at Georgetown University Law School.

Mr. and Mrs. Betts Parents Of Baby Boy.

Mr. and Mrs. Willys Rossiter Betts, jr., of Syosset, Long Island, are receiving congratulations on the birth of a son on Saturday at the Doctors' Hospital in New York. Mrs. Betts was the former Miss Constance Woolworth McCann, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles E. F. McCann, of Oyster Bay, Long Island. Mrs. Betts before her marriage visited in Washington frequently.

Mrs. George Grant Mason, jr., has taken an apartment at 455 East Fifty-seventh street, in New York, for the winter. Mrs. Mason's mother, Mrs. Ormond Lawson-Johnson, is expected to visit her during the winter, coming from her home in London.

The Secretary of the Navy, Mr. Claude A. Swanson, has joined Mrs. Swanson at their residence on R street following an absence of several weeks from the Capital, during which he made an inspection of the fleet at Hawaii and the West Coast. He left the Indianapolis at San Diego and came East by train, accompanied by his aid, Capt. Harold R. Stark.

Mrs. Claude A. Swanson and Mrs. Henry L. Roosevelt, wife of the Assistant Secretary of the Navy, were the ranking guests at the luncheon given by Mrs. Henry Williams at the Carlton yesterday in honor of Mr. Paul Wilstach.

The luncheon followed Mr. Wilstach's lecture on "The Historic Potomac," which was given under the auspices of the Navy ships' sponsors for the benefit of their welfare fund.

Others who entertained at luncheon were Mrs. Keith Merrill, Mrs. Benjamin Fuller, Mrs. Adolphus Staton, Mrs. Dwight Chester, Mrs. Carlos Bean, Mrs. Emory Land and Mrs. Clarence Hunkamp.

Kindlers Hosts To Mrs. Coolidge At Symphony

Patroness of Modern Music Guest at Classical Program.

Mrs. Elizabeth Sprague Coolidge, well-known patron of modern music and string quartets, Miss Valerie Walter and Mr. Marc Peter, son of the Minister of Switzerland and Mme. Peter, will be the guests of Mrs. Hans Kindler at the concert, this afternoon, of the National Symphony Orchestra.

Mrs. Kindler and her guests will hear Mr. Kindler conduct Beethoven's "Eighth Symphony," as well as John Charles Thomas, the famous barytone, sing two groups of orchestrated songs and opera excerpts.

Among the many box parties planned is one by Mrs. Lawrence Townsend, who will have as her guests Miss Mabel Boardman, Princess Isenburg and Mr. Gustive Struve, of the German Embassy.

Maj. A. V. Brown, of Utica, N. Y., and Capt. William MacDonald, of Philadelphia, Pa., are guests at the Raleigh Hotel.

Mrs. Robbins Gives Luncheon for Guest

Mrs. Joseph H. Cotton Here for Several Months.

Mrs. Edward Everett Robbins entertained at a luncheon yesterday, in her apartment at 2029 Connecticut avenue, in honor of Mrs. Joseph H. Cotton, who recently came from her home in New York to spend the winter in the Capital.

Mrs. Cotton, with her nieces, the Misses Mary and Elizabeth Morison, of Boston, has leased the house of Capt. W. D. Puleston, U. S. N., and Mrs. Pulestons house at 2434 Belmont road. Miss Mary Morison is a student at Holton Arms School. Her sister made her debut in Boston three seasons ago.

Last winter Mrs. Cotton and Mrs. Robbins made a trip around the world together.

Mrs. Ward in City After Long Cruise

Visited Hawaii, Japan and China; Made Long Stay in Manila.

Mrs. Dorothy Lee Ward has arrived at the Shoreham for the winter season, after a cruise of 10 months around the world. She sailed from California March 3, on the President Coolidge, and went first to Honolulu, where she spent three weeks.

She was in Japan at Easter time, when the cherry blossoms were in full bloom, and spent three weeks there, and three weeks in Shanghai, China. She made a lengthy visit in Manila and also visited Bombay and Calcutta, and saw Mount Everett. Her itinerary included Rome, Paris and other European cities.

Mrs. Ward was much entertained in Egypt, where on her previous visit 10 years ago she was the first woman to enter King Tutankamen's tomb.

Mrs. Ward will make only a brief visit to Palm Beach this winter, instead of spending the season there, as is her usual custom. She is a member of the distinguished Lee family of the South.

Mrs. Newcomb Returns From Trip to New York

Mrs. Josiah T. Newcomb has returned to her apartment at the Shoreham after a trip to New York, Connecticut and Massachusetts, on which she was accompanied by Mr. Newcomb. Mr. Newcomb has flown to Pensacola, Fla., and expects to return from there in two weeks. At Rolling Acres, their home in Dutchess County, N. Y., they visited their sons, Mr. Henry Newcomb and Mr. Josiah T. Newcomb, jr., and in Westport, Conn., Mr. and Mrs. Newcomb visited their daughter, Mrs. William C. Gilman.

Women to Hear Mrs. Ickes Tell Of Mesa Land

She Will Discuss Her New Book on Southwest Before City Club.

Mrs. Harold L. Ickes, wife of the Secretary of the Interior, and member of the Illinois State Legislature, will be the luncheon guest of the Book Hour section of the Women's City Club, on Saturday, at 1:30 o'clock, at the club house, 736 Jackson place.

Mrs. W. W. Husband will present Mrs. Ickes, who will review her new book, "Mesa Land." Despite an active career in politics, Mrs. Ickes has devoted much time to the American Southwest, her chief interests in that region centering around northern New Mexico and Arizona, the home of the Navajo and Pueblo Indians. "Mesa Land" is a description of her adventures among the Indians and a record of her impressions concerning "America's enchanted ground." Among those planning to attend the luncheon are Mrs. William Lee Corbin, chairman of the section; Mrs. Anna Farrar, Miss Adelaide Davis, Miss Flora L. Hendley, Miss Julia E. Lehmann, Mrs. George Perkins, Miss Elizabeth A. Hayden, Miss Florence C. Bell, Miss M. Alvina Carroll, Mrs. Carroll L. Nash, Miss Kate Kennish, Miss Mary Gott, Mrs. Lawrence Fortune, Miss Carolyn E. Demeritt, Miss Elsa Donaldson, Miss A. Hazel Swift, Miss Eunice W. Wright, Miss Etta H. Austin, Miss Julia Coonan, Mrs. A. G. Dodge, Mrs. Nell M. Dunlap, Mrs. Minnie M. Howerth, Miss Flora G. Schuldt, Miss Willa Gallaher, Mrs. Raymond H. Keller, Miss Mate Lewis, Mrs. Gladys B. Middlemiss, Miss Lavinia Y. Floyd, Miss Nana B. Budd, Miss Dolly M. Stone, Miss S. Pearle Jencks, Mrs. Grattan Kerans.

Mrs. Alfred J. Hopkins, of Pittsburgh, arrived here a day or two ago accompanied by her daughter, Miss Ruth Hopkins, and they are occupying a suite at Wardman Park Hotel for the duration of their indefinite stay. Mrs. Hopkins is a frequent visitor to this city.

Mrs. J. S. McDaniel, of New York City, has joined Mr. McDaniel at the Carlton.

Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Kehoe of Nutley, N. J., are passing some time at the Carlton.

College Shop Welcomes Guest Sorority Girls

Holds Open House Each Week for Different Group of Coeds.

By Ruth Anne Davis.

The scene is the college shop in a downtown department store. The time is Thursday afternoon. The characters are exuberant coeds, members of various sororities.

Here is the plot: Each Thursday afternoon, for six weeks, the college shop is holding open house with some sorority as guest of honor. Three members of the honored group are chosen to model clothes that appeal to the college girl. Those who do not model are permitted to try on anything that strikes their fancy.

Clothes, no matter how important they may be to Sally Sorority, do not hold the entire stage at these jolly informal affairs. Laughter and chatter of campus affairs, fraternity dances, football games and all the other things that make college life exciting play a delightful part. Then there are happy reunions with the alumnae who are also bidden to the open house. Some of the girls bring their mothers with them to get their mature advice on the right gown for the sophomore cotillion or the perfect ensemble for the Sunday night supper.

Last Thursday, at the first open house, the Delta Delta Delta Sorority was feted. The members of Sigma Kappa are being honored today. Other sororities on the favored list are Kappa Kappa Gamma, Pi Beta Phi, Delta Zeta and Kappa Delta. Chapters from surrounding colleges as well as from Georgetown are invited.

Wrap-around skirts make ideal companions for bright sweaters and gay velveteen blouses. Flannel wrap-arounds, in an F street shop, are gored to fit but give the wearer plenty of room for an athetic stride by means of an inverted pleat in the side back. Sturdy big buttons are placed along the front opening. These skirts may be had in dull green, deep brown or black. The sizes are 26, 28, 30 and 32 waist.

Price, $2.17.

The same shop has other flannel skirts at the same price. One style has two inverted pleats in back, four buttons on one side in front and a pleat on the other side front. This skirt is in brown or black.

Silk all the way to their frivolous picot tops are four-thread hose that wear admirably despite their sheerness. The soles are reinforced. A lockstitch at the bottom of the cuff keeps runs from galloping into the leg of the stocking.

Peter Pan, a neutral shade that will blend with almost any costume, is among the newest colors. London, a close relation of the gun metal family, is also favored, especially for wear with black. Havanna and jungle are the smartest browns.

These stockings sell for 69 cents a pair.

Boucle leather, spongy and pliable is used for some of the newest and most attractive shoes. Strange that some one didn't think of boucle shoes before, since boucle dresses, suits, hats, gloves and bags have had such a tremendous vogue in the last few years. Well, now that some one has had the happy thought, the shopper feels sure that a pair of oxfords or pumps in this material will brighten many a shoe wardrobe. This new leather is nonscuffable.

A variation of the ubiquitous oxford is a pump with a wide tongue and two narrow straps that buckle over the tongue. The buckles, very small, very neat, are shiny silver metal. Patent leather lacing draws a narrow gypsy line on the vamp and outlines the counter. The leather heel is a continental.

In gray or brown, this shoe is $5. A conventional oxford is the same price.

Boucle leather also makes oxfords and wide-strapped pumps that sell for $3.95.

The orchid has undoubtedly been the inspiration for a silverware pattern that is a strange blending of the exotic and the classic. Dinner knives with stainless steel blades, dinner and salad forks, butter knives, soup spoons and coffee spoons are priced at 10 cents each. This silverplated ware has a ten-year guarantee.

Flaming flowers, placed against a cool cream background, adorn individual sandwich or cocktail trays. Papier mache, heavily lacquered, makes these colorful trifles, which are liquid proof. All have flamboyant, poppy-like flowers in the center, but the borders may be chosen in red, green, black or blue. The tray measures 8 by 5 inches.

Price: 20 cents.

The same design decorates general utility boxes. The larger ones, 7 by 7 inches, may be used as sewing boxes. The smaller ones are suitable for sweetmeats or to hold odds and ends on a writing desk.

The large boxes sell for 50 cents. The small ones are priced at 25 cents.

Call Ruth Anne Davis, of The Washington Post, National 4205, Extension 165, for further information. Or write, inclosing a stamped, addressed envelope.

Tiny Strips in Swirl Effect Trim Pump

Paris Designers Show New Interesting Shoe Modes.

Paris (U.P.).—Raoul makes a sort of sandal pump in brown kid and black patent leather. There is a swirly movement with the patent leather in quarter-inch strips from the instep of the shoe at the vamp to the outer side between the instep and the toe. Half moons are cut around the side and through these a narrow strip of leather is laced in and out twice. The rest of the shoe is perfectly plain brown kid for the heel, which is in black patent.

Greco has a new cut-out oxford in navy blue kid that has no systematic reasoning for its motif. In the front there are two leaf-like holes fastened together with a metal pin about an eighth of an inch long and a sixteenth wide. From this is extended and finally appliqued to the toe of the shoe an unevenly cut strip of leather in the shape of the letter L. There is no other trimming on the shoe at all. Very smart with tailored things, and permissible with afternoon costumes of the cocktail clan.

A PERFECT CLUE.

The bidding on some hands tells a story which is so clear that it is possible to piece together the suit distributions of the hidden hands almost without a flaw. Such a hand was dealt in a large Duplicate game not long ago, and at almost every table the bidding followed approximately the same course. Although the average caliber of the players was very high, in no instance did the Opening leader consider the situation carefully enough, and not one made the proper Opening lead.

This lapse was due chiefly to the fact that the hand which had the privilege of leading held two Aces against a Slam bid, and neither member of the bidding team had indicated a void suit by a direct bid. It seems to me, however, that a study of the inferences revealed by the nature and sequence of all the bidding should have told the story more clearly than any single bid could have done. This is the hand:

West, Dealer.
North and South vulnerable.

The bidding: (Figures after bids refer to numbered explanatory paragraphs.)

South	West	North	East
	1♣	Pass	2♠(1)
Pass	3♣	Pass	3♡
Pass	3NT	Pass	5♣(2)
Pass	5♡(3)	Pass	6♡(4)
Pass	Pass	Pass

1—This is the ideal Forcing Takeout. It includes four honor-tricks, support for partner's suit, and two strong suits for him to choose from in case his own is weak.

2—What a wealth of information this bid offers when studied in connection with the bidding which will follow it! East refuses to bid four notrump, but he shows adequate support for his partner's suit, and has bid independently two suits of his own.

3—West does not wish to contract directly for a Slam, because his partner may not be void of diamonds. East's bidding has been so strong, however, that he wishes to give him one more chance.

4—This is the bid that tells the story. When East, having denied the material for a four-notrump bid, is still willing to contract for a Slam, he must have no losing tricks in diamonds. Only a void suit, in view of the preceding bidding, can explain this. South's card reading should now be automatic. West must hold a fairly weak hand, so that his club suit should be fairly strong to justify the Opening bid. If this is the case, and if East holds the amount of support for clubs that his strong Raise indicated, there is a very good possibility that North may hold a singleton. In any case it seems improbable that East can obtain discards for any losing diamond tricks while South controls the trump suit with his Ace, and even if North is unable to obtain a club ruff, he can take the Ace of diamonds after regaining the lead.

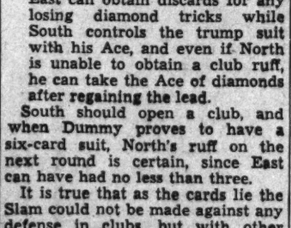
South should open a club, and when Dummy proves to have a six-card suit, North's ruff on the next round is certain, since East can have had no less than three.

It is true that as the cards lie the Slam could not be made against any defense in clubs, but with other distributions of the North-South hands a heart ruff would be just as disastrous to that contract.

Tomorrow's Hand

If South is playing this hand at a contract of six spades and West opens the heart King, what card should the Declarer play to the first trick, and why?

South, Dealer.
East and West vulnerable.



The hand will be discussed in tomorrow's article.

What's in Fashion?

Newest Lingerie Seaming Ideas Improve the Sheath Silhouette

Directed by Amos Parrish

Information as to where lingerie of the type illustrated and its variations are available in Washington will be given by the Fashion Department, The Washington Post, on request.

New York, Nov. 1—Lingerie has been specializing in fitting for several years. This year we think it could be pronounced expert! Whether tailored or lace-spattered, it takes up the least possible amount of space.

You thought the yoke panties of last year were pretty smooth, didn't you? So they were . . . still are. But some of the very newest ones have gone a step farther. They have yokes so wide that the seams come at the bend of the thighs. Perfect to wear under the extremely sleek, molded evening dresses.

The sketch shows such a pantie with band bottom and fairly long. Younger girls still shop for the very brief ones they've worn for several years.

Still Cut on Bias.

Cutting on the bias is still the most popular way of making underwear fit with glass-like smoothness. Though if you still want yours cut on the straight of the goods you'll be able to find some ingeniously designed to follow skin lines too.

Some slips carry their fitting fetish to the extent of having brassiere tops . . . excellent for small women. Many of them have ironed out the strap problem, too. If you're one of those who never get around to sewing the pins out of shortened straps, you'll appreciate the little adjustable slides which permit you to make them longer or shorter according to what your dress needs.

Satin Smart.

Satin because of its natural smoothness fits into the fitted picture. And trimmed with rich Alencon lace, it belongs to the elegant mode of the season more than of the other materials. Though crepe is far from ousted.

There's a lot to be said for knitted materials such as tricot, too. They have such trim, figure-following abilities. And then the busy woman will remind you that they needn't be ironed.

Even when lingerie is tailored, you'll often find a touch of softening . . . fagotting, another material applied such as triple sheer on satin, or maybe a neat monogram somewhere.

Most women want their lingerie in the luscious tea rose color. And some like a soft new ivory shade. You'll see blue, too, but usually only in nightgowns.

Gowns Like Dresses.

These, by the way, are trying to see how much they can look like dresses while still staying comfortable for sleeping. Some of them are actually copied from evening dresses . . . lower in back than in the front. Though they've discarded frills and furbelows over the shoulders. In fact, many of them have simple long sleeves . . . which you'll appreciate if you're bothered by the cold at night.

Tomorrow Comfort and color put men's wool socks on top.

Cheese Biscuits.

1 cup sifted flour
1 teaspoon combination baking powder
½ teaspoon salt
1 tablespoon butter or other shortening
½ cup grated cheese
⅔ cup milk or water

Sift flour once, measure, add baking powder and salt and sift again. Cut in shortening and cheese. Add liquid gradually until soft dough is formed. Roll ⅛-inch thick on slightly floured board. Cut with small, floured biscuit cutter. Bake in hot oven (450 degrees Fahrenheit) 15 minutes. Makes 12 biscuits.

Eggs and Bacon.

⅓ cup diced bacon
3 eggs
2 tablespoons cream
⅛ teaspoon paprika

Place bacon in frying pan. Heat slowly and stir frequently until bacon becomes crisp. Add eggs and cream. Cook slowly and stir constantly until mixture becomes creamy. Add paprika and serve at once.

Garden Goes To Sleep Now For Long Rest

Cover It Well, So It May Wake Up Smiling When Spring Comes.

November is the month to put the garden to bed. Its sleep will be long, and if you want it to wake up smiling, you want to see that it will sleep well.

All trees, shrubs, perennials and bulbs outside should be planted by the middle of the month. Bulbs should be potted for indoor forcing, and preparations made for winter covering to be put on later. Tulips for winter blooms shou be put in pots and pans filled with porous and rich soil, of which one-third of its bulk is sand. Keep them in a dark cellar free fror frost, or outside, buried in soil or ashes up to the rims.

Plant dormant roses in rich soil, cutting off all bruised roots. Cut off the top to four good buds.

Trees, oaks, hawthorn, privet and Japanese honeysuckle should be planted, mulched heavily with leaves or peat.

Perhaps it woul' be wise to plan your garden layout for next year now. Take a sheet of paper and draw a plan of your lot. If it is small, don't be tempted to plant everything, but limit your plots to massed clumps of few varieties. Consider colors and combinations of colors. Massed clumps are more effective than scattered arrangement. Try to work out a design on your piece of paper, and if you carry it out, you will be rewarded for your efforts by patterns of beauty springing from the soil.

Rainbow Card Party.

The annual benefit of the District of Columbia Federation of Women's Clubs this year takes the form of a rainbow card party, to be held Friday, November 3, at the Shoreham Hotel, at 2 p. m., and will be followed by a style show given through the courtesy of Frank R. Jelleff, Inc.

Mrs. Grace Morrison Poole, president of the General Federation of Women's Clubs, will be guest of honor.

Officers and members of the federation will act as models for the style show.

Vegetable Salad.

4 slices tomatoes
½ cup sliced cucumbers
½ cup diced celery
½ cup cooked lima beans
2 tablespoons chopped onions
2 tablespoons chopped green peppers
¼ teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon paprika
1-3 cup French dressing

Mix and chill ingredients. Serve on lettuce leaves.

Baked Steaks of Lamb Make Savory Dish

This Meat Is Served in Many Pleasing Ways That Prove Popular.

By Ruth Chambers.

One of the most finely flavored of meats is lamb. The popularity of certain cuts, such as lamb chops and roast leg of lamb, is never failing. But there are other ways of serving this meat which are equally satisfactory though less well known.

For example, there are baked lamb steaks.

Baked Lamb Steaks.

Trim and remove the extra fat from lamb steaks cut from the shoulder. Rub them with salt and pepper, brown on both sides in lamb fat and place in a casserole. Rinse the frying pan with a half cup of hot water and add this liquid to the meat. Cover in the dish tightly and bake in a moderate oven (350 degrees Fahrenheit) for one and one-half hours.

If desired, finely chopped vegetables such as onions, carrots, turnips and mushrooms may be added to the meat in the casserole during the last half hour. When done, remove the meat from the dish. Make a gravy, using two tablespoons of flour and extra stock, if necessary.

Lamb Tidbits.

Delicious, too, are lamb tidbits. Cut thin lamb steak into pieces about 3 inches square and sprinkle with salt, pepper and a drop of onion juice. Dredge the rolls lightly with flour, place them in a shallow baking pan, add a small amount of water and bake 30 minutes in a fairly hot oven (400 degrees F.) Serve the tidbits with broiled kidneys for a grill plate.

Lamb fits especially well into the mixed grill, which is becoming so popular for lunch or dinner. Lamb patties form another way of serving lamb in combination with other meats and vegetables, grilled.

Lamb Patties.

For patties, take ground lamb from the shoulder, neck or breast. Shape the ground meat into round flat cakes, wrap a strip of bacon around each and fasten with a toothpick. Season with salt and pepper and dredge very lightly with flour. These may be baked in the same manner as lamb steaks. With them serve a broiled lamb kidney, a slice of bacon and vegetables.

Lamb Tongue Salad.

An unusual dish is a molded lamb tongue salad. Cook lamb tongues until tender in hot water to which salt, a few celery seeds and a small onion have been added. When tongues are done, chill, remove the skin and slice. In the meantime, have ready an aspic jelly or seasoned stock with enough gelatin added to make it siffen (one tablespoon to the pint). Set a mold on ice to chill, pour in a little of the stock and, when stiff, add a layer of the sliced meat, then more stock, and repeat until the meat is all used. The meat should be covered with stock. Allow several hours for the jelly to set, then unmold. Serve with potato, cabbage, or other vegetable salad or a combined fruit and vegetable salad.

Stuffed Lamb Hearts.

Here is a way of serving lamb hearts, stuffed and baked:

Wash the hearts in cold water and remove the veins and arteries. Fill the cavities with a stuffing made of bread crumbs seasoned with salt, pepper, sage, minced onion and celery salt. Moisten the dressing with hot water and a little bacon fat or butter. Tie or skewer the openings and sear the hearts on all sides in hot bacon fat.

Place the hearts in a baking dish or roasting pan, sprinkle them with salt and pepper and dredge lightly with flour. Place over each a thin slice of salt pork or bacon and bake for 1 to 1½ hours, depending upon the size of the hearts. If necessary, add a small amount of water to the pan. Make a gravy of the liquid in the pan and season it with chopped gherkins or a few stewed prunes and a slice of lemon.

Spiced Prune Ice Cream.

1 can evaporated milk (14½ ounces)
1 teaspoon granulated gelatin
1 tablespoon cold water
¼ teaspoon cinnamon
⅛ teaspoon nutmeg
⅛ teaspoon cloves
Few grains salt
2 cups cooked prunes
2 tablespoons brown sugar
1 teaspoon vanilla

Scald milk. Soften gelatin in cold water and dissolve in hot milk. Add spices, salt, mix well and chill. Remove pits from prunes and cut into pieces. Whip milk until stiff, add sugar, vanilla and prunes and mix thoroughly. Pour into tray of refrigerating unit and freeze until set.

Plum Jelly Sauce.

2-3 cup plum jelly
1 tablespoon lemon juice
1 tablespoon orange juice
1 tablespoon butter
1 tablespoon flour
⅛ teaspoon salt

Melt butter and add flour in double boiler. When blended add rest of ingredients and cook slowly and stir frequently until thickened.

Washington Women in Welfare Work

Mrs. Leonard A. Block Serves on Visiting Nurses' Board.

MRS. LEONARD A. BLOCK.

"Single shooting" in her welfare work, Mrs. Leonard A. Block serves only on the board of the Instructive Visiting Nurse Society. This one activity is, she feels, large enough to justify all the time that any person can give to welfare work.

Mrs. Block takes her duties as a board member very seriously, attending all meetings and proving in many instances a solid bulwark of advice and help to the organization. Her specialty is health subjects and the Instructive Visiting Nurse Society carries out her ideals of welfare more than any other organization.

She says:

"All of my welfare activities are centered in the Instructive Visiting Nurse Society because I feel that it does good not only in a charitable manner but in an educational way as well. I am interested in any health activity and it is a known fact that the more people know about health the less the society will have to do eventually. Certainly it is one of the most unselfish organizations in existence, for I do not know of any group where the workers are so interested in their work or are so inspired by their own duties."

Woman of Small Means Can Now Have Fine Furs

Bulkiness Gives Way to Close Fitted Styles, Nipped Waistlines.

Furs, more than any other material, emphasize the elegant and luxurious mode decreed by all important designers this season. For centuries furs have been synonymous with costliness and beauty. Today they are also beautifully fitted and, in many cases, are within reach of the woman with moderate means.

Skins are so skillfully manipulated that the bulkiness which characterized fur garments a few years ago is entirely absent from the scene this year. Lines follow the new slender, curved silhouette. Shoulders are broad but not extreme. Collars are massed high and the waistlines are nipped to give the fashionable "chesty" look.

A variety of lengths assures more individuality than in former seasons. Waist-length capes and jackets are excellent to top off bright wool frocks. Three-quarter length swaggers are smart for daytime wear, although the full-length coat is preferred for afternoon. Evening wraps may be three-quarter or full length. The latter style is often distinguished by a train.

Amusing fur bows fasten some of the most attractive swagger models. The scarf collar, which may be worn in a number of ways, is extremely good. Another favorite is the adjustable collar, left loose at the ends so that it may be worn as a lei, shawl or pouch. It is best in long-haired furs.

The high chin collar, fastening on the side, is fashion-right as well as flattering and comfortable.

The newest sleeve is the loose, straight Mandarin type. Other excellent styles are leg-o'-muttons or those that achieve upper arm fullness with tucks let in at the sides of the armhole. Another interesting sleeve is loose and easy above the elbow, with a deep, tight cuff.

Waistlines are carefully molded. Sometimes they are belted with leather or silk braid to increase the nipped-in effect. Occasionally in the more bulky furs, as Persian lamb, a band of cloth is set in at the waist.

The majority of the skirts are straight and tubular. Some, however, have the fullness concentrated at the back, which gives a graceful, flowing line.

California Prune Pie.

2 cups cooked prunes
1 orange
½ cup brown sugar
¼ teaspoon salt
2 tablespoons butter
1 cup liquid from prunes
2 tablespoons cornstarch
Baked pastry shell
Meringue, flavored with few drops lemon extract (use 2 egg whites)

Pit prunes and cut in half. Peel orange, removing white inner peel completely, and dice orange. Combine prunes, orange, sugar, salt butter, prune liquid and bring to a boil. Dissolve cornstarch in two tablespoons cold water, add to boiling mixture and cook until thick. Pour into baked pastry shell, cover with meringue and brown in a moderate oven (330 degrees F.) for 15 minutes.

A TOAST to the Notables

Presidents and heroes, kings and empire builders, have written their names indelibly on The Blackstone register. Salute!

Each new day sees someone far above the throng gracing The Blackstone portals. Yet rates, under the newly revised scale, are so low that even "modest folk" may enjoy this distinguished hospitality.

Mrs. Lee Entertains.

Mrs. Cazenove Lee has invited the members of the Robert E. Lee Memorial Foundation, of which she is chairman, and a few additional guests to meet Miss Ethel Armes, historian and research authority for the foundation, at Mrs. Lee's home, 3542 Newark street, on Thursday, November 2, at 10:30 a. m. Miss Armes will talk informally about her research work and the light it has thrown on the restoration of the gardens and buildings of Stratford.

Mrs. Roosevelt's New Book Asks Men to Aid Wives' Careers.

(Associated Press.)

Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt arrived at authorship today in a book titled "It's Up to the Women"—with a few asides to the men.

Before she left on the Chicago trip, from which she will be motoring back to the White House tomorrow, the President's wife gave her own views on the volume.

"I have a very humble feeling about it," she said. "A great many people have written, and could write on the subjects on which I have written much better than I.

"But it does represent what I feel and think. I hope it may be of use to women who are interested enough to read it."

The "subjects" of which Mrs. Roosevelt spoke are so numerous it hardly seems possible they could be compressed into 263 small pages—budgets, recreation, child rearing, careers, marriage, divorce.

Advice to New Poor.

They are definitely related to the immediate emergency with friendly advice on the first meeting with adversity for the very rich, and helpful low-cost menus for the very poor. She comes sharply into the present in a final chapter, "Women and the NRA."

Born to the social register, Mrs. Roosevelt proclaimed the passing of a "society" based on wealth and power. "Society today means the big society of all men and women. The more kinds of people we know, the more interesting will our lives be."

For the right of a woman to a career, if that must be her means of finding self-expression, Mrs. Roosevelt spoke to the opposite sex: "If a woman wants to work and keep her home, let me beg you, Mr. Man, to help her and not hold her back. If you are sympathetic and understanding, you will find her in the end a better helpmate and your cooperation will mean a better and happier understanding between you. If you fight her, she may be resentful, though she may give in to you, and you may wake up some day to find that you have a wife in your home who is an automaton—no longer a fulfilled and happy personality."

Men as Homemakers.

On the other hand, she appealed to wives not to use money as a measuring yard for a husband's success. She envisaged a happy home as a possibility where a husband temporarily had to live on his wife's salary.

"The young man should be taught something which will fit him to be a husband and father," she said, advocating practical instruction in child care and homemaking for both men and women in all schools and colleges.

She urged more women to enter politics and public life. She warned:

"If our government offices are not held in the next few years by men and women with new conceptions of public service, then our revolution may not continue to be bloodless and changes may not come gradually, as they are coming now, but violently and suddenly, as they have come in the past in France and in Russia, and we will go back before we gather up the pieces and move forward again."

Everybody sings "Swanee River" and "Old Black Joe," but the details of Stephen C. Foster's life, aside from the fact that he was once the American consul in Tripoli, are almost unknown. The first definitive biography of Foster has just been written by John Tasker Howard, author of "Our American Music," who gave a series of Foster programs over the N. B. C. network this past summer. Crowell will publish it soon.

Farewell to Galsworthy.

A novel, "ONE MORE RIVER," by John Galsworthy; Scribner, $2.50.

Can a man use a horsewhip on his wife and expect legal retribution to be visited upon her if she leaves him? Can a man be a great colonial statesman and a sadist at one and the same time? John Galsworthy, in this last book, published after his death, puts himself on record that these questions would be answered in the affirmative—in modern England, at least.

Of course, Mr. Galsworthy's book is cast in the form of fiction, and hence his point of view in these theories may be intended to lie in the same category. Unfortunately, the author died before this could be made sure. But Mrs. Galsworthy has told us that not one line has been added to the manuscript as left by her husband, and declares that "it is his last work to the last word of the book."

Yet the most ardent Galsworthy admirer, and they are legion, may admit if hard pressed that "One More River" will be found one of the least notable of his works. It by no means represents the zenith of his greatness as a writer. It is well written—it would have been hard for Galsworthy to do otherwise. In its portrayal of vital moments in the story of two English girls who fancied themselves more modern than in reality they were, we miss something of what was essentially "Galsworthian"—the fire, the drama, the unerring delineation of his previous books.

It is pleasant to meet again, however, that favorite Galsworthy heroine, Dinny Charwell, whose life runs alongside that of her sister Clare. Dinny is forced by the brutalities of her sadist husband to flee to England from India. She falls in love while en route to England with a penniless young Englishman who reciprocates her affection between ports, as it were. He has real ideas of honor and how a man should behave when he falls in love with the wife of another man. So it took Galsworthy some pages of fine writing and thought to work out the complex problem.

The novel is filled with bright bits of dialogue, with many touches of Galsworthy's understanding of the foibles, follies and fascinations of English society. It may not be his best book—his stature in literature is quite secure enough without it—but it provides good reading for those who want one last touch of the author of "Forsyte."

Bright Sashes On Black Gowns Dramatic Note

One Evening Frock Has Long Train of Shirred Satin.

Flaming scarlet and bright green sashes, knotted at the sides, with long ends almost reaching the floor, brilliantly accent sophisticated black dresses. With the dresses are worn saucy little silver-stitched lame jackets. These dramatic ensembles are ideal for dinner or theater wear. Some are suitable for formal occasions, this matter being determined by the dress decolletage more than line or material.

A long train that looks as if it had been shirred is the distinctive touch on a long, slinky white satin evening gown. Twisted black velvet flowers, knotted and bunched at the throat, form the most effective contrast imaginable. The black highlights the wearer's face much more flatteringly than the unadorned white satin would do.

Ermine trims the decolletage of another interesting evening gown. Black crepe, in dull, suave finish makes the gown. The perfect accessories to be worn with it are white gloves and dull white crepe envelope bag.

What Today Means

"Scorpio."

If November 2 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 10:45 a. m. to 12 noon, from 3:30 to 4:30 p. m., and from 7 to 8 p. m. The danger periods are from 8 to 10 a. m., from 2:15 to 2:50 p. m. and from 6 to 6:30 p. m.

Influences operating on this date will tend to keep people in friendly relations with one another. A general spirit of cooperation will prevail and where results are dependent on teamwork no fear need be held for the outcome. Be careful for what you put in writing on this date; future analysis under changed circumstances may result in a monetary loss.

The child born on this November 2 in all probability will not care a great deal what kind of an impression he makes on those about him. He must be taught to value the good opinion of others, but not to fear public opinion. He will not be one to cause his parents many heartaches, and when detained for any reason, he will be found to be the type who always reports his whereabouts.

Born on November 2, you are the type of person who needs only to get a foothold in some kind of business in order to make a success. You are more than likely a real go-getter, the type who starts in as office boy and ends up by holding down a big executive position. You have respect for those more experienced in the world than you, but you know that they are human and often make mistakes, so you do not stand in awe of them.

You have ideas of your own and you are not afraid to talk them over with others; you are not afraid of being ridiculed. It is your feeling that any man who has brains enough to think up a scheme now and then ought to have a chance of getting one across in a big way if he keeps on trying. You are quick to spot faulty methods of doing work, and, better still, your mind works constructively and manages to turn out ideas to remedy the faulty situation.

Born on November 2, you are not content to sit back and wait for things to come your way. You know everybody, and you know them in a friendly way; what is more, everybody knows you. Defeat barely slows you up; you bounce back like a rubber ball. Even in matters of love, you go out and get just what you want. You will more than get by in any company. You are a little slow in meeting your obligations and you are at times lax in the handling of money matters. Look out for flattery.

Successful people born on November 2:

Artist in Wool, Mrs. Coates Abandons Desk for Hand Loom

Mrs. Amelia W. Coates gave up work in a Government office for work on a hand loom. Now she is head of an atelier, where fabrics as beautiful as the priceless hand-woven ones of the middle ages are turned out. Washington women, appreciative of her genius, call her a "painter in wool."

Woman Who Once Was Chained to Dull Routine. Now Weaves Beauty.

A woman who took up hand weaving as a hobby to relieve the dull grind of monotonous work in a government position, now manages a great work shop that rivals those of the medieval crafts.

As weavers of the middle ages fashioned tapestries for baronial halls and robes for noble ladies, so Mrs. Amelia W. Coates creates the wonderful fabrics that are worn by prominent Washingtonians at diplomatic and social functions, as well as the scarves and samplers that ornament their homes.

Seven looms are operated by Mrs. Coates and her assistants, three in Mrs. Coates' Washington home, four in her atelier in Warrenton, Va. They turn out materials for suits and dresses, counterpanes, drapes, bridge and luncheon sets. The beauty of the fabrics has earned for their designer the right to be called a "painter in wool."

From Small Beginning.

In her work Mrs. Coates finds infinite enjoyment and satisfaction.

"At first I bought my loom for pleasure, little dreaming to what it would eventually lead," she explained yesterday as she sat at her loom, deftly plying the shuttle back and forth. "I experimented with it a few months, and became so fascinated that I decided to devote more time to it."

Her slender body bent forward to inspect a thread, her blue eyes eagerly waiting to see the result of her work.

She smiled quietly. "You know, working the loom is a splendid nerve tonic and muscle builder, and it satisfies the need for fashioning something useful, beautiful and tangible. It has cured me of many a case of the blues."

From the Far East diplomats come and buy her scarfs and shawls. The daughter of a Chinese official wears hand-loomed things from Mrs. Coates' shop. In the trunk of the former Ambassador Maki were nine of her shawls when he sailed for his native land.

Not only the Oriental celebrities buy her products. The wardrobes of Mrs. Calvin Coolidge and Mrs. Herbert Hoover contain garments woven by Mrs. Coates.

Light as Gossamer.

One of Mrs. Coates' creations is a large shawl, soft and light as gossamer, with a background of yellow, bordered with goldenrod and purple asters. Another is a sport costume of creamy fabric, edged with delicately blended pastel shades. Still others include coarse-weave linen and cotton luncheon sets, that are woven with color schemes to match the customer's china.

Hand-weaving such as these modern ladies of the loom are turning out is in reality as old as time. The primitive woman who had no loom ingeniously used her body as such by tying one end of the cotton warp to her foot, the other to her waist. In southern China silk was woven as far back as 5,000 years ago. Weaving reached its highest degree of workmanship, perhaps, in the form of tapestry. Especially marvelous are the Gobelin tapestries in France.

But even with the coming of the machine, hand-weaving has lost none of its demand. As long as people see and know beauty, they will want beauty in this form. Like the women of old, Mrs. Coates' agile fingers tie the threads that hold the loveliness within the cloth, and beauty seekers can own the "paintings in wool" that equal those hanging in museums.

Hugh S. Johnson's Pioneer Mother Here to Back NRA

Oklahoma Woman's Flint-Like Courage Helped to Conquer Wilderness.

(Associated Press.)

At this important hour in his NRA career, Hugh S. Johnson has with him a champion sturdy and forceful, his Oklahoma-pioneering mother, Mrs. Samuel Johnson.

"The NRA? Why, it's got to go!" said she, with the sweet and sunny but flint-firm manner that characterizes women who actually took part in prairie conquest.

"People who are making such a rumpus about its failing now would themselves have failed long ago if it had not been for the NRA!"

Seventy-eight-year-old Mrs. Johnson, who has been happily sightseeing in Washington, had a date today with a man she admires almost as much as she does her son—President Roosevelt.

She tried to appear off-hand about it, and she said she wasn't even going to crimp her hair. But her blue eyes, shining brightly, betrayed her eager anticipation. She frankly admitted that when she has made that White House visit, she is ready to go back to her home in Okmulgee, Okla.

A type to delight history-loving President Roosevelt is Mrs. Johnson, who, like the son she calls "Hughie," doesn't bother with the "t" in the name that some of her sons and grandsons carry.

"I've been lady of the house since I was 12 years old," she said. "My mother died, and I had two brothers and two sisters to care for. And I've survived them all. It's lonely, being the last.

"I was born and reared, and married in Illinois, and as a young bride I went to Fort Scott, Kans.—There Hughie was born."

"I made one NRA speech at Alva, Okla., right where we went when they opened up the Cherokee Strip. That was in 1893—September—the awfullest weather I ever saw. It was blowing dirt for days, and then a rain came along to make the dirt mud. Nobody had a stick nor a stone. Everything they had they brought right with them.

"We had a carload of furniture from Wichita, and lumber for a house—unloaded 'em down there in the wind and dirt and the rain. We were best fixed of anybody—we even had a baby buggy and a baby!

"I tied my sunbonnet on a stake to make a claim. But it was jumped. That was all right, I wasn't entitled to it anyhow because I was a 'Sooner.' I came in there the night before I was supposed to. I shouldn't have been let off the train, but it was such bad weather, and I had two babies.

"My husband had been appointed by Cleveland as postmaster at Alva, and he didn't take a homestead either. The way we got our homestead was by buying it later."

Mrs. Johnson finds solace in her Bible daily, scorns cigarette smoking for women, remains true to her pioneer traditions.

Local Best-Sellers.

Best-sellers of the week ending October 27, as reported by Brentano's, 1322 F street:

Fiction.

"Anthony Adverse," by Hervey Allen; Farrar & Rinehart.

"One More River," by John Galsworthy; Scribner.

"Vanessa," by Hugh Walpole; Doubleday Doran.

"Oil for the Lamps of China," by Alice T. Hobart; Bobbs Merrill.

"No Castle in Spain," by William McFee; Doubleday Doran.

"Gay Life," by E. M. Delafield; Harper.

Nonfiction.

"Happy Days," by Ogden Nash; Simon & Schuster.

"My Battle," by Adolph Hitler; Houghton Mifflin.

"Life Begins at Forty," by Walter B. Pitkin; Whittlesey House.

"Flush," by Virginia Woolf; Harcourt Brace.

"More Power to You," by Walter B. Pitkin; Simon & Schuster.

"Hudson River Landings," by Paul Wilstach; Bobbs Merrill.

It may be noted that Pendleton Hogan's "The Bishop of Havana," which led the fiction list last week, has disappeared and left the three runners-up in the same order, and that Walter B. Pitkin's "Life Begins at Forty," which was written a year ago, is outselling his recent "More Power to You."

Everlastings and Feathery Statice Flowers Deck Winter Windows.

"I like that," said the Marketer, indicating a little basket of flowers. "What kind of flowers are those?"

"Everlasting," said the market lady, "and the white feathery ones are statice flowers."

"Do you fix the basket yourself?" the Marketer asked.

"Oh, yes. The flowers don't need any water, and will last indefinitely." The market lady took down the little bouquet for the Marketer's closer inspection.

"That's so lovely," the Marketer mused. "Wouldn't it be pretty in a window sill with the sun shining on it?"

The little floral bouquet, brown-woven basket and all is 35 cents. Larger ones are 50 cents.

One market florist has big bunches of chrysanthemums for 50 cents. You could cover your house with them for little money. They are so cheery, too—gold and russet colors, perfect for autumn.

The Marketer cast a last look at the flower stall and turned to the vegetables and fruits. They looked like big bouquets, too, all green and orange, purple and red. String beans, 10 cents a pound; carrots, 2 bunches for 15 cents or 5 cents a pound, loose; peas, 10 cents a pound; lettuce, 10 cents a head; grapefruit, 4 for 25 cents. A 3-quart basket of Concord and Niagara grapes, mixed, is 25 cents. Oranges, 15 and 20 cents a dozen.

At a market bakery you can get a fresh cherry or pineapple sponge cake for 10 cents. Angel cakes are 10 and 19 cents. Fruit cakes are 25 cents for the light and 30 cents for the dark.

What's this odd-looking meat loaf? The market butcher called it souse.

With a sly wink, he assured the Marketer that it is not intoxicating, but is made of pig's knuckles. It resembles a chicken loaf, 25 cents a pound. Pork sausage in bulk is 20 cents a pound. Canadian bacon that comes in a roll like salami is 35 cents a pound. It is nearly all lean meat.

The plate beef for today's stew at a Southwest market is 8 cents a pound.

Beef Stew.

1½ lbs. beef
3 medium potatoes, diced.
3 carrots, diced
3 onions, sliced
2 teaspoons salt
¼ teaspoon pepper
4 cups boiling water

Trim the fat from the meat, and place in frying pan over low heat until fat has melted; remove the crisp tissue. Cut the meat into 1 to 1½ inch cubes; brown the meat in the hot fat. Transfer the hot meat to a kettle; rinse the frying pan with boiling water; pour the water over the meat; add the salt and pepper. Simmer until the meat is tender or about 2 hours. Add the diced potatoes, carrots and sliced onions; cook until vegetables are tender or about 20 minutes. It may be necessary to add more water during the cooking period. Thicken the stew by adding 2 tablespoons of flour which has been mixed into a paste with water and stir—until the stew boils.

Brown Rice Is Healthful
RUTH CHAMBERS

Dear Madam:

We all like, naturally, the beautiful white appearance and the lightness and fluffiness of Comet White Rice. It is a healthy food too, but today I want to mention particularly the added healthfulness of Comet Brown Rice. This is to the rice family what whole wheat is to the wheat family, only more rich in minerals and in Vitamin B, as well as containing Vitamines A and C. Comet Brown Rice is remarkably energy building for both children and grown-ups and so needed these days.

I am going to demonstrate daily how Comet Brown Rice can be cooked to be as delicious and appetizing as white—how the rich, natural, nutty flavor can be brought out. Won't you please come?

Of course, Comet White Rice is the favorite of all homes and so the many, many marvelous new dishes it will make, combined with meat, vegetables and fruits will be demonstrated. Comet, as a thirty year old brand name for quality rice, is emphasized because Comet Rice is always uniform, always cooks right.

Whatever way you like to cook rice you will be delighted with the Comet Rice Ball method of cooking. I've had the most unusual experience in the tremendously expressed popularity, during the daily classes, of this remarkable device. They can be bought at regular stores where they sell up to 50c, but by special arrangement this week, if you want one, send a coupon, obtained from most grocers or the top of a Comet Rice package with 30c to the Comet Rice Company, 190 Franklin St., New York City. The Comet Rice Ball will be sent to you postpaid.

Two more days of the cooking school, today and tomorrow!

Sincerely,
RUTH CHAMBERS.

All Washington grocers have Comet Rice—get your package today and use the coupon or top of package for special price on a Comet Rice Ball.

Stocks Begin Month With 1.3 Points Rise

Mines Spurt Starts Rally; Trading Advances to 1,147,130 Shares.

New York, Nov. 1 (AP).—Stocks began the new month with a net advance in the averages today. The rise came just before the close when mining issues, which had been strong during earlier indecision by other sections, put on a fresh spurt.

The rally, however, did not get under way until the final dealings. It left metals 1 to nearly 7 points higher and brought an assortment of 1 to 2 point gains for rails and industrials. Utilities was a bit soft.

Dollar exchange declined more emphatically than of late as the R. F. C. again jacked up its domestic gold price. French francs at one time were more than a tenth of a cent higher and sterling rose a few cents. Speculative quarters, however, seemed particularly interested in Wall street rumors that the Government might buy silver as well as gold. Silver stocks were strong and the market for that metal tilted upward.

Advance Comes Late.

Until the belated advance, stocks found it difficult to move more than fractionally in either direction. By earlier afternoon the trend was somewhat lower, but volume was too small to be indicative of anything except the hesitancy that has recently characterized the market operations of professional and other traders.

Wheat's decline was attributed here to private crop estimates, indicating little reduction in winter crop plantings; once the break started stop-loss orders extended losses, but the stock market took this setback calmly. Sales totaled 1,147,130 shares.

Favorites in the mining sector were U. S. Smelting, up 6¾; International Silver, up 5; American Smelting, up 4⅝; Cerro de Pasco, up 3⅞. Most of the others rose major fractions to more than a point. Alcohols also were bought. U. S. Steel, after some uncertainty, firmed a point, while General Motors, Du Pont, Case, United Aircraft, American Can, Westinghouse, Sears Roebuck and Montgomery Ward were up a point or two. Rails moved rather narrowly. Estimates place last week's traffic 2 or 3 per cent above a year ago.

Phone Regains Loss.

American Telephone slumped 2, then got back half its loss. Consolidated Gas of New York reached a new low for the year before much support appeared and was down a major fraction on the day. Electric power production last week improved a bit over the week before, which was in accordance with seasonal experience; the gain over last year was minutely reduced by comparison with the previous week.

Other trade sidelights included the usual midweek comment by Iron Age. This publication found that demand for most forms of finished steel continued to fall off. The industry, it said, has been encouraged by the prospect of rail orders, but expects no great stimulation from automobile makers until late December, since most of the makers anticipated their needs some time ago.

Presumably, similar anticipating was done by numerous other industries, which partly accounts for recent industrial trends. The upward surge of two and three months ago could hardly have been expected to escape such a reaction as has been experienced.

Foreign Cooperation on Money

Not Feasible Unless We Abandon New Policy for Raising Prices

By Ralph West Robey.

If the United States Government seriously is contemplating cooperation with foreign nations in the handling of monetary policy it is a cause for much financial rejoicing. Such cooperation would assure that we would not indulge in currency welfare; that we would not undermine the value of our currency here or abroad; that we would follow methods of raising prices which would not result in a quick collapse; that we, in short, would work with other nations in a cooperative attempt to restore the gold standard.

At the same time, it should be emphasized that such cooperation is not possible if we continue the policy enunciated by President Roosevelt in his radio speech a week ago Sunday, and as modified this past week-end by the decision to buy gold in foreign markets. This policy is the antithesis of international cooperation. It is currency warfare. Necessarily the warfare need not be vicious or violent. To this extent that the policy is followed at all, however, it goes contrary to the best interest of foreign nations.

Our Policy Consists of Undermining Exchange Rates.

Our policy, in other words, is not one of trying to steady foreign exchange rates. Rather, it is a policy of depreciating the dollar—depreciating it in terms of its purchasing power and in terms of foreign currencies. This means that foreign currencies might rise. As they rise, it is more difficult for foreign nations to sell goods abroad and consequently their international trade shrinks.

Contrasted with such a policy has been the operation of the exchange equalization fund of England. That fund was created to stabilize pounds sterling in the exchange markets. It has not been a fund used to drive sterling lower and lower in an attempt to raise the British price level. Quite the contrary, its underlying purpose seems to have been to contribute to the steadiness of prices in England by removing the trade handicap of violently fluctuating day to day exchange rates.

Cooperation Probably Would Involve Equalization Fund.

Were we to cooperate with foreign nations it probably would take the form of being a party to an international equalization fund. Through this an attempt would be made to keep all the major currencies in more or less constant relationship. At first this might be difficult, because it is not easy to determine the exact point at which pounds or francs should be selling on the basis of the condition of the country, but with a little experimenting the proper level could be found. Once it was found, stabilization and a return to a gold standard would become feasible.

Such a return to a gold standard should be our goal. It need not be the gold standard as we knew it before 1929, but it must be a standard which gives us some stability of our currency. Otherwise we will continue to suffer from the hesitancy of business men to enter into long-term contracts.

It is useless to talk of international cooperation and a return to a gold standard, however, so long as we persist in our determination to raise prices by manipulating the price of gold. The two lines of action can not be followed at the same time. If we enter into cooperation with foreign nations, accordingly, it will mean not that there has been another modification in our newly adopted monetary policy but that the policy as enunciated by the President has been abandoned.

Bond Market Continues Sag On Light Sales

Government Loans Enter Firmer Ground; Dealing, $9,238,000.

New York, Nov. 1 (AP).—The bond market continued to be affected by general lassitude today, as prices worked lower under the smallest volume of trading in some time.

Certain groups, for a time at least, showed signs of shaking off their recent heaviness. U. S. Governments, which had been soft for some time, entered firmer territory during the forenoon, but yielded virtually all of their gains in the late trading. High grade corporation loans, despite general inactivity, displayed a good tone.

The average of 60 representative corporate issues was down .4 of a point, an exact duplicate of their perfomance on Tuesday. Transfers amounted to about $9,238,000 compared with $10,009,000 on the previous day.

Coincident with the reactionary trend in the Federal list in the late trading, various foreign issues, particularly the Europeans, moved forward spiritedly in sympathy with a sharp advance in the gold currencies. French, British, Swiss, German and other continental loans were prominent in this late upsurge. South American categories were irregular.

Many of the secondary loans, including rails, utilities and industrials, appeared to react to the rather disappointing tone of the mid week trade reviews. A number of the carrier issues gave up 1 to 2 points and the other groups also contributed a considerable number of losses.

A thirty-point jump in Mobile & Ohio general 4s of 1938 followed an announcement that receivers for the road, under order of the Federal Court, would retire $540,000 of the bonds out of Treasury funds.

Shipbuilding Company Places Large Orders

Camden, N. J., Nov. 1 (AP).—E. I. Cornbrooks, vice president and general manager of the New York Shipbuilding Co., said today the company has ordered approximately $8,000,000 worth of material since August 3 to be used in building six vessels for the Government.

He said additional orders would be placed soon.

The Dance of the Dollar

	Nov. 1	Oct. 31	Oct. 25	Oct. 4
Gold value of dollar (per cent of mint par)	65.5	66.5	66.7	64.7
Official price newly mined gold	$32.26	$32.12	$31.36	$31.79
Franc rate (in cents)	5.98	5.89	5.87	6.05
Sterling rate (in cents per pound)	479.30	476.49	475.59	476.20

Trade Trends.

(Associated Press.)

Gasoline—Markets are reported steady despite the seasonal contraction in consumption. Above 65 octane material is well held at 6½-7 cents a gallon in tank car lots.

Dyestuffs—The trade hears that producers' stocks are small. Prices are firm and holders are said to be reluctant to close contracts for 1934 despite a fair number of inquiries from consuming sources.

Lead—Books have been opened for December shipment, but only a small tonnage has been placed so far. Prices are unchanged, at 4.30 cents a pound, New York, and 4.15 cents, East St. Louis.

Wool—Demand is slow in leading primary markets, being confined mainly to small piecing out orders. Prices have receded slightly in the pulled wool group, but are firm in other grades.

Cotton yarn—Prices have softened during the past week in the face of steadiness in raw material prices. It is reported that competition among producers for new business is keener than at any time since the sharp contraction in buying two months ago.

Wall Street Briefs.

New York, Nov. 1 (AP).—The Dun & Bradstreet food index rose 2 cents to $1.91 in the week ended October 31, reflecting, said the agency, "the upward swing of commodity prices since the inauguration of the administration's new monetary policy." The level was the same a month ago, but represents an increase of 16.5 per cent over the corersponding week of 1932.

Freight traffic on the Chesapeake & Ohio Railway's own lines totaled 104,489 cars in October, compared with 105,241 in September, and 110,445 in October, 1932.

A marked swing to the purchase of annuities is indicated by the November 1 report of the Church Life Insurance Corporation, subsidiary of the church pension fund of the Protestant Episcopal Church. The volume of annuities contracted for in October was 241 per cent greater than a year ago, and also amounted to more than 20 per cent of the total issue since the corporation was formed in 1932.

Directors of United Aircraft & Transport Corporation today authorized redemption on January 1 of the outstanding 150,000 shares of the company's 6 per cent preferred stock at the redemption price of $55.75 a share.

The New York Stock Exchange today approved listing of 496,450 shares of common stock of the Pierce Arrow Motor Car Co. The stock is being issued under the company's plan of recapitalization. It has a par value of $5.

Favorable dividend changes in October were nearly double the unfavorable actions, according to a compilation by the Standard Statistics Co., showing 66 cases of increased, resumed, extra and initial disbursements, as against 37 decreases and omissions. The record is in sharp contrast to that of October, 1932, when unfavorable revisions totaled 88, compared with 35 favorable changes.

Stock transactions on the New York Stock Exchange in October, as compiled by the exchange, totaled 39,372,212 shares, against 43,433,974 in September.

Sugar consumption in the United States during September amounted to 512,673 long tons, raw sugar value, compared with 536,871 tons consumed during September, 1932, B. W. Dyer & Co., sugar brokers, reported today.

With the publication tomorrow of the operating results of the U. S. Steel Corporation, for the September 30 quarter virtually all of the major industrial corporations will have reported for that period. Wall street has not submitted many estimates of the steel corporation's income figures, but it is expected in most quarters that the statement will be considerably better than those reported for the preceding quarter and for the September quarter last year.

A compilation by the Standard Statistics Co. shows that the combined earnings of 89 industrial companies for the first nine months this year were $191,000,000 compared with $73,651,000 for the corresponding period of 1932, a gain of 160 per cent.

The New York Joint Stock Land Bank has requested holders of its bonds to accept a reduction in interest for the next five years from 5 per cent to 2½ per cent annually. This petition is embodied in a plan for conserving the bank's assets pending ultimate liquidation as necessitated under the farm relief act.

Freight loadings on the Chicago & North Western System last week totaled 23,108 cars, compared with 23,428 in the preceding week, and 22,853 in the same week last year.

Freight loadings of the St. Paul Railroad last week amounted to 24,652 cars, compared with 24,554 the previous week, and 24,832 a year ago.

The American Institute of Steel Construction reports that 84 per cent of the industry had September bookings of 57,642 tons; compared with 78,379 in August. Shipments amounted to 64,362 tons, against 67,913 the previous month.

C. & O. Rail Loadings Drop to 30,872 Cars

New York, Nov. 1 (AP).—Chesapeake & Ohio Railway last week handled 30,872 cars of freight, compared with 31,229 the previous week and 30,534 a year ago.

Revenue cars handled by Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe Railroad for week ended October 28 totaled 27,896, compared with 28,345 a week ago and 28,801 in the same week last year.

Business Notes.

(Associated Press.)

Orders for about 800,000 tons of steel by the railroads was predicted today by Washington officials as a result of the Administration's compromise with steel companies for a price of $36.37½ a ton. The companies were forced to reduce the price from 40. An increase in both steel mill and railroad employment was expected to follow the orders.

Chicago, Nov. 1 (AP).—Sales of new automobiles in the United States in the first nine months of 1933 exceeded by 100,000 units the total sales for all of 1932, R. L. Polk & Co. reported today. Motor truck sales also showed an increase.

(Associated Press.)

A substantial increase in automotive exports was announced today by the Department of Commerce. The report said exports totaled $8,610,000 for September, compared with 5,258,269 for the month last year.

Chicago, Nov. 1 (AP).—John W. O'Leary, president of the Machinery and Allied products group, said today the United States will have fallen $40,000,000,000 behind its capital goods requirements by the end of 1933. He said the slack had been piling up since 1929.

New York, Nov. 1 (AP).—President L. A. Downs of the Illinois Central Railroad said today he believed the road soon would place an order for 20,000 tons of steel rails at the new price agreed upon after conferences between the National administration and the steel companies.

Government Bond Firm Opens Second Branch

New York, Nov. 1.—Announcement is made by C. P. Devine & Co., Inc., specialists in United States Government securities, of the opening of its second branch office in the last five months. The last addition is a Philadelphia office, under the supervision of J. Ryan Smith, vice president, assisted by Robert W. Tyson and Stewart A. Dunn, the office being located in the Fidelity-Philadelphia Trust Building.

On September 5 the firm, which began business in New York only last June, opened a Boston branch, with Leslie A. Tucker and George W. Garvin in charge. The New York office has more than doubled its personnel since the formation of the firm last June.

Chicago to Start Huge Construction Project

Chicago, Nov. 1 (AP).—Edward M. Craig, secretary of the building construction employers' association, today said that more than $20,000,000 in public and private construction work would get under way in the Chicago area within the next 30 days pouring one-half of the amount directly into pockets of 15,000 persons in the building craft.

Rail Income Statements.

New York, Nov. 1 (AP).—September operating incomes of three roads reporting today follow: Louisville & Nashville, $1,439,447 against $1,318,178 in 1932; Denver & Rio Grande Western, $637,305 against $651,960 in 1932; Western Maryland, $429,115 against $424,427.

Curb's Prices Renew Climb On Late Buying

Mines and Alcohols Lead Rise; Sales Mount to 173,000 Shares.

New York, Nov. 1 (AP).—Late buying in mining and alcohol shares helped the curb market to a better close today after an early dribble of selling had given the list an unfavorable appearance. Trading was exceedingly dull at periods but showed a slight inclination to broaden in the final dealings.

Newmont Mining closed 2 points higher, while advances of a point or more were recorded by Hiram Walker and National Distillers (new). Consolidated Mining rose 4 points in light dealings.

Both utilities and oils closed mildly irregular. Electric Bond & Share and Standard Oil of Indiana finished minor fractions higher but moderate recessions occurred in American Gas & Electric and Humble Oil. Parker Rust Proof was a firm spot on declaration of a 75 cent extra dividend while Aluminum Co. of America also improved. Singer was heavy.

Transfers approximated 173,000 shares compared with 157,000 yesterday.

German Trade Balance Cut 50 Per Cent

Germany's favorable balance of trade for the first eight months of the current year was 50 per cent less than that recorded for the corresponding period of 1932, according to a report from Vice Consul Henry P. Leverich, Berlin, made public by the Commerce Department.

Converted into dollars, the report shows, Germany's excess of exports over imports in the 1933 period was $90,968,000 as compared with $182,223,000 for the first eight months of 1932.

The total foreign trade of Germany during the period January-August, 1933, was valued at $1,421,815,000, approximately 14 per cent less than the $1,651,440 registered for the corresponding period of last year. Exports totaled $756,475,000 against $916,831,000 during the first eight months of 1932, a decrease of 17.4 per cent. Imports of $665,507,000 were 9½ per cent less than the $734,609,000 of the corresponding period of 1932.

Sales Drive Is Planned By Pineapple Growers

Chicago, Nov. 1.—Recalling the success of its 1932-33 program, the Pineapple Producers Cooperative Association, Ltd., comprising seven leading Hawaiian packers, today announced another powerful advertising campaign starting November 13, and confidently predicted that "packers' stocks are none too large to meet the demands of the next 12 months."

As in their initial sales effort, launched in November, 1932, the cooperative's advertising will be based upon the newly discovered dietetic values in pineapples, with authoritative advice to eat canned pineapple every day. In addition, the copy will personalize the "Pineapple for Health" message by featuring persons of radiant health and presenting evidence that dietetic values, of which canned pineapple is a source, contribute to increased vitality.

Farm Price Level Unchanged.

(Associated Press.)

The index of the Bureau of Agricultural Economics yesterday showed farm prices and the costs of goods bought by the farmer held the same relationship on October 15 as on September 15. During the month wheat declined 11 per cent, corn 17 per cent. Cotton showed a slight advance.

Wool Market.

Boston, Nov. 1 (A.P.) (U. S. Dept. Agri.).—Scattered sales of small volume are being closed in the wool market. Strictly combing 56s, ¾-blood territory wool moved this week at 76@79 cents scoured basis. Graded strictly combing 64s and finer territory wools have brought 82@84 cents scoured basis. Eight months Texas wool has recently been sold at 7.57@7.76 cents scoured basis. These occasional transactions, however, do not indicate any general pick-up in trading but they do emphasize the firmness of prices in spite of the very drassy demand for wool.

Cotton Rallies In Buying After Early Decline

December Sells at 9.55 as Market Is Unchanged to 4 Points Up.

New York, Nov. 1 (AP).—Cotton sold off today on the weakness in wheat, but rallied on trade buying and covering, reaching the best prices of the day in the late trading.

December contracts sold off from 9.54 to 9.40 and rallied to 9.56, closing at 9.55. The general market ended very steady, net unchanged to 4 points higher.

Under comparatively quiet trading the market held within 4 or 5 points of yesterday's closing quotations during the forenoon.

Later Markets Break.

Later the market broke under increased offerings following the early afternoon decline in wheat. May sold off from 9.87 to 9.75 under this pressure, but these prices uncovered trade buying orders, part of which appeared to be coming from the Far East.

Covering was also promoted by the late rally in wheat and the firmer turn in the stock market. Active months generally showed recoveries of 14 to 16 points from the lowest. Closing quotations were within a point or two of the best.

A private crop report placed the indicated yield at 13,487,000. Another pointed to a crop of 13,418,000 bales, compared with last month's Government estimate of 12,885,000.

Exports today, 11,943, making 2,394,305 so far this season. Port receipts, 35,082. Port stocks, 3,965,948.

Cottonseed Oil.

Bleachable cottonseed oil today was easy under increased liquidation and commission house selling, promoted by the disappointing action of the grain market. Final prices were 2 to 7 points net lower on active positions. Sales, 24 contracts. Bleachable spot nominal. December closed 4.48; January, 4.60; March, 4.77; May, 4.93.

German Bond Coupon Offer Being Pushed

New York, Nov. 1.—German bond coupons matured since last June, on which no payments have been made since the German transfer moratorium of June 9, 1933, beginning yesterday, are being taken up in London and other European centers in accordance with the Reichsbank plan. In view of this fact and of widespread inquiry from American coupon holders as to when the plan would be available to them, Ralph Crane, on behalf of the group of firms and institutions which issued German bonds, made the following statement:

"Every effort is being made to make the offer of 50 per cent cash and 50 per cent Reichsmark scrip promptly available to American coupon holders. It is understood that the funds for the 50 per cent cash portion have been set aside with the Reichsbank and that the scrip is ready to be shipped. In addition, the American issue houses have obtained from the German Goldiscount Bank its authority to announce on its behalf that every American bondholder will have the opportunity of selling, at 50 per cent of par, the Reichsmark scrip issued in respect of the period from July 1 to December 31, 1933. While the German authorities had previously intimated their intention to seek to make available such an offer for scrip, no categorical assurance had heretofore been received that every American bondholder would be able to sell his scrip at 50 per cent of par in dollars.

"There is thus good ground to believe that every bondholder desirapproximately 75 per cent of the ing to do so can obtain in dollars, amount due on coupons maturing during the six months' period ending December 31, 1933. An exception is, of course, the bonds of German debtors who for financial or other reasons, may not have deposited with the German Bank the full amount due in Reichsmarks in accordance with the normal procedure contemplated by German law.

"The delay in making the German offer presently available in this country is due to the necessity of registering the Reichsmark scrip under the securities act. As to this, a number of steps have still to be taken, and there is a 20-day statutory lapse between the date of filing the definite registration certificate and effective registration. Assuming no unexpected delays or obstacles, the scheme may be put in operation in this country by about the middle of December."

Prices of Tobacco Reach New Highs

Danville, Va., Nov. 1 (Spl.).—Improvements in the tobacco offerings here during the past two days have driven tobacco prices to levels not seen since antedepression days, the local market average yesterday for over 800,000 pounds being $17.25 per 100 pounds.

Gradual elimination of the poor types of leaf usually disposed of first by the farmers resulted in the best price showing Danville has recorded this year. All of the large domestic and independent companies are buying smoking types freely and some good quality cigar wrappers have brought the farmers 70 cents a pound.

Bankers noted increases in the average run of checks and wholesale and retail establishments enjoyed the first serious buying movement by the agricultural element in over a year.

National Steel Net for 1933 Is $2,569,876

Profit Represents Gain Over Last Year; Cigar Loss Reported.

New York, Nov. 1 (AP).—National Steel Corporation today reported net profit of $756,865 for the quarter ended September 30, equal to 35 cents a share, compared with $1,532,466, or 71 cents a share, in the preceding quarter, and $155,015, or 7 cents a share, in the September quarter of 1932.

For the first nine months of 1933 net profit totaled $2,569,876, equivalent to $1.19 a share, against $1,308,874, or 60 cents a share, in the corresponding period of last year. Ernest T. Weir, chairman, said third-quarter earnings were affected by the wage increase effective July 16, which added to expenses an amount equal to 40 cents a share for the period without any offset through increased selling prices. Another factor, he said, was the labor difficulty at the company's Weirton, W. Va., plant, which started late in September.

General Cigar Co. estimates its net loss for the quarter ended September 30 at $242,619, compared with profit of $330,855 for the preceding quarter and profit of $636,246 in the September quarter of 1932. Estimated net profit for the first nine months of this year was $198,438, equal to $3.97 a preferred share, against $1,420,179, or $2.44 a common share, in the comparable 1932 period.

American Light & Traction Co. in the twelve months ended September 30, had net income of $5,532,838, equivalent to $1.71 a common share, compared with $7,529,240, or $2.43 a share in the year ended September 30, 1932.

San Francisco, Nov. 1 (AP).—Standard oil Co. of California declared the usual quarterly dividend on the reduced basis of 25 cents a share, and issued an earnings statement today showing profit of $4,674,102 for the third quarter, or 35.7 cents a share. The dividend is payable December 15 to stockholders of record November 15.

Earnings were more than double the second quarter net of 14.6 cents, but a little less than the 38.9 cents of the third quarter of last year.

Net profit from nine months operations this year was $5,873,516, or 4.8 cents a share, compared with $12,013,385 in the 1932 period, or 91.7 cents a share.

New York, Nov. 1 (AP).—Shell Union Oil Corporation today reported net profit of $4,536,631 for the quarter ended September 30. This contrasts with losses of $4,865,837 in the year's second quarter and $162,593 in the third quarter of 1932.

The gain in the third quarter, a statement by the company said, "represents more than a mere seasonal improvement, and is largely the result of a better price structure."

On September 30 cash, short-term deposits and United States Government security holdings of the corporation amounted to $27,553,776.

New York, Nov. 1 (AP).—Directors of the Standard Oil Co. of New Jersey today ordered the regular semi-annual dividend of. 50 cents on the capital stock, payable December 15 to stock of record November 15.

The company inaugurated dividends on a semiannual basis last June when a similar payment was authorized. Previously dividends were paid quarterly and were reduced to a $1 annual basis from $1 regular and $1 extra on February 1, last.

Bankers Urge U. S. Help in Foreign Loans

Hot Springs, Va., Nov. 1 (AP).—Government cooperation in foreign lending and possible expansion of foreign lending was recommended today by the foreign securities committee of the National Investment Bankers Association convention.

After stating that the present is probably an unfavorable time to organize bondholders' committees to act for American interests in defaulted foreign securities, now totaling more than $2,000,000,000, the committee said:

"Based on a study of the experience of Great Britain over a period of many years, your committee believes that the present distressing situation surrounding many of the loans made by the United States should not be permitted to discourage a dispassionate consideration of future policy.

"A development of factual studies of the record may well show the advantages of foreign lending by the United States to outweigh the disadvantages, and more considered policy of foreign loaning, benefitting by the mistakes of the past, be advisable of adoption under some form of control, whereby these loaning operations become an integral part of the monetary and trade policy of our government."

The committee's report did not state how such a policy should be worked out, but said more studies were in progress to help show the way. The committee recommended that the association cooperate with the United States foreign bondholders' committee projected by President Roosevelt, but said it would be most "unfortunate if the impression became prevalent that its efforts necessarily should be productive of immediate results in the form of tangible returns to bondholders."

The committee also referred to Senate investigation of securities and reported that a study of the investigation's testimony showed no exorbitant profits had been made on such issues.

Canada Sees Better Business.

Montreal, Nov. 1 (UP).—Improvement in unemployment and business conditions in most sections of Canada was reported at a meeting of the Dominion Executive of the Canadian Manufacturers Association here.

November Month of Rich Promise in the Theater—New Screen and Stage Bills

After a Tardy Start, Season Gathers Speed

Awaited Events Are Near; "Footlight Parade" Is Here; "Rodney."

As the month of November gets under way, the amusement outlook in the Capital is particularly bright.

Hard on the heels of the road-show engagement of Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's picturization of the Edna Ferber-George S. Kaufman stage hit, "Dinner at Eight," at the National, will come Pola Negri in the long-awaited "A Trip to Pressburg," which will be followed in due course by the new comedy, "We Meet Again," with Spring Byington, last seen here in "When Ladies Meet," a repertoire week of the Gilbert and Sullivan operas and other attractions worthy of note, foremost among them Eva Le Gallienne and her excellent company in "Alice in Wonderland" and "Romeo and Juliet."

Despite the fact that Miss Le Gallienne packed the theater at every performance during her Boston engagement at the $2.50 scale of prices, she has laid down the ultimatum that that scale is too high, the times being what they are, and that when she plays Washington no ticket shall be priced above $2.20. This, of course, presages sell-out business throughout her engagement at the National.

Pictures Also Notable.

Among the motion picture interests enthusiasm runs quite as high.

City Manager Carter Barron of the Loew houses in Washington shrinkingly points out that if all the Nation's Thanksgiving turkeys were to be piled high on a single table they would hardly make a feast more inviting than the November repast of picture hits scheduled for presentation at Loew's Fox and Palace Theaters.

Mae West's inflammable "I'm No Angel," at the Palace, will be followed by "The Prize Fighter and the Lady," with Myrna Loy, Walter Huston, World's Champion Primo Carnera, heavyweight contender Max Baer and Jack Dempsey in the cast.

Maxine Doyle, the big dramatic actress and screen star, formerly mistress of ceremonies at the Earle, writes from her native California, that "The Prize Fighter and the Lady," in preview in Hollywood, proved a veritable "knockout," affording Myrna Loy the finest opportunity she has ever had and establishing Max Baer as an actor who is as able a screen star as he is star of the ring.

Many Important "Names."

Then will come along such explosive subjects as Jean Harlow in "Blonde Bombshell," the "Blonde" recently having been prefixed to remove the curse of wartime suggestion; Marie Dressler in her birthday film, "Christopher Bean," with Lionel Barrymore; Joan Crawford in "Dancing Lady," with Franchot Tone, Clark Gable, May Robson, Winnie Lightner, Fred Astaire and who not; the Four Marx Brothers in "Duck Soup;" Clara Bow in "Hoopla," Richard Dix and Madge Evans in "Day of Reckoning," Will Rogers in "Mr. Skit," Lilian Harvey and El Brendel in "My Lips Betray," Alice Brady, Lionel Barrymore and Conway Tearle in "The Vinegar Tree," Ramon Novarro and Jeanette McDonald in "The Cat and the Fiddle" and other of like attractiveness, at least on paper.

Stages Not Slighted.

Mr. Barron further boasts, and apparently not without some reason, that Broadway also is coming to the Loew stages. Thanksgiving week at Loew's Fox, for example, will be marked by the local appearance of Washington's own "Songbird of the South," Kate Smith, with her own revue.

George White's "Scandals," in abbreviated form, another early booking, will bring Shaw and Lee, Lucille Page, Ross McLean, Joseph Vitale and 50 beautiful show girls of the original company to the boards.

Along at the end of the month Washington also will catch a glimpse of the tabloid form of "Crazy Quilt," another condensed revue, and in the not distant future, "The Student Prince."

In the meantime, the Warner organization is launching an intensive drive for record attendance by putting "Footlight Parade" in the Metropolitan Theater for a premiere Washington engagement beginning tonight at 8:30 with a public preview.

One of the Big Ones.

"Footlight Parade," as must certainly be pretty generally around by now, is one of the most amazing productions ever to find its way to the screen. Its final sequences achieve spectacular effects that have never before been approached in either magnitude or beauty. The whole movement of the film progresses from a slow beginning to a stunning climax by a cumulative crescendo of tunefulness, comedy and action that will stagger any audience that views it.

Manager Collier of the Rialto gets in the running—and right up in front, at that—with "Only Yesterday," heralded as one of the supreme pictures of the year, in which are enlisted the activities of no less than 79 principal players, headed by John Boles, Margaret Sullavan and Billie Burke, and immediately behind "The Private Life of Henry VIII." Hardie Meakin of RKO-Keith's is ready to shoot "Midshipman Jack" and Constance Bennett's newest starring vehicle, "After Tonight," directed by George Archainbaud, now engaged in making "Rodney" over at Fort Myer, Va.

If this is a backward season, we should have begun having them long ago!

In connection with the public premiere of "Footlight Parade" at the Metropolitan tonight at 8:30, it should be made clear that contrary to a belief that seems to have gained some headway, this showing of the picture is in no sense a private preview. No seats have been held aside for specially invited guests and no seats have been reserved. The entire capacity of the Metropolitan Theater is available to the general public on the basis of "first come, first served." The special presentation of this pretentious subject is for the sole purpose of enabling a larger number of patrons to view it than would otherwise be possible.

Another Premiere.

Speaking of premieres, in the Fort Myer Theater, at Fort Myer, Va., on Monday night, November 6, at 9 o'clock, a special premiere presentation of "Midshipman Jack" will be given before a distinguished audience of Army and Navy people and their guests.

This service picture was made at Annapolis last summer by RKO-Radio and is an early booking at RKO-Keith's Theater, following "The Private Life of Henry VIII," after the extended run of that superb English film shall have been completed.

Since the entire company making "Rodney" at Fort Myer will be present, it is expected that this premiere will lack none of the qualities of appeal to be found in a real Hollywood "first night."

This morning at 10, at Fort Myer, the public is invited to be present at the filming of one of the most elaborate and most impressive scenes of "Rodney," the picture in which Walter Huston and Frances Dee are being starred under the direction of George Archainbaud.

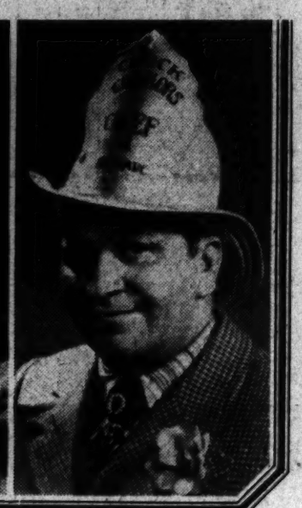
This scene will depict the Garrison Review Mounted, which will reproduce the ceremonies gone through when men who have given a lifetime of service to their country are retired with honor by their Government. In this case, however, the exercises are to the memory of "Rodney," a horse belonging to one of the batteries stationed at Fort Myer. Rodney died at the fort just before the World War, after more than 25 years in the Army.

The Review will start promptly at 10 a. m., weather permitting, and the public will be allowed to see in the making the scenes which later it will view upon the screen.

And so to the new week's attractions, which, according to latest advices, will be as appears the other side of the short dash.

Charles Laughton as "Henry VIII"—RKO-Keith's.

"Mae West in "I'm No Angel" —Palace.



Wallace Beery in "The Bowery" —Columbia.

New Spectacle Given Preview

Tonight at 8:30, at Warner Bros.' Metropolitan Theater, "Footlight Parade," Warner Bros.' newest musical extravaganza, which is said to surpass "42nd Street" and "Gold Diggers of 1933," will be introduced to Washington for the first time at a special premiere for the public. The regular performances start Friday at 11 a. m. Joan Blondell, Ruby Keeler, Dick Powell and James Cagney head the cast of stars which includes 12 great Hollywood names.

This new and mammoth spectacle is said to surpass its predecessors in the originality and beauty of its ensembles, in the hilarious comedy-drama plot, its songs and its romantic love interest. "Footlight Parade" tells the story of a young musical comedy director who loses his job when talking pictures supplant musicals on the stage and turns to making prologues for motion picture theaters on a large scale. Two of the big surprises in this vast production are the singing and dancing of James Cagney, who really started his career as a hoofer.

Four gigantic musical numbers, which surpass anything yet done, are staged by Busby Berkeley. They include a most unique cat number in which scores of girls, dressed in feline costumes, frolic in the moonlight. The scene by the waterfall is a glorious spectacle in which more than 100 swimming girls take part. This is one of the most mammoth sets ever constructed, including, besides a gigantic pool with scenes shot from beneath the water, a massive revolving fountain upon which the girls gambol clad only in golden tresses. The "Honeymoon Hotel" and "Shanghai Lil" numbers are said to be equally effective and unique.

Completing the program will be an array of specially selected complementary subjects, including the latest issue of the Paramount Sound News.

Rialto Offers Opera Classic

The Vienna of the "Blue Danube" waltz and the old romantic flavor of continental Europe of before the war make "Waltz Time," coming Saturday to the Rialto Theater, with Evelyn Laye in the title role, one of the finest of musical pictures, produced in a manner that lifts it completely above the tawdry class of film revues and establishes it as the successor to "Be Mine Tonight," which packed the Rialto last season.

With Johann Strauss music—his very best—and with a libretto by A. P. Herbert, of London Punch, "Waltz Time" is the quintessence of romance, the cream of light opera, the champagne of musical plays, retaining all the grace, the loveliness, the delicacy that stamped "Die Fledermaus" (The Bat) from which "Waltz Time" was adapted.

Strauss is the father of Viennese light opera. He set the fashion for the "Merry Widow," the "Spring Maid," the "Chocolate Soldier," "Alone at Last" and "The Count of Luxemburg." He established a manner that has recently come to new heights in the works of Jerome Kern, "The Cat and the Fiddle," "Music in the Air," and "Gowns by Roberta."

Here in "Waltz Time" is a perfect union of story and music, linked so skillfully that the final result is a picture that is sheer delight—romance, charm, comedy, all rolled into one.

And Evelyn Laye is the star.

Broadway Film Colored Revue

Broadway and Harlem, two of the Nation's foremost entertainment incubators, provide colorful and exciting amusement for Loew's Fox stage and screen for the week starting tomorrow.

The musical drama of the main stem, "Broadway Through a Keyhole," with celebrities of the stage, screen and radio united in a diversified cast, is the screen features.

On the Fox stage, the "Cotton Club Revue," direct from Harlem's favorite rendezvous, with 50 talented performers in its cast, holds sway. This marks the first appearance away from New York of this aggregation of outstanding sepia artists.

Two noted vocalists, George Dewey Washington, one of the Nation's preeminent barytones, and Adelaide Hall, the crooning maid who made such an instant hit in "Blackbirds," head the imposing cast. Others are Cora La Redd, the Four Flesh Devils, Josele Oliver, Smart and Gardner, a group of eight mixed voices, a chorus of 16 dancing girls and the high touted Mills' Blue Rhythm Band. This show is the twenty-second edition of the Cotton Club's lavish revues and is called the "Story Weather" revue, from the song hit of that title, which is a feature of the score.

"Broadway Through a Keyhole" offers drama, songs, music and comedy.

Constance Cummings is the star of a cast that scintillates with names familiar to followers of headline entertainment. Russ Colombo, Texas Guinan, Paul Kelly, Blossom Seeley, Frances Williams, Eddie Foy, jr., Abe Lyman and his band and Gregory Ratoff are principals in support.

Good King Hal Continues Hit

RKO-Keith's is holding "The Private Life of Henry VIII" over for an additional week.

This picture, starring Charles Laughton, has aroused interest to such an extent that, contrary to the usual diminishing response at the box-office as the engagement nears its completion, this picture has enjoyed constantly mounting receipts.

Produced by London Films, Ltd., with an entire British cast, the picture is released in the United States by United Artists and for the first time in the history of British productions American picture technicians are high in their praise of the production.

The tribute to be paid George Archainbaud, radio's ace director, now producing "Rodney" at Fort Myer, by the Keith management and the cast of "Rodney," will take place on Friday night, at 9 o'clock as scheduled.

Chevalier and Unusual Revue

It's a happiness-packed stage and screen show at Warner Bros. Earle Theater for the week starting tomorrow with Maurice Chevalier, the playboy of Paris, heading the screen portion of the bill in his latest Paramount vehicle, "The Way to Love," with Ann Dvorak, and Col. Fedor Maybaum's "Russian Revels," headlining the stage activities.

From the unique opening of "The Way to Love," wherein 20 cameo-like characters pass in review before the camera in a colorful kaleidoscope of rhythmic photography, to the final fadeout, the story is literally packed with Maurice Chevalier material. Chevalier plays the part of a poor Parisian youth who is a walking advertisement for a love shop. In his peregrinations about town he rescues a girl from a barbarious gypsy knife-thrower and conceals her in the roof-top home of friends, where he unfolds to her, as only the impetuous Maurice can, his one great ambition to be a guide for his beloved Paree. How his ambition is fulfilled and how he falls in love make one of the liveliest, most romantic of all the Chevalier films.

Col. Fedor Maybaum's colorful miniature song and dance revue, "Russian Revels," boasts a cast of 18 entertainers who present tantalizing tunes, colorful dances, unique novelties and many laughs.

Other acts will be Solly Ward with Nell Carrington and Adelaide Kaiser in "Poppa Fussenfumer," a hilarious laugh offering; The Rollickers Male Quartet, an outstanding radio group, and the Eno Troupe Japanese equilibrists.

Blonde Menace Continues Run

Mae West, the queen of curves, reigns for another week at Loew's Palace, where her "I'm No Angel" is the screen magnet.

That "I'm No Angel" is headed straight for an all-time box-office record is a virtual certainty, as the unceasing flow of West worshipers continues to make the Palace coffers bulge more and more each day.

"I'm No Angel" is thickly sprinkled with wise-cracks that are crisp, infectious and destined for constant repetition among fans. The star also sings three scorching numbers.

A well-chosen cast supports the screen's most popular personality. Cary Grant is again her leading man, as in "She Done Him Wrong." Other parts are played by Kent Taylor, Gregory Ratoff, Edward Arnold, Ralf Harlbde, Dorothy Peterson, Russell Hopton, Irving Pickel and Walter Walker.

Comes Back to The Columbia

That robust romance of the gay nineties, "The Bowery," with Wallace Beery, George Raft and Jackie Cooper forming a roguish trio, will be revived at Loew's Columbia Theater tomorrow.

"The Bowery" is Twentieth Century's first effort under the guidance of Darryl Zanuck and gives vitality to an era that was noted for its color, excitement and personalities.

Wallace Beery plays the part of "Chuck" Conners, the rowdy but humane and well-liked "mayor" of New York's Chinatown. George Raft is the screen's prototype of Steve Brodie, the envy of every woman's eye, who gained fame through jumping off the Brooklyn Bridge, and Jackie Cooper has the role of Swipes, the obtrusive and beloved newsie. Fay Wray and Pert Kelton inject the feminine interest as two Bowery belles.

Raoul Walsh directed this exciting narrative of the "livest mile on the face of the globe" from the novel, "Chuck Conners," by Michael Simmons and R. L. Solomon. Howard Easterbrook and James Gleason adapted that exciting story to the screen.

D. C. Political Posts Studied By Roosevelt

Costello and President in First Conference on Patronage.

Appointment of Officials Likely to Be Made in Two Weeks.

Appointments of District government officials, including two Commissioners, a district attorney and a public utilities commissioner are expected to be made by President Roosevelt within the next two weeks, John F. Costello, Democratic national committeeman for the District, said yesterday at the White House.

Mr. Costello said that, although the President had held off distribution of District patronage since taking office because of the press of other affairs, he believes the time has come when consideration can be given to selection of new appointees.

Women Not Discussed.

The talk with the President was the first Costello has had since the inauguration. Because of this and the fact that the District patronage distribution has been so long in coming has led to the belief in some quarters that the Administration may not approve of persons indorsed by the local Democratic administration.

After talking with the President, Costello declined to reveal the names of those receiving support of the District organization.

"We did not discuss names at all," he said. "We just had a general discussion."

However, it is known that Costello and the Democratic district committee, headed by John P. Colpoys, has indorsed formally the appointment of Malcolm McConihe, financier and real estate man, for a commissionership.

Local Democratic leaders from the start were said to have been behind the appointment of Ralph A. Cusick as District Attorney to succeed Leo A. Rover, who recently announced his resignation.

Van Doren Mentioned.

Lucien Van Doren also has been mentioned for this post. Should the Administration's patronage advisers elect to overlook the indorsement of the Costello organization, as was reported to have been done in the appointment of Miss Fay Bentley as juvenile judge, observers say Van Doren may have a chance.

Postmaster General Farley, the Administration's chief patronage dispenser, at one time said there were nearly 60 applicants for the post of District Commissioner. Such popularity has not attended the filling of a job on the Public Utilities Commission vacated by the resignation of Gen. Mason M. Patrick.

Only a few have signified aspirations for Patrick's place, including W. A. Roberts, assistant corporation counsel. Roberts has not been indorsed formally by the District Democratic organization, but it is understood his selection would not be opposed by it.

Probable District Appointees

Malcolm McConihe, left, whose appointment as District Commissioner is predicted before November 17, and Ralph A. Cusick, who is being put forward by local Democratic leaders for U. S. Attorney.

Beverage Men Seek Hearing On Rum Laws

District's Retail Dealers Plan Association for Self-Regulation.

Retail beverage dealers yesterday asked the Commissioners for a hearing before any proposed legislation to regulate liquor after repeal is submitted to Congress.

The request was contained in a letter signed by Bert L. Olmsted, president, and John F. Costello, general counsel, of the Association of Retail Beverage Dealers of the District of Columbia.

A meeting of the association is to be held in the Arcade auditorium at 3 p. m. tomorrow, at which it is expected "to form a permanent organization, elect officers and appoint committees to formulate a definite policy to be pursued by the dealers," Mr. Olmsted and Mr. Costello said.

Certain of Results.

"We feel certain," they added, "that our efforts will produce results that will meet with your approval and whole-hearted support."

In addition to Mr. Costello and Mr. Olmsted the call for the meeting of dealers to undertake self-regulation after prohibition has been repealed was signed by David Blum, James J. Lake, J. A. Pappodeas, Milton J. Kronheim, G. E. Dyer & Co., and N. Avignone.

William W. Bride, corporation counsel, is at work on alternative proposals for the regulation of liquor in the District following repeal.

Miss Harris Appointed.

Miss Elizabeth Harris yesterday was named chairman of a special committee of the District division of the Women's Organization for National Prohibition Reform, which also will draft recommendations for a liquor control law here.

Recommendations will be submitted to Congress. Mrs. William Beverly Mason, chairman of the District division, and prominent Washington lawyer, announced Miss Harris' appointment.

Other committee members are Miss Bell Gurnee, Mrs. Henry Leonard, Mrs. Milton King, Mrs. Rose Yates Forrester, Mrs. John F. Dryden and Mrs. Frederick R. Solger.

Mount Vernon Merger Is Aid To Depositors

Group Will Get $50,000 More Than Officials Had Estimated.

Depositors of the Mount Venon Savings Bank will receive $50,000 more than originally estimated under the merger with the Washington Mechanics Bank, it was announced yesterday, as Comptroller of Currency J. F. T. O'Connor named a second receiver to liquidate the frozen assets of eight restricted Washington banks.

Meanwhile, discussions regarding the proposed addition of the Franklin National Bank with the Mount Vernon-Washington Mechanics continued although Franklin officials stated the Treasury Department is giving favorable consideration to the bank's plan to reopen independently.

Get 40 Per Cent.

When depositors in Mount Vernon Savings Bank received their agreement forms to the prospective merger of that bank with Washington Mechanics Savings Bank, they were informed that 40 per cent of their deposits will be available instead of 35 per cent under the original estimate.

This will make more than $800,000 available to them on consummation of the merger instead of $750,000. Likewise, under the new agreement, they will agree to the trusteeing of but 60 per cent of their deposits instead of 65 per cent in furthering the merger plan for these two banks.

Norman R. Hamilton, publisher of the Portsmouth (Va.) Star, was named yesterday to assist former Gov. Cary A. Hardee, of Florida, as second receiver of the unreleased deposits of Hamilton Bank members.

Under tentative plans, Mr. Hardee will liquidate assets of Chevy Chase Savings Bank, now under conservatorship of John C. Walker, former president of this bank, which was not licensed after the national bank holiday and is now a branch of Riggs National Bank.

Poole is Conservator.

He also will be receiver for Federal-American National Bank & Trust Co., part of the assets of which were used in formation of Hamilton National Bank. John Poole, former president of Federal-American National Bank & Trust Co., is its conservator.

Mr. Hamilton will be receiver for six other banks forming the Hamilton. These and their conservators are: District National Bank, Joshua Evans, jr.; Northeast Savings Bank, George F. Hoover; Seventh Street Savings Bank, John D. Howard; Washington Savings Bank, Robert A. Sisson; Woodridge-Langdon Savings & Commercial Bank, E. L. Norris; Potomac Savings Bank, George W. Offutt. Of the foregoing conservators, Messrs. Evans, Sisson, Hoover and Norris have become officers of Hamilton National Bank.

Lieut. Doyle Speaks Tonight.

Lieut. J. H. Doyle, U. S. N., on duty in the judge advocate general's office, will talk on "The Relation of Law to Command" at 8:30 tonight in the armory of the Naval Reserves, 1221 Eleventh street southeast.

Gas Company Value Placed At 22 Million

Commission Cost Figure Raised $1,043,166 by Experts.

Two Appraisers to Face Cross-Examination Today.

A reproduction cost of $22,358,833 was claimed by the Washington and Georgetown Gas Light Co.s in inventories filed in the valuation proceedings before the public utilities commission yesterday.

The figure claimed by the companies was $1,043,166 greater than the $21,315,667 estimated by commission.

Reproduction of the Washington company would cost $19,947,371 the company estimated. The commission estimate was $18,907,405. The company claimed $2,411,462 for the Georgetown company for which the commission figures was $2,408,262.

Company figures did not include value of land and of various additions which will be claimed. Commission figures did not allow for certain deductions, such as services paid for by consumers, which commission counsel and experts say must be made.

Two Estimates Close.

At the conclusion of their direct testimony Harold E. Doyle and Charles A. Jones, expert appraisers presented by the companies, found themselves only $136 apart in their estimates of all the real estate owned by the companies.

Doyle placed the value of real estate at $3,289,764, of which $3,087,382 represented holdings of the Washington and $202,382 the Georgetown company land.

Jones estimated the land worth $3,289,628, as of June 30, last year, the date of the valuation. He valued the Washington company property at $3,074,090 and the Georgetown property at $215,537.

Included in estimates of both appraisers was property which had been owned by the Georgetown company in the Potomac lowlands near Chain bridge which has been sold for $44,262 since June 30 last year.

Doyle estimated the value of the land at the West station, in Georgetown, at $1,350,000 and of the East station, on the Anacostia river, at $1,188,000. Jones appraised the West station land at $1,371,400 and the East station at $1,195,444.

Appraisals were of land only, exclusive of buildings, and made allowances for rail and water facilities, zoning, size of plots, location, and other factors.

Valuation in Detail.

The various plots which went to make up the total, together with the appraisal of each by Mr. Doyle and Mr. Jones, were as follows:

Garage and lot space on Pennsylvania avenue just west of Rock Creek bridge, Doyle, $162,747, Jones, $146,472; land at Canal and O streets southwest, Doyle, $77,586, Jones, $77,586; office and garage space on Tenth and E streets northwest, Doyle, $286,760, Jones, $264,791; Benning road holder property, Doyle, $5,858, Jones, $5,000; Takoma Park holder property, Doyle, $12,000, Jones, $9,804. These, with two small pieces of property not in use or useful, comprised the holdings of the Washington company.

Land of the Georgetown company was appraised as follows: Plot between Twenty-ninth and Thirtieth, south of M street northwest, Doyle, $105,240, Jones, $118,395; at Wisconsin and Dumbarton avenues, Doyle, $49,325, Jones, $49,325; on Forty-first, between Brandywine and Chesapeake, Doyle, $3,555, Jones, $3,555. Both took the $44,262 sale price of the Potomac lowlands plot.

Cross-examination of the appraisers will be begun by William A. Roberts, assistant corporation counsel, and Richmond B. Keech, people's counsel, when the hearings are resumed at 10 a. m. today. Stoddard M. Stevens, jr., and Wilton J. Lambert, counsel for the company, will cross examine commission real estate experts who will take the stand at conclusion of the testimony of the company appraisers.

Annual Treatment Started to Save Trees Of Washington From Perils of City Life

District Office Employs Plant Surgeons and Landscape Men.

Campaign Pushed Under Handicap of Reduced Appropriations.

Washington is employing a staff of skilled tree surgeons and landscape artists in its annual autumn fight to maintain its name as "the city of trees."

Hard hit by the reduction in appropriations, the office of trees and parking is making a determined effort to keep up its work on the 113,000 trees of the city.

Clifford Lanham, superintendent of trees and parking, for more than 40 years the protector and builder of Washington's trees, points out that city trees have been placed in an environment not intended by nature. Inclosed by cement and subjected to leaking gas below the earth and gas fumes from motor exhausts in the air, the life of the city tree has become increasingly difficult.

Complex tree surgery is employed to counteract these handicaps. At the first indication of internal decay the cavity is explored and all decayed matter removed. In many cases the decay extends upward and steel rods have to be inserted to support the trees.

The walls of the cavity are painted and cement is inserted in sections so that the filling can expand and contract with the changes of temperature and the swaying of the trees.

Many of the beautiful trees of the city stand in the older sections. Along First street southwest there are the finest rows of elms in the city, in the etsimation of Mr. Lanham.

The best trees for wide avenues and streets are the red oak, pin oak and American elm. The less sturdy types are being replaced by hardier varieties.

Along narrow streets the Japanese gingko tree is considered an ideal plant.

The street-widening program is another menace to trees. Special care was taken to protect the roots of the Norway maples while Sixteenth street northwest was being improved with funds allotted under the public works program.

Many workmen are employed in protecting the trees, many of them of historic as well as esthetic value.

High School Boxing Bout Issue Revived

Board Is Urged Again to Permit Collegiate Exhibitions.

Members Seeking Public Opinion on Use of Gymnasiums.

The question of permitting collegiate boxing in high school gymnasiums is before the Board of Education again.

Columbus University, precipitator of the issue last year, which resulted in a tie vote, has made the request. John Fitzpatrick, dean of the school of law of the university, in a written request to the board, asked for the use of McKinley High School gymnasium for a series of intercollegiate boxing matches, which the university plans to sponsor.

Henry Gilligan, champion of the boxers in last year's fray, informed the board yesterday "it was a perfectly legal request and should be granted."

Committee to Report.

On motion of W. M. Whitwell, who voted against the boxing request last year, it was agreed to submit the application to the committee on use of school buildings and invite representatives of local organizations to attend the next meeting on November 15 at which a report of the committee will be made.

Whitwell said he is anxious to obtain public opinion on the question.

"It is my intention to vote for what the public wants," he explained. "I voted against the request last year because it was my belief that the majority of the public was not in favor of a high school gymnasium being used for collegiate boxing. I am anxious to hear what our citizens' associations and other civic groups have to say. Let us invite them to the next meeting and give them a chance to express themselves. Remember we promised to do this whenever important issues are before the board."

Henry I. Quinn, lawyer and new board member, chairman of the committee on use of buildings, said he will side with Gilligan on behalf of the collegiate boxers. He said he is particularly anxious to have every organization in the city represented at the next meeting.

Women Voted for Plan.

The application resulted in a tie vote last year after a fierce verbal battle in which Gilligan accused the board of countenancing "pink teas" in gymnasiums in favor of boxing. The tie vote was caused by the absence of Dr. Abram Simon, former president of the board. A committee of three women members, delegated to study the question, submitted a report in favor of permitting boxing in the gymnasium. But when the issue was put to a vote all the male members of the board, with the exception of Gilligan, opposed it. Dr. Hayden Johnson, president of the board, tied the vote.

Of the male members who opposed the request, the Rev. F. I. A. Bennett is a member no longer. He has been replaced by Charles Houston, Negro lawyer, whose views on the question could not be obtained yesterday as he was out of the city.

Cured Girl Leaves Artificial "Lung"

Peggy Duncan Wins Fight With Breathing Aid.

Peggy Duncan, 21, of Chevy Chase, Md., yesterday was taken out of the Children's Hospital artificial "lung," where for the last eight weeks she has been fighting paralysis of the respiratory system, aftermath of an attack of infantile paralysis.

Physicians attending believe she will be completely recovered by the end of the month.

Miss Duncan was stricken while attending Breneau College, Gainesville, Ga., and was brought home when the serious nature of her illness became apparent.

This is the first time the respirator has been found practicable for an adult person.

Mangan Asks Dismissal Of Suit on Mortgage

Lawrence J. Mangan, 1637 I street northwest, yesterday asked District Supreme Court to dismiss a suit brought against him by Hazel C. Koontz, 3009 Franklin street northeast, charging him with failure to accept bonds of the Home Owners Loan Corporation in lieu of a mortgage he held on her property.

Mangan declared he had done nothing to prevent refinancing of the property. He said he had allowed interest payments to run 14 months in arrears and had paid taxes before going forward with the foreclosure which the complainant sought to enjoin.

Capt. Howard Ends 31 Years in Navy

Capt. Douglas Legate Howard, attached to the office of naval intelligence, Navy Department, was retired yesterday after more than 31 years of active service in the Navy.

Born in Annapolis, Md., the son of the late Rear Admiral T. B. Howard, February 11, 1885, Capt. Howard was awarded the Navy Cross for his service in the World War. Members of the class of 1914 gave a dinner in his honor at the Racquet Club last night.

2 Bank Clerks To Face Trial

Indicted by Grand Jury for Alleged Account Shortages.

Two bank employes, arrested several weeks ago for alleged shortages, were indicted by the District Grand Jury yesterday. They were Wilbur N. Averill, of the Northeast Savings Bank, and John Francis Cook, of the United States Savings Bank.

Averill is charged with embezzling $14,783, though a shortage estimated at $45,000 was found in his accounts. Cook is charged with having taken $1,700 during the month of March.

Busiest Pedestrian Corner Placed on "No Turn" Basis

Thirteenth and F Streets Experiment Assured of Success.

Washington's busiest pedestrian corner, Thirteenth and F streets, was on a "no turns" basis yesterday, setting a precedent, exasperating several hundred vehicle drivers and eliciting the prediction it will succeed.

"Now motorists and pedestrians alike will be given a break," commented Traffic Director William A. Van Duzer. "The change means greater safety for walkers, who were menaced by turning cars, and removes the nuisance of tie-ups caused by machines making left turns being held up by strolling corner-crossers.

A traffic policeman will continue to be stationed at the intersection between 8 a. m. and 6 p. m., the "no turn" hours, until the public becomes familiar with the new rule. Although it is still in the experimental stage, Mr. Van Duzer said yesterday, following an inspection, that the innovation's success is virtually assured.

While Fourteenth street and Pennsylvania avenue is the busiest vehicular intersection, Thirteenth and F handles most pedestrians, averaging 8,000 an hour during the day. The ban on both right and left turns probably will be extended to other corners if this test receives final approval.

Driver Badly Injured In Hit-Run Collision

Arthur H. Mitchell, 61, 1700 Lamont street northwest, was seriously injured yesterday when his automobile overturned after colliding with another auto at Georgia avenue and Otis street. The other driver failed to stop.

Mitchell was treated at Garfield Hospital for fractured ribs and internal injuries. His condition is serious.

Grayson Fights Fraud Charges

Demurrer to Embezzling Count Removes Plea of Not Guilty.

Counsel for John Cooke Grayson, former chief clerk of the National bank examiners division, Treasury Department, yesterday filed a demurrer in District Supreme Court against indictments linking him with the Park Savings Bank embezzlement and charging him with defrauding the Federal Government.

The demurrer, which attacked the validity of the two indictments and charged them with being indefinite, automatically removed a plea of not guilty previously submitted by Grayson.

Grayson, a brother of Admiral Cary T. Grayson, was indicted on charges of conspiring with Robert S. Stunz, vice president of the bank, in embezzling $5,000 and also with notifying Stunz when examiners were sent to the bank. Grayson is now seriously ill in Charlottesville, Va. William E. Leahy is his counsel.

Federal Agent Probes Truck Robbery Case

Driver Still Questioned by Police After Machine Is Recovered.

While Arlington County and Alexandria police argued as to jurisdiction in a $28,000 hijacking, the Department of Justice last night sent an agent to Alexandria to question the truck driver involved. Baltimore police also took a hand in the case.

The robbery, according to the truck driver, Charles P. McMonagle, 33, of Baltimore, occurred near the Potomac railroad yards on the border between Alexandria and Arlington early yesterday. McMonagle was en route from Richmond to Baltimore with a truck load of cigarettes.

Arlington police took charge of McMonagle early today after Alexandria disclaimed jurisdiction.

McMonagle said he was attacked by four unmasked men as he was leaving Alexandria early Tuesday night. Just before dawn, he added, he was released near Oakdale, Md.

Baltimore police found the empty truck south of Baltimore. Police said the truck's time lock indicated the truck did not stop in Alexandria. The truck had been robbed of $14,000 worth of cigarettes, but miscellaneous articles were still aboard when found.

S. R. Collins, of the Baltimore Transfer Co., which owned the truck, said McMonagle had an excellent record.

Widow's Pay Stops Until That $49.79 Is Paid.

A Federal employe for 32 years, Mrs. Lillie Ryon, 3541 Eleventh street northwest, complained to officials yesterday that she had not received retirement pay due since last August. Mrs. Ryon, a widow with two sons, both unemployed, said she was forced to borrow money to prevent eviction from her home.

Veterans' Administration officials said part of the delay in beginning retirement pay to Mrs. Ryon was caused by the discovery that deduction of $49.79 had not been made from her pay while she was on the rolls. They said this would have to be paid before retirement pay could start.

They also said there was some delay in sending out retirement pay because of reduction in personnel of the bureau.

Mrs. Ryon formerly was a laboratory assistant in the Chemistry and Soils Bureau, Department of Agriculture.

Man "Tired of It All" Dies of Bullet Wound

Lewis Franklin Nichols, 57, who police said shot himself Monday night because of despondency over unemployment and ill health, died last night at Emergency Hospital. Coroner A. Magruder MacDonald issued a certificate of suicide.

Nichols was found Monday night in his garage at 2115 Pennsylvania avenue northwest. He left a note to his wife, declaring he was "tired of it all." Nichols was at one time a U. S. marshal.

School Board Moves to Aid Idle Teachers

Also Probes Report That 211 District Pupils Lack Clothing.

The Board of Education yesterday began investigation of an announcement that 211 Washington children are unable to attend school because of insufficient clothing. The board also voted to seek public works funds to provide jobs for needy teachers.

A report by Miss Fay Bentley, director of works permits and newly appointed judge of the Juvenile Court, revealed the number of children unable to attend school. Her report was based on an investigation requested by Mrs. Henry Gratton Doyle and represented the first 500 school absences under consideration.

Superintendent Frank W. Ballou was authorized by the board to discuss a program for relief of unemployed teachers with the United States Commissioners of Education, the director of the Federal Board of Vocational Education and the District Emergency Relief Division.

A substantial number of instructors, now virtually destitute, would be hired to teach vocational courses and instruct illiterates in evening schools and the Americanization School, under one plan.

Discussing Miss Bentley's report, Mrs. Doyle declared:

"Even in these difficult days it is indeed unfortunate to realize that there are more than 200 children in the Nation's Capital who are ashamed to attend school because they haven't proper clothing. There are probably more. These are cases that have been reported."

Miss Bentley reported that some of the cases are being given care through altruism of teachers and other sources. Mrs. Doyle asked Dr. Ballou to determine how the children can be helped. Dr. Ballou said it was a question of whether the aid should come from a Federal relief agency or social agencies of the Community Chest.

Rotarian Opposes Thou-Wilt-Not Law

Former President Dolph Is Luncheon Speaker.

Social regulation must be a positive character-building effort, rather than "Thou shalt not" legislation exemplified by prohibition, John Dolph, former president, told the Washington Rotary Club yesterday.

Other speakers at the Willard Hotel luncheon yesterday were Frank Kerr, Clarence Richardson and George Millen.

President Harrison E. Howe introduced several visiting Rotarians, including Augustin Turner, who founded the Rotary Club of Valparaiso, Chile.

Francis Scott Key To Be Paid Tribute

Program on Armistice Day Inspired by Kin Here.

Coinciding with Armistice Day, the centenary of Francis Scott Key's visit to Alabama to represent the Federal Government in a land dispute will be observed on November 11. The celebration, to be conducted throughout the State by the Daughters of 1812, Daughters of the American Revolution and other patriotic societies, was suggested by Francis Scott Key-Smith, Washington attorney and great-grandson of Key.

It was on October 31, 1833, that the author of "The Star-Spangled Banner," an attorney in the Capital, was ordered to Alabama following an outbreak of riots. The dispute originated in a treaty between the United States and the Creek Indians by which the redmen had yielded land comprising nine Alabama counties to the Federal Government.

Rioting occurred when attempts were made to evict white settlers. Key participated in the settlement, following his arrival at Fort Mitchell on November 11.

State to Build 100-Ft. Tower Near Fairfax Nudist Colony

It's for Fire Use, But Open to Everybody Zealous for Forest Safety.

Here's a little secret—but don't let it get around.

The Virginia State Forest Service is going to erect a 100-foot tower. That's not all. The tower will be within a mile of the nudist camp in Fairfax County.

And what's more, the tower will be open to the public. It is rumored that several county residents have applied for a binocular concession—to view the countryside, of course.

Constructed of steel, the fire tower will stand near Pender, Va., on the Lee-Jackson highway. So far, prying eyes near the nudist camp have not been tolerated. But prying eyes 100 feet in the air are something different.

Incidentally, nudism will be debated Saturday in the Arlington Hotel here. Ilsley Boone, managing editor of the Nudist Magazine, will speak for the proposition. Samuel Salomon, lecturer, will talk against it.

Psychologist Post Open At Leavenworth Prison

Applications for the position of assistant psychologist in the United States Public Health Service at Leavenworth Penitentiary will be accepted until November 24, the Civil Service Commission announced yesterday.

The salary ranges from $2,600 to $3,100 a year. Information is available at the commission office, Seventh and F streets northwest.

Hit-Skip Victim's Condition Serious

Supposedly the victim of a hit-and-run driver, Edward D. Brady, 41, of Bethesda, Md., is in a serious condition at Georgetown Hospital, suffering fractures of both legs and internal injuries.

He was struck early yesterday as he stood in a safety zone at Wisconsin avenue and Fessenden street northwest. Charles E. Smith, 23, of Clifton Terrace Apartments, and Lynn Lester, 20, of 233 Kentucky avenue southeast, were arrested by Seventh Precinct police when they came to report the accident.

Both men deny driving the car in the accident.

Miller Outpoints Sarron in Furious Ten-Round Battle Before 2,500

Champ Dazed By Syrian In 8th

Weathers Storm After Sarron Lands Hard Right to Heart.

Miller Proves Greatness in 10th-Round Rally, Flooring Foe.

FREDDY MILLER proved himself a great miller, in the parlance of the prize ring, by working out a close win over Pete Sarron in a furious 10-round battle before a record crowd of 2,500 at Portner's Arena last night. Only Miller's prestige was at stake, his N. B. A. featherweight crown having been placed in cold storage before the fight via the overweight system.

Until the eighth round most of the ringworms were frankly dubious regarding this new champion who was being displayed to them. Champion or not, he was finding Sarron's whirlwind tactics very difficult to solve—just as so many others, not champions, had done. In the eighth, however, he weathered a storm as only a champion can weather a storm, then fought back to a clean-cut though close win. From then on he was Frederick the Great Miller, every inch a champion, who had to shoulder his way through an autograph-seeking throng to reach the dressing room—an unprecedented reaction on the part of local fight fans.

Dazed by Uppercut.

The story of the eighth round can be told in a few words. Dazed, reeling, a bit groggy under a deluge of blows that started with a smashing right uppercut to the heart, Miller didn't fold up—and Sarron didn't follow up. That was the difference between a champion and a challenger. And knowledge of that difference probably altered the complexion of the fight and resulted in the champion's ultimate win.

Boxing carefully, and very coolly, Miller took the first two rounds by narrow margins, from a Sarron who was not yet ready to shoot the works. Sarron ventured forth in the third, which he took, mainly by virtue of two low rights and a smashing right to the heart.

Both contestants went to work with a vengeance in the fourth, Sarron flying about the ring like a pinwheel and Miller boxing coolly to even matters. The fifth, practically a repetition of the preceding round, was also even. They started furiously in the sixth, mixing, with honors practically even for the first minute. Following a fast exchange, Sarron sent the champ's head back with a straight left, to gain an edge.

Starts Sharpshooting.

Probably realizing that he must bestir himself to insure the decision, Miller worked like a well-oiled machine in the seventh. As cool as an icicle, he fired very carefully, like a sharpshooter, scoring almost at will, and blocking his opponent's efforts neatly.

The eighth round, which meant so much to both contestants, started moderately enough and was going along at a merry pace until the Birmingham bruiser caught Miller with a smashing right uppercut to the heart that stopped him dead in his tracks. Sarron piled in a long left hook to the jaw and two straight rights that had the N. B. A. diadem wearer groggy and reeling, but Sarron showed no inclination to press his advantage.

Still dazed answering the bell for the ninth, Miller was an easy target for the Syrian's looping blows until he landed a left that buckled Sarron. From then on it was all Miller—Champion Miller.

Floors Sarron.

Hardly had their hands parted from the traditional final round handshake than Champion Miller floored Sarron with a right to the head. The Birmingham buzz-saw bounced up without a count, vainly trying to hide the fact that he was stunned and dazed. Champion Miller sensed his opponent's condition and tore in for the kill, which Sarron avoided by instinctive rolling and blocking to remain perpendicular at the final bell.

The Post score sheet credited Miller with five rounds, gave Sarron three and recorded two even.

Bob Lowry showed greatly improved punching power in working out a nice decision over Ernie Ceasar, another welterweight, in a six-rounder. Doug Swetnam decisioned Sam Romano, and Young Dixon won from Joe Palacio in other sixes. Tom Slaughter won from Doug Keyes on a technical knockout in the second round of a scheduled four-round opener.

A clear-cut margin for Freddie Miller in his bout with Pete Sarron last night is revealed in the tabulation of the scoring of the referee and two judges.

The round-by-round scoring of Referee Heinie Miller and Judges George King and Denny Hughes follows:

Rosenbloom's Title at Stake Tomorrow

Champion Will Be 14th Uncrowned in Year if He Loses to Walker.

NEW YORK, Nov. 1 (U.P.).—Since the turn of the year 13 fighting men have had their championships lifted, and the list may be increased to 14 Friday night when Maxie Rosenbloom, king of the 175-pounders, goes against Mickey Walker in Madison Square Garden.

The chances are, however, that Rosenbloom will weather the storm. He always seems to be at his best when the chips are down. Maxie drops decisions here and there on his barnstorming tours through the hinterlands, but drop him in the garden before his friends, with his title at stake, and he invariably comes through with a performance that makes one wonder if the Harlem clown isn't one of the best light-heavies the business has seen.

Walker Must Work Fast.

Walker's chances (and Manager Jack Kearns thinks highly of them) would seem to depend largely on a blasting, early assault. In short, if the Mick is to win, and thus join Fitzsimmons as the only man ever to hold three major titles, he must win by a quick knockout. Walker isn't the sort to stay in there 15 rounds and outpoint Rosenbloom. He can't box that well, for one thing. And he probably hasn't the stamina, for another.

Walker has had few fights of late, and when a fighter reaches the age of 32, he can't get in shape in two weeks. Rosenbloom, on the other hand, has been fighting once, and sometimes twice, a week for a year or more. The champion is always in fair shape, despite his fine scorn for such things as sleep, fresh air, and gymnasium workouts.

If Walker comes out swinging, and keeps swinging until he can swing no more, he may put Rosenbloom away. Maxie can be hit. We learned that in his last garden appearance when Adolph Heuser, the German windmill, hit him with everything but the swastika for eight rounds. We also learned in that same fight that Rosenbloom can take it. When Heuser had punched himself weary, Maxie opened up and went on to win.

No one would be surprised to see the scrap end in a technical knockout with Walker the loser. The onetime welter and middle champion is a free and easy bleeder, and that type is made to order for the cuffing, heeling, backhandling Rosenbloom.

The fight, the first in the garden for a long while, will do well to draw better than $10,000. The advance sale has been negligible, and there is little likelihood of the police being called out to handle a last minute rush.

Nose Victory To Winooka In Stake

Gold Step and Tambour Bow at Pimlico; Ace Comes From Rear.

Deduce Wins 4th in Row, Sets Track Record for 1 1-16 Miles.

By a Staff Correspondent.

PIMLICO RACE TRACK, Md., Nov. 1.—Winooka, the palooka, and Jockey Britt, who didn't fit, made good at Pimlico today. The "big 'oss," as he is called around the royal stable, made good by the tip of his royal nose and Jockey Britt made good with as peculiar a finish ride as has ever been witnessed on a Maryland race track.

All criticism to the contrary, the fact remains that the Australian champion showed today that he is a pretty fair, if not a great race horse, in winning his first American stake. Beaten by that royal nose was Gold Step, given a powerful bit of jockeying by Earl Porter, the reigning riding sensation, and beaten another head came Tambour, all out under the hammering Sonny Workman.

How Britt Rode Horse.

If you have seen a boy propeling a wagon by leaning on one knee and pushing with his other foot, you have some idea of how Britt drove Winooka the last quarter of the Baltimore Handicap, the day's $2,500 added feature race. Add to that a right arm pumping with a whip that appeared to have an end like a fly swatter, and your mental picture is complete.

It was the first time that Britt "came out of his shell," as the veters-turf fans call a hard-riding finish, and the punch that is apparent in the driving of the American boy seemed to be lacking in Britt. Porter, on Gold Step, and Workman on Tambour, finished in the approved American style. They had their heads against the manes of their mounts, backs level, weight on the stirrups and their legs swinging in unison with the stride of their horses. They whipped with an upward motion. In contrast, most of Britt's weight was on the saddle. He sat almost erect with his reign pulled in close to his stomach, in steeplechase fashion and whipped downward.

Less Flare, More Running.

There was less flare and more running to the third of the Winooka shows. Aside from the usual paddock crowd, there seemed to be no more interest in the Australian champion than there was in Southard in the seventh race. Even the handlers of the Anzac horse appeared to be acclimated.

The 10,000 present only looked

Betting Increases In Pimlico "Tote"

$281,667 Total of Wagers; Machine Accurate.

Baltimore, Md., Nov. 1 (Spl.).—Introduction to Maryland racing fans of the American totalisator, the new betting machines, played a big part in giving Pimlico an auspicious opening today.

Secretary Matt L. Daiger said tonight that the total pool for the seven races was $281,667, as against $247,579 on the initial day last year. The most money was wagered on the Baltimore Handicap, the receivers taking in $46,161.

Of this amount $8,484 was bet on Winooka straight, $2,614 place and $2,221 show.

So accurate were the final odds that is was amazing when the prices were posted. Salisbury closed at even money and paid $4.20; Pompestion closed at 6 and paid $14.60; Winooka, at 8 to 5 and paid $5; Monel, at four and paid $10.20; Backgammon, at four and paid $10.60.

Fans divided their time between before the two figure boards. The larger one under the grandstand flashed new figures every two minutes. This gave the actual amount of money wagered on each horse. The long board in the infield facing the grandstand flashed the odds against each thoroughbred eleven times.

Comiskey to Change Lay-Out So Simmons Can Hit Homers

CHICAGO, Nov. 1 (AP).—Al Simmons, the $100,000 baseball star of the White Sox, doesn't like the $2,000,000 Comiskey Park setup, so owner J. Louis Comiskey is going to change it.

Owner Comiskey tonight revealed that landscapers will move home plate out 14 feet toward the center of centerfield and reconstruct the infield so that those long drives of Al's will have more of a chance to go for home runs instead of putouts.

All last season, Simmons crashed out terrific drives to centerfield, home runs in the average park, only to watch the centerfielders move back and turn them into mere putouts. Finally, he admitted to Owner Comiskey that such catches of long hits got on his nerves and affected his batting average. So Owner Comiskey decided to change the park's playing scenery.

Burleigh Grimes Dropped by Cards

St. Louis, Nov. 1 (AP).—Burleigh Grimes, one of the last of baseball's spitball pitchers, has been given his unconditional release by the St. Louis Cardinals, the club's secretary, Clarence F. Lloyd, announced tonight.

Grimes, who has pitched for six of the eight National League clubs—St. Louis, Pittsburgh, Boston, New York, Brooklyn and Chicago—joined the Cardinals for the second time last summer after he had been released by the Chicago Cubs, but was handicapped much of the season by an injury.

Championship Grid Game Planned

Group to Select College Teams for Game at Chicago Dec. 9.

CHICAGO, Nov. 1 (AP).—Plans for a postseason football game between the leading teams of the country in Soldier Field, Chicago, December 9, were announced today by a group of Chicago men who have completed the organization of "the National football championship committee."

The contending teams will be selected by two committees, composed largely of sports writers in New York and Chicago. The executive committee of the "National football championship committee" will be composed of 20 or 25 former college men in this territory.

Col. John B. Reynolds, president of the Rotary Club of Chicago, has been named chairman of the committee and will name the complete personnel this week. Headquarters for the promotion of the game have been established at the Hotel La Salle, Chicago.

Not Hand-Picked Teams.

"The idea behind the game is to decide the national championship each year by picking the two leading teams in the country and having them play on the first or second Saturday after the end of the football season," said Col. Reynolds. "It should be understood that the committee will not put on a game between hand-picked teams, but will merely provide the administrative organization, the place and the method by which teams of outstanding merit can be matched to play for the title."

The committee intends to use a plan similar to that used by the Army and Navy charity games the last few years. A certain percentage of the gate receipts will be given to the two contending colleges to be distributed to charities in their localities and the balance will go to a local charity, it was stated.

At the present time the teams from the various sections of the country which are considered in the running for consideration for the game are: East—Army Fordham, Princeton, Holy Cross and Dartmouth. Midwest—Michigan, Purdue, Minnesota and Nebraska. South—Georgia and Duke. Far West—Oregon and Oregon State. Southern California has a game scheduled on December 9 eliminating the Trojans from consideration.

Not a Counter Attraction.

It was pointed out that the game will not be run as a counter attraction to the Tournament of Roses game, and that it would be possible for a team to take part in both games.

The big drawback of getting a Western Conference champion to participate in the game is the Big Ten's rule against postseason games, but the spokesman for the committee, who asked to have his name withheld, said that he had assurances that the faculty representatives are considering modifying this rule within the next two years.

"The National Football Championship Committee" will be a permanent organization, it was said, with headquarters in Chicago as a matter of convenience.

C. U. Starts Subs In Loyola Games

Bergman to Try to Rest Regulars for Detroit.

Coach "Dutch" Bergman yesterday nominated an all-reserve lineup to start for Catholic University against Loyola College tomorrow. The game will be played at Brookland, starting at 2 o'clock.

Bergman is prompted by something more than a desire to rest his regulars for the Detroit game next week in starting second-stringers. The Loyola fray will afford him an excellent opportunity of obtaining a good line on the reserves. The C. U. mentor would like to uncover a few men strong enough to hold their own against the Titans of machine city.

The new line-up will be Ball and Mulligan, ends; Karpowich and Lennon, tackles; Rosenfield and Lajousky, guards; Christianson, center; Charley McVeen, quarter back; Norton and Callender, half backs, and Santry, full back.

Mike Norton, a flashy sophomore, will be closely watched by the coaching staff. Against St. John's the Irishman showed to an advantage, and he also came through with an excellent performance against Chattanooga.

G. W. Boasts New Threat In Carlin

Injured Captain Returns to Team, Leemans in Back Field.

Advance Sale for Battle With Tennessee Sets Record for D. C.

BENEATH the surface of George Washington's well-grounded fear of the invading Tennessee Volunteers is the happy realization that the Colonial Team that takes the field at Griffiths Stadium Saturday will number among its line-up Lee Carlin, of Joplin, Mo.

Capt. Lee Carlin it is, moreover; the Forgotten Man of George Washington football. And no mere figurehead is this Carlin, for until a chipped bone in his leg removed him from the first four games of the season, he was the man about whom the Colonials' attack was to revolve—about his kicking, passing and running.

Injured Last Season.

Such is the type of football player that the George Washington squad will regain for the Tennessee game, its severest test of the season. Colonial fans well might rub their eyes when they see Carlin trot on the field on Saturday. In the last 14 games of the G. W. team over two seasons, Capt. Carlin has been in actual combat only 15 minutes.

Before the season opened in 1932, Carlin made a forced landing on his collarbone that put him on the bench for the entire campaign. But his talents did not escape recognition at the end of last season, when the team elected a 1933 captain. To Carlin went the honor. In his second game of the 1933 season, Carlin suffered his leg injury against North Dakota. Against Clemson, Auburn and West Virginia Wesleyan he was missinng from the line-ups.

Carlin was to be the successor to Johnny Fenlon as the spearhead of the Colonials' attack. His triple-threat talents stamped him as the most logical leader of the offensive. With Carlin on the sideline, Tuffy Leemans has come along to provide the Colonials with a new threat. But he may not be able to shove Carlin into the background. Rather G. W. coaches are chortling over the combination of both a Leemans and a Carlin.

25,000 Crowd Looms.

A crowd of 25,000 is expected to see G. W. battle Tennessee. A heavy advance sale of tickets, greater than that for the Alabama game last season, indicates that the game will be a sell-out.

Secretary of State, Cordell Hull, a native of Tennessee, and Senators Nathan L. Bachman and Kenneth McKeller, of that Commonwealth, and Assistant Secretary of War Harry H. Woodring, will occupy a box with Dr. Cloyd Heck Marvin, president of George Washington.

The team had a blackboard session last night, and more are scheduled tonight and tomorrow night. A perceptible let-down was noticeable in practice yesterday, an indication that the squad is tiring from the whirlwind pace at which it has been driven this week.

Chris Doose was added to the casualty list with a ruptured blood vessel in the arm, but he is expected to be ready for duty Saturday. Otherwise "Zuzu" Stewart, guard, is the only member of the squad not in good physical condition.

Vols to Practice Here.

Knoxville, Tenn., Nov. 1 (Spl.).—The University of Tennessee football squad went through its last hard practice on Shields-Watkins Field here today in preparation for its game against George Washington University in the National Capital on Saturday.

The Tennessee board of strategy made a last-minute change in its plans for departure to permit a final workout here tomorrow. The players will board the 9:10 p. m. Southern Railway express and will arrive in Washington near noon on Friday, in time for a final limbering-up drill at Griffith Stadium. Plans have been made to give the Volunteers a big send-off.

Some 1,000 followers of the team, undergraduates and townsfolk, will witness the game in Washington on Saturday.

Returns to G. W. Back Field

CAPT. LEE CARLIN, shifty half back, who has played only 15 minutes of football this season, due to a leg injury, again will take his place in the Colonials' back field for the game with Tennessee Saturday.

Colgate Frosh Check Attack Of Varsity

Four Varsity Linemen Out; Dartmouth Team in Shake-Up.

(Associated Press.)

HAMILTON, N. Y., Nov. 1. Colgate's Red Raiders went through an extended scrimmage with the freshmen today in their semifinal drill before the Tulane game in New York. The Yearlings stopped nearly every varsity attack as the first-string line was weakened by the absence of Pasquale, Brooke, Leroy and O'Hara. All are expected to play Saturday. Most of the drill was devoted to the running attack.

Drill At Princeton.

Princeton, N. J., Nov. 1.—The Princeton varsity had a lot of trouble stopping the Brown attack put on by the freshmen. The yearlings gained 50 yards in 10 plays at the start, but the regulars soon settled down and held them to short gains. John Bliss and Bob Kopf continued to hold the guard births with Paul Pauk at right half in place of Homer Spofford.

Long Columbia Practice.

New York, Nov. 1.—Columbia had one of its longest and hardest drills of the season building up its defense against Cornell plays. The regulars had little difficulty holding the Dummy "Cornell" team, which had a flock of assistant coaches in its lineup. Passing was stressed both on the offense and defense with Cliff Montgomery doing excellent work.

Work on Fundamentals.

Ithaca, N. Y., Nov. 1.—The Cornell squad went back to fundamentals, working on blocking, tackling and ball handling after a short defensive dummy scrimmage. The improvement in the work of the reserves this week has brought an air of optimism to the big Red camp.

Army on Defense.

West Point, N. Y., Nov. 1.—Holding its first scrimmage since the Yale game, the Army squad was put through a long defensive session against Harvard plays. The main part of the practice took part on the B field, where the second stringers, who probably will play most of the game against Coe, developed its attack against a second B squad.

Shake-up at Dartmouth.

Hanover, N. H., Nov. 1—Jackson Cannell shook up the Dartmouth varsity, sending Dick Carpenter to left end instead of Bill Embry, and Ray Hulsart to right guard for Irving Silverman. Forward passing was stressed in the workout.

Illinois Coach May Use New Tackles

Antilla, Galbreath Likely to Start Saturday Against Michigan.

CHAMPAIGN, Nov. 1 (AP).—Coach Bob Zuppke, digging deep into his bag of tricks, may start a pair of sophomore tackles, Arvo Antilla and Charles Galbreath, against Michigan Saturday. They appeared on the varsity line-up today. Antilla weighs 190 pounds and played his first football at Whiting, Ind.; Galbreath, a full back in his prep days at Tuscola, Ill., weighs but 170, has won Zuppke's admiration with his aggressiveness and courage.

Michigan Stresses Defense.

Ann Arbor, Mich., Nov. 1 (AP).—The Michigan football team, having had little difficulty in scoring touchdowns this fall, is devoting 90 per cent of its practice this week to defense. The ceoaches today had two dummy scrimmages under way. Rain made it impossible to practice a pass defense on the field, so the first string players were moved inside for a session. Later they returned to the muddy field for a look at a frosh eleven using Zuppke plays out of doors.

Final Touches for Irish.

South Bend, Ind., Nov. 1 (AP).—Taking advantage of a church holiday, Coach Hunk Anderson called his Notre Dame squad out at 2 p. m. today and sent the players through a hard, long scrimmage as a final drill for the Navy game. Fundamentals and line play were the chief topics of instruction.

A squad of 36 players will depart tomorrow afternoon for Baltimore. A stopover will be made at Washington Friday for a workout at the Congressional Country Club.

Chicago Battles Frosh.

Chicago, Nov. 1 (AP).—Chicago's varsity donned Wisconsin colors today and engaged in a long scrimmage against the freshmen, but the yearlings, aided by Assistant Coaches Bill Cassels and Pompeo Tiogo, outplayed them in first downs. Cassels and Tiogo, last year's stars, played in the line. Because of the exceptionally warm day, Coach Clark Shaughnessy held the players until darkness for discussion of tackling and blocking.

Shifts at Iowa U.

Iowa City, Nov. 1 (AP).—Coach Ossie Solem continued to make replacements in the University of Iowa first team today, although the Hawkeyes consistently stopped Iowa State plays in a long defensive workout.

Eugene Liggett, big sophomore, shared the center position with Capt. Tom Moore during the drill, while Wilmon Hass and John Gallagher received most of the work at the guards in place of Secl and Schammel, regulars.

Purple Coach Cheerful.

Evanston, Ill., Nov. 1 (AP).—Coach Dick Hanley, who hasn't smiled since the Ohio State game, became more cheerful today as Chuck Duvall and Jakie Sullivan ripped up the Freshmen in a long, lively scrimmage at Northwestern. Duvall, especially, looked good at full back, ripping through center for long runs and two touchdowns. The team, realizing its job in meeting Minnesota, showed up well offensively and defensively. Harry Leeper may fill the left half back position, one of Hanley's riddles.

AL SZEMANSKI, nee Simmons, complains about the distance of the center field bleachers in the White Sox Park and, pronto! Owner Comiskey moves home plate 14 feet nearer the fence in an effort to remodel Simmons' pop flies into home runs. It is the second case in baseball history where a park is built or rebuilt to suit the individual talents of a ball player.

Ever since Col. Jake Ruppert constructed the edifice known as Yankee Stadium from the profits of Babe Ruth's home runs it has been known as The House That Ruth Built, which is a slight distortion of the facts. Yankee Stadium is the House Built for Ruth.

Those near-by right field bleachers in Yankee Stadium were built with an eye to Babe Ruth's presence on the Yankee Club in an effort to assure the New York public of a full quota of Ruthian home runs. Not that the Bambino needs a convenient fence, for the Babe is a legitimate home run hitter, but with the bleachers encroaching on the playing field to the extent that it seems that they reach out and pluck ordinary pop flies out of the second baseman's hands, it means so many more homers for the Babe.

Comiskey's theory could be carried to effective lengths in other forms of sports. For instance, a fight manager with a punch-drunk pug with heels well-rounded from leading with his chin, could order the ring built with a concave surface to enable his man to keep his balance. For Fainting Phil Scott, they could run guide wires from his shoulders to the ring posts.

A football coach with a weak offensive team could shorten the first down lines from 10 to 8 yards to suit his convenience. They could put the sprinter Winooka in a mile handicap and set the finish line at the head of the stretch. Bill Tilden could call his match with Ellsworth Vines at the end of the second set before he began to tire.

Jock Hutchison, the master of the mashie niblick, could petition the U. S. G. A. to stage the national opening on a miniature course. Dave Harris might get an injunction restraining all southpaw pitchers from pitching left-handed. Somebody might get an idea about shortening this column.

Boxing in the high schools of the District was voted down last winter by the Board of Education because, as one member put it, "there was no sentiment in favor of boxing in the District." Well, that calls for a long drawn out. "Oh, yeah!"

Twenty-five hundred fans at Portner's Arena last night prove somebody's wrong. There may be no sentiment for boxing in the District, but those 2,500, at least, are willing to drive 10 miles and pay to get in the arena.

If the estimable members of the Board of Education could take a night off some evening and observe the array of civic leaders, senators, representatives and other folk of the upper strata present at the ringsides of the local professional fights, they may not be so hasty with their opposition votes.

Winooka won a large slice of vindication for himself at Pimlico yesterday when he came from behind to beat some of the choicest of America's sprinters in the 6-furlong Baltimore Handicap with the added burden of Jockey Britt's ride.

Carrying top weight of 120 pounds, at least 20 pounds of which were dead weight in the form of lead in the saddle bags, the Australian champion beat such as Springsteel, Gold Step and Character, which had led him across the finish line at Laurel.

Winooka showed his merit by going much the farthest of the field, circling the leaders at the stretch turn and moving to the front gamely to be clocked in 1:11 1-5, only two seconds off the track record held by Con Amore and Mainmast. Winooka's continued improvement indicated that he merely needed racing in his two Laurel failures.

Pirates Drop Dudley And Picinich, Ex-Nats

Pittsburgh, Nov. 1 (AP).—Pitcher E. Clise dudley, and catcher Val Picinich, both former Washington American Leagurers, today were released unconditionally by the Pittsburgh Pirates.

Picinich was signed as a free agent during the last season. He formerly played with Brooklyn and Jersey City.

Dudley, who pitched for the Dodgers and Phillies, was released last summer by the Chattanooga Club of the Southern Association and asked for a tryout with Pittsburgh.

Maryland Coaches Stress Tackling, Blocking in Practice for Virginia Game

Scout Fears Cavalier Backs

Return of Five Regulars Expected to Boost Terps' Chances.

Band to Accompany Men to Charlottesville for Tilt Saturday.

ACCORDING to Roy Mackert, Maryland coach, who scouted the Virginia team last Saturday, Bill Shepherd, the swash-buckling dynamo in the Western Maryland back field, is nothing compared to what is in store for the Terrapins when they stack up against the University of Virginia, at Charlottesville Saturday.

Instead of a one-man back field, the Cavaliers will present a quartet of ball players, each of whom is a star in various departments of play. At quarter, Fred Dawson, Virginia coach, has Harry Martin, sensational sophomore flash; Gene Munger, triple-threat star who handles the kicking-passing assignment, and carrying the ball with equal ability; Spencer Burger, the bone-crushing plunger, who gave Navy a merry afternoon a fortnight ago, and Tommy Johnson, 200-pound greased behemoth, who was a terror against Columbia.

Begin Drills for Game.

Thus the Old Liners went to work yesterday afternoon with a view to improving their tackling and blocking, two items that were sadly neglected in the game with the Green Terrors last week.

Maryland's board of strategy is satisfied that the five regulars they removed from the line-up before the Western Maryland game, but who have since been reinstated, will give the team an added punch this week. Over-confidence and a tendency to take their work too lightly, faults responsible for their demotion, apparently have been corrected, and the team worked with machinelike precision yesterday. Bradley and Simpson, guards; Webb, center; Nelson, quarter back, and Yaeger, half back, are the men who have been restored to good standing. Nelson will be of particular value to the club because of his kicking.

It was announced yesterday that the Maryland 50-piece band would accompany the squad on the special train Saturday morning to Charlotttesville. The train leaves the Union Station at 8:15, with ample room to accommodate Virginia and Maryland rooters.

Warrant Out for Baer On Auto Speed Count

South San Francisco, Nov. 1 (AP). A bench warrant for the arrest of Max Baer, heavyweight boxer, for alleged failure to appear on a speeding charge was issued here today by Justice of the Peace Edward Farrell. Baer was tagged here August 26, accused of driving 60 miles an hour through a 45-mile-an-hour zone. Officers said he had been given several continuances.

Tulane Off to Meet Colgate in New York

New Orleans, La., Nov. 1 (U.P.).—Tulane's "Green Wave" rolled northward tonight to meet Colgate in an intersectional football game at New York City Saturday. Hundreds of fans braved a chilling mist to see the 32-man force on its way aboard a special train.

It was the same aggressive wave, despite two defeats this season that were due chiefly to fumbling at critical times.

Tulane will take to New York a "system" employing some phases of the Minnesota shift, a heritage from its former coaches, Clark Shaughnessy and Bernie Bierman, and some of Howard Jones' plays.

Offensively, Tulane has shown power in every game. It has scored in 49 of its last 52 games. It has a heavy back field, with plenty of drive and a sizable line. Its offensive plays have been consistently better than its defensive game.

Landon 118-Pounders Beaten at Baltimore

Baltimore, Md., Nov. 1 (Spl.).—McDonogh School's 118-pound class football team kept its record of no defeats in eight years intact today when an eleven from Landon Prep, of Washington, was blanked, 13-to-0, at Pikesville.

The cadets experienced little difficulty in registering touchdowns in the first and third quarters of Ulysses Peoples and Henry Barnard. Smith added the point following the second score.

Landon's back-field aces, Randall, at half, and Capt. Dunham, at full back, played a stellar game defensively, as did Bennett, center.

McDonogh.	Position.	Landon.
Bryant	L. E.	Cunningham
Richards	L. T.	Clarcke
Moore	L. G.	Buck
Whiteford	Center	Bennett
Koppiach	R. G.	Wich

Strange as It Seems —By John Hix

For further proof address the author, inclosing a stamped envelope for reply. Reg. U. S. Pat. Off.

In the puzzling epitaph illustrated above, the puzzling nature is obviously due to an error of construction rather than of meaning, but this is not always the case. Quite often in olden times the epitaph was written distinctly as a puzzle. One of this nature was found on the grave of John Giles, of Lavenham, England. It reads:

What John Giles has been,
Is what he is.
What he has not been,
Is what he is.

To be what he is,
Is not to be.
He will not have to be,
What he is not.

The answer is, first a bachelor; second, a corpse; third, dust; fourth, alive. Another, which explains itself, was inscribed on the grave of William More, Stepney churchyard, England:

Here lies one MORE, and no MORE than he;
ONE MORE, and NO MORE How can that be?
Why ONE MORE and NO MORE, may lie here alone;
But here lies ONE MORE, and that's MORE than one.

Another trick epitaph, this one reading the same backward as forward, is in Cunwallow churchyard, Cornwall:

Shall we all die?
We shall die all.
All die shall we,
Die all we shall.

Tomorrow—Strange giants.

G. U. Team Hit By Injuries In Line

3 Guards on Hospital List With Boston College Game at Hand.

GEORGETOWN'S hopes of stopping Boston College this week-end at Boston were rapidly vanishing last night as the squad prepared to break camp. Three guards, all of whom figured importantly into Coach Jack Hagerty's plans, were sent to the infirmary suffering from injuries that possibly will keep them out of the game.

Gildo Russo wrenched his knee, so badly that it is feared that he will be lost for the remainder of the season. Joe Mylnarski went through the paces with a stiff neck swathed in bandages, and Al Cohen twisted an ankle. Georgetown will have only one guard, Walter Walacave, able to start the game.

Bill Downer was moved over from tackle to guard to fill the vacancy. Frank Williamson, who has been cavorting at center, probably will be shifted to Downer's position, and Capt. Fred Callahan reinstated at his old position.

Costello May Kick.

The fight for the kicking job has simmered down to a duel between Joe Meglin and Hilary Costello, quarter back. Meglin did all of the booting against William and Mary but is experiencing difficulty in winning the assignment for Saturday. Costello got off a 70-yard punt yesterday, and averaged 45 yards throughout the afternoon.

The Boston College game is akin to "homecoming day" for many Georgetown boys. Leo Curley, a reserve tackle who will see much service, is the son of Boston's mayor, and there are a dozen others on the squad hailing from suburbs surrounding the staid old Puritan town.

A squad of 25 men will leave Washington tonight at 8 o'clock after a brief workout at the Hilltop, arriving in Boston tomorrow morning at 8 o'clock. The team will be quartered at the Westminister Hotel, where Georgetown's Alumni has established headquarters.

Anacostia Club Plans "Turkey Day" Golf

Plans for a Thanksgiving Day handicap turkey tournament were announced last night at the annual meeting of the Anacostia Park Golf Club. The affair is the initial step in an ambitious program formulated by the club for winter months. A discussion of business matters and election of officers took up the greater part of the evening.

Officers elected for the ensuing years were C. E. Cole, president; H. S. Burley, vice president; R. F. Fleming, secretary; Winifree Johnson, treasurer and assistant secretary; elected to serve on the board of governors with officers, Joe Jennings, Martin McCarthy, Charles Etzler, Leo Kroger and W. E. Roberts.

Episcopal Meets Fishburne Eleven

Alexandria, Va., Nov. 1 (Spl.).—Episcopal High will play its second game against a State team of major importance when it stacks up against the Fishburne Military Academy Saturday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock on Hoxton Field.

Billy Gooch, captain-half back, may see action; he has been out of the line-up for several weeks because of a wrenched knee.

The game will give Episcopal an opportunity to redeem itself for the defeat suffered at Staunton, Va., two weeks ago when it was nosed out by Staunton Military Academy, 21-20.

Blues Advance Game With Americans

AMERICAN U. and Gallaudet College yesterday decided to move their game up a day, playing Friday instead of Saturday, as originally scheduled. The teams will battle at Kendall Green starting at 2:15 p. m.

American has been weakened by the loss of Lee Esper, veteran guard, serving his fourth year on the team, who injured his ankle in practice and will not be available for duty. Hendrick, Hoover and Weyman, the latter a freshman, are battling for the berth. Coach Walter Young will name Esper's successor after today's practice.

Seeking First Victory.

Both Gallaudet and American, neither of which has won a game this season, are looking forward to scoring their first victory in this game. Gallaudet hasn't won a game in two years, but if American can stop the Blue it will have no mercy.

George Borsari, midget quarter back, and Bob Lowder, freshman full back, are expected to carry the brunt of American's attack again. The pair has done virtually all of the ball carrying in previous games.

Chicago Bears Win.

Detroit, Nov. 1 (AP).—Scoring in all periods but the fourth, the Chicago Bears, last year's professional grid champions and present leaders in the National Professional League, defeated the Detroit Indians at University of Detroit Stadium tonight by a score of 32 to 0.

Grid Injuries Fatal.

Knoxville, Tenn., Nov. 1 (AP). William DeVault, 17-year-old junior high school student, died last night from injuries received in a football game.

DeVault received a severe blow in the stomach Sunday while playing half back on a sandlot football team.

Dodgers at Orlando.

New York, Nov. 1 (U.P.).—Judge Stephen W. McKeever, president of the Brooklyn Dodgers, announced tonight that the club would train at Orlando, Fla., instead of Miami in 1934.

Central-Tech Loser Out of Title Race

9,000 Expected to Watch Battle of Two Strong Teams Tomorrow.

THE loser of tomorrow's inter-high series football game between Central High and McKinley Tech will be eliminated from the championship.

Should Tech win, it must still face Eastern to gain the top rung in the loop. Should Central win, it must still await the outcome of the Tech-Eastern battle, which will give her either undisputed possession of the title or a two-way tie with Eastern. The Lincoln Park and Mount Pleasant elevens battled to a scoreless tie in the round robin inaugural.

Regardless of comparative scores to date, and that goes for Central's 95-to-0 win over Roosevelt, the game is a toss-up.

Stop Kocsis Is Cry.

"Stop Kocsis" has been the war cry of the Maroon and Gray throughout the McKinley practice sessions all week, while "Trounce Tech" has been the watchword of the Central eleven.

Both teams are in excellent physical condition and will muster their full strength tomorrow. Naturally, both Mentors Hardell, of Tech, and Coggins, of Central, have the pessimistic viewpoint toward the game, but both realize they have good clubs and the breaks will likely decide the outcome.

Jack Collins, president of the Interhigh Athletic Association, stated yesterday a crowd of approximately 9,000 is expected to be on hand to witness the fray.

Irish Offer Is Denied By St. Mary's Coach

Niagara Falls, N. Y., Nov. 1 (AP). Edward (Slip) Madigan, St. Mary's College football coach, denied here today that he had received any definite offer to become football coach at Notre Dame University.

"That's just a rumor," Madigan said.

Madigan said that he has a long-term contract with St Mary's and is satisfied with his connections there. He intimated he was not anxious to make a change.

The St. Mary's team stopped over two hours today to see the scenery while en route to New York where the team meets Fordham Saturday.

Argentine Golf Pros To Play in U. S. Open

Santiago, Chile, Nov. 1 (AP).—Jose Jurado, Argentine golf professional, today said he would head a six or seven man invasion of the United States and British open golf championships next year. The delegation will include himself, Churio, Perez and Freccero.

Jurado had only moderate success playing in the international tournament here last week, but he found his luck running high at the Casino, having three straight wins on No. 20 at roulette to win a total of 8,000 pesos (approximately $700.)

Shikat, Steele Top Mat List Tonight

"Melting Pot" Program Is Offered by Turner at Auditorium.

IT takes all kinds of people to make a world, they say, and this also appears to be true with respect to the molding of a rassle card; at least, that's the way it looks when one glances at the list of grimacers due to toil tonight in the rassle-ring at the Auditorium.

Looking up the pedigrees of the combatants due to try to outrough, outgrimace and possibly outrassle their foes tonight, we find Germany represented by three—Herr Richard Shikat, Pete Sauer (Ray Steele, to you), and Paul Boesch. George Zaharias will battle for the honor and glory of Greece, Vanka Zelenski will sport the colors of dear old Siberia and Dick Raines and Lou Plummer will fly the Irish flag. America's interests will be looked after, by two of the "originals"—Little Beaver and Son Jennings—and by Floyd Marshall.

Good Card Promised.

And Promoter Joe Turner has so mixed the ingredients of this melting pot as to give the addicts, who pay their way in, what promises to be one of the best cards of the season.

Steele and Shikat tangle in the feature. To fans who saw this pair in action here last winter, when Shikat won, little more need be said. Shikat is a former titleholder, while Steele long has been rated a close second to Champion Jimmy Londos. Both are rough and tough, but scientific along with it.

Cave-Man Tactics.

For those who like their rassle meat more or less raw, the semi-final between Zaharias and Raines should more than satisfy them. Both border on the cave-man style as regards roughness, specializing on fancy knee flinging, but, in direct contradiction, both are so tender-hearted that they almost weep when called down by the referee for unethical tactics. This combination seems to strike the fancy of the gallery, which is "raking out" one or the other one minute for crude work and is laughing at them the next when they almost break into tears at the harsh words of the referee.

Three likely looking preliminaries round out the card. Boesch, popular here, takes on Little Beaver, who is green but strong and willing. Zelesniak, dubbed Tarzan by the fans, will have his hands full against Plummer, former Notre Dame grid star, while two other rough boys mingle in the other bout pitting Jennings against Marshall.

Hitting the Headpin . . .

LOW games marked the bowling in the Bureau of Customs Ladies League last night at the Arcadia alleys, Moffatt (Strikers) and Garrett (Battle Axes) tying for high individual game honors with a low score of 86. Cowan (Strikers) took high individual set with 242. The Skippys and Strikers, each with a 379, carried away team game honors, while the Skippys, with 1,097 pins, had the high team set.

Long's high game of 136 and set of 355, helped to keep the Little Potatoes in the running in the Dynamite League on the Arcadia drives last night. The Sleuths annexed team honors with a 547 game and set of 1,534.

Robb and Reilly, bowling with the Optimists, led the list of individual feats in the Civics Club League at Arcadia. Robb captured high game with 128 and Reilly's set of 344 pins was not exceeded. The Optimists also stole the show by taking high team game with 552 pins and high team set with 1,575.

Washington Loan & Trust Team No. 2, with a 552 game and 1,642 set, led the team scoring in the Bankers League on the Arcadia alleys. Biuen (W. B. Hibbs) pounded out a high individual game of 140 while Osborn (Washington Loan & Trust) rolled 378 for high individual set honors.

The Convention Hall Team, composed of Whip Litchfield (Capt.), Eddie Espie, Joe Pricci, Joe Freshi and Charlie Walson, journeyed to Norfolk for a special match with the Peninsular Bus Co. Team, Saturday night. Team doubles and singles matches also feature the event.

Mike Vitali (Walker Electric) rolled a 138 game and Ed Hayes (Pepco Maintenance) carried away individual honors in the Electrical League at Convention Hall, the former taking high game with 138 and the latter annexing high-set honors with 373. Walker Electric with a 575 team game and Western Electric with a team set of 1,634, led the league for team honors.

The Georgetown Recreation team left the Convention Hall team smoldering in the chair in the Ladies District at the Convention Hall alleys, winning all three games. The Georgetown team annexed all the honors, Malcolm taking high individual game and set with 120 and 324, respectively, while the team rolled a 522 game and 1,495 set.

Joe Palmer and Albert Jenkins, Construction Baking Co. stars, led the list of individaul feats in the Commercial League last night. Palmer's 141 game and Jenkin's set, withstood competition. Peoples Drug Stores maintained its second place position with a 563 game and 1,641 set.

The Rendezvous team maintained its position at the top of the Ladies' District League by taking all 3 games of its match with Petworth. Columbia jumped into second place by winning three from Myer Davis, while the Lucky Strike team was winning the odd game from Arcadia. Recreation stopped Bill Woods from changing positions by taking two out of three. Evelyn Ellis (Recreations) broke the previous high individual game record, toppling 143 pins, while "Sammy" Forteney (Rendezvous) had high individual set of the night with 343.

The Postilion Football Contest

The Post herewith presents the second of its weekly football contests in conjunction with The Postilion, this newspaper's radio program broadcast over Station WMAL by Harris B. Hull.

Again the contest is based on 40 of next Saturday's outstanding games, selected from the schedule by Shirley L. Povich, Sports Editor of The Post, as the feature games of the week. Each fan is invited to test his own powers as a prophet or football expert by predicting the result.

The coupon below is for your convenience, although it is not necessary to use The Post chart. In the left-hand column, headed "Your Selection," fans are invited to submit their scores. On Saturday night The Postilion announcer will broadcast the results in the same order. The "Result" column provides you with a convenient form on which to record the final scores as they are broadcast.

To the fan selecting the greatest number of winning teams, The Post will award free four choice seats to the George Washington-Washington and Jefferson game at Griffith Stadium one week from Friday night.

To the fan placing second in the contest three choice seats for the game will be given. To the fans placing third, fourth, fifth and sixth will go two choice seats each.

Each fan is limited to one entry. Priority of receipt will govern in case of ties.

Carolan Spurns Offer; Can Play Basket Ball

An eleventh hour decision not to play with a semipro football team last Sunday has saved Tommy Carolan, Georgetown athlete, for the basket ball team, which can make good use of his talents this winter. A star in three sports at the Hilltop last season, Carolan was elected captain of the football team, but declined the honor to accept a Government position and attend night school.

While it was impossible for him to play football, Carolan will be able to participate in basket ball. He was on the verge of playing with St. Mary's Celtics last Sunday in the South Atlantic League, which would have barred him from competition in intercollegiate circles.

Pitt Is Warned Center Has More Than Prayer

Pittsburgh, Nov. 1 (AP).—Acting on the reports of Pittsburgh scouts that the Colonels of Center "have got more than prayers in their attack," the Panther coaches worked their squad late tonight and warned the men "they'll be tougher than Navy."

The Kentucky crew "has a line that looks like a Nebraska team," the scouts advised, and pointed out that "they'll outweigh the Pitt line and they're fast."

The coaches took great precautions tonight in building a special defense to halt the Colonels' offense which, they say, is built around Cecil Hamilton, wirey quarter back.

Dublin, Nov. 1 (U.P.).—The touring United States Women's Hockey Team today scored a 2-1 victory over Ireland.

Pegler Says:

Walker Must Aim Ahead of Rosenbloom if He Hopes to Hit Him.

By Westbrook Pegler.

NEW YORK, Nov. 1.—As a minority opinion on the art of Maxie Rosenbloom, who is fighting Mickey Walker in Madison Square Garden Friday, I will hold that this athlete is the greatest boxer now in practice and that his skill and waggish impudence in the ring will be remembered for years and years by some of the very customers who now refuse to appreciate it.

As it takes an artist to do good caricature on paper, so also in the ring it takes a fine boxer to clown it against the tough, substantial hitters of his weight and avoid serious consequences. The fact that he can not hit I not only concede, but insist upon, as it supports my contention on his behalf.

Ties Foes Into Knots.

His opponents know that he has no punch which they need stand in any fear of, and yet, as he moves around the scaffold, leering and mocking, he ties them into knots with his feathery flicks and feints and they are always saving that mighty punch from one instant to another, from one round to another, from fight to fight and from year to year. The time is never quite ripe to let the big one go at Maxis Rosenbloom.

I am sorry to have to qualify my piece for it is one of my pleasures to go way out on a limb, but I do have to say that I am writing of this Rosenbloom as I last saw him about a year ago. I have heard that since then he has been solved a couple of times by parties who gauged his speed and direction and threw punches into the future as an anti-aircraft gun shoots to intercept the target. That would be the way to do it in his case. There is no sense in starting a punch at Rosenbloom where he stands at the moment of firing. He will be elsewhere when the punch parries and churning his thumb around in your eye, but throw it.

Must Hit in Front of Maxie

If this is so, then Walker, by hitting in front of the runner, could manage to tag him out and thus win the light-heavyweight championship, a title which, though unimportant, would be his third.

Rosenbloom could put you in mind of a witty and unlogical debarer founding a solemn intelligence with the flashy paradox and the mere sound of words to prove such dizzy nonsense as people utter when they sit around at night and think they think. He often leads with his chin, which is a most ignorant way of doing and condemned by all the best minds of pugilism.

But he proves the superior intelligence of his ignorance by his very effrontery, which startles smart opponents momentarily out of joint. Before they can recover and react to such amazing conduct in a champion, he has delivered half a dozen slaps in the face, several thumbs in the eye and some rude personal remarks, has dropped his hands and turned his back and is walking away.

Both Indoor Trainers.

Socially and temperamentally Rosenbloom and Walker are much alike. Like the late Harry Greb, they believe that persons who indulge in outdoor sports expose themselves to sunburn, chilblains, colds and pneumonia and so have done most of their training for years indoors, under artificial lights and, preferably, to the music of the band.

These two and Greb and Chuck Wiggins, four of the most abandoned free-style fighters of modern times, are almost too many exceptions to prove the rule of right living in connection with athletic endeavor. I am inclined to think they disprove it, and there is something very interesting, too, in the attitude of the present pair toward money.

Walker, in his time, has collected a million dollars for himself and frivoled it all away. Rosenbloom has made possibly $100,000 in the last few years, and, like Mickey, is fighting for his current expenses in the current bout.

Broke as they are, they are no more broke than some of the frugal and right-living young men, who were their contemporaries many years ago, who denied themselves all fun and retired to live on their bonds, but nowadays are not only likewise busted but fat and long forgotten.

Winooka Wins Pimlico Sprint by Nose in Stirring Stretch Drive them over during the parade but there was a round of applause mingled with a dash of booing as Britt swung Winooka into action for a workout on the way to the post.

At the break, Character, Goldstep and Springsteel all showed outside of the starting machine before Winooka and, through glasses, it appeared that Britt pulled up a bit. Going up the backstretch, Character drew out a length on Springsteel and Gold Step with Britt and Winooka holding fourth position and swinging to the outside. There was no change in the order, although the leaders bunched somewhat at the last turn.

Character was tiring at the quarter pole and up came a team of three composed of Gold Step, Tambour and Winooka, with the last named on the outside.

The stage for a story book finish was set as Character dropped out. The three horses were so close that the boys legs might have touched. It was at this point that Britt began beating the base drum on Winooka's flank. Gold Step's head was in front at the edge of the jockey board, but Winooka slid up at the wire, home in front at last.

The time was announced as 1:11 1-5 over a track that had previously yielded to a track record.

The victory was enthusiastically accepted by the crowd. Many stopped tearing up tickets on other horses in the race to join in the applause for the big horse and the homesick-appearing Britt.

It was only fitting that the first horse to win under the totalisator of betting should be a favorite. Salisbury, stamped into favoritism, took the opener but he was not a cinch. In fact, Salisbury got home only by a nose margin over Grand Acre, the property of the Washingtonian, George Goodacre. Cantoria was third. The favorite paid $4.20.

Pompestian Lucky Winner.

Pompestian, another of those promising Pompey colts, scored a lucky win in the second race to beat Be Shy by a neck after this pair had battled from the flag fall. Rock X, a 60-1 shot, was third. Rustic Rest, with Workman up, appeared the winner as the field swung for the stretch, but the son of Rustic went wide and finished near the right rail. Pompestian rewarded with a $14.60 mutuel.

Deduce, Mrs. H. L. Ughetta's gelding which ran in a $1,500 race at Laurel, made it four straight victories and set a new track record for 1 1-16 miles in the third race. Once a highly regarded horse in the Rancocas Stable, Deduce moved up among the $3,500 claimers to triumph today. Balaski had the mount and followed the stiff pace set by Sea Fox to draw away at the finish. Snap Back, the odds-on favorite, was fractious at the post and was sent away from outside the gates, never to figure in the important running. Deduce paid $13.60.

Waterway and Earl Porter teamed to run away with the fourth race with Fairly Wild always second and Bright Beauty third at the time of placing. Fairly Wild made repeated efforts to top the B. B. Stable representative, but it wasn't in the books. Waterway was "toted" plenty and closed the favorite at almost 3 to 1.

Dear Al: Pimlico Race Track, Nov. 1.

Well, Winooka came ploughing home at last. And I don't believe we have seen his best race. The Australian star can run six furlongs around 1:10 3-5 over the Pimlico track, I do believe. Britt lost at least six lengths in taking Winooka to the outside at the stretch turn yesterday. Had he cut the rail the time might have been startling. However, if Britt had cut the rail Winooka might not have won. On the outside, Britt, a sweeping whipper, had a chance to punish his mount. In previous races he has always had a horse close on his right side, which fact interfered with his bat. It is understood that efforts have been made to buy Winooka, but that the big horse is not for sale and will be shipped back to Australia after his handlers have convinced all concerned that he is a real champion.

BILL.

First race—I have waited patiently to pass Barkentine along to you, but recent sizzzling workouts probably will cut the mutuel. However, this is a fit juvenile, ready to run a good race and is well worth a "tote." Peedeeque picks up weight here. Should have beaten Bataille the last time and will do it today, it is my belief.

Second race—Stone Martin earns his keep beating such as these. A keen fellow now, and will have much to say about the distribution of this purse. Pretty Wise and Renaissance for the other awards.

Third race—Red Bridge was running a powerful race when the rider tumbled. If the boy stays on, I'm looking for a win. The consistent Bagatelle for the place and Silverskin to show.

Fourth race—Curacao was scratched today with this race in mind. Has closed fast recent sprints and impresses me as the one to spoil the record of Chase Me. Of course, that recent effort of Tred Avon can't be overlooked. She was withdrawn today while a stablemate won.

Fifth race—Black Hand seems to be a good one. Has shown keen speed and may take these in camp. Bright Haven, a favorite with me, beat promising ones and should take the place ahead of The Triumvir.

Sixth race—De Valera is at tops now and gets away quickly. Meets his kind in this. Star Porter's last was a beaut. Fancy Flight goes for a new owner in better company. Third for this one.

Seventh race—Tela has been racing well. The price may be better tomorrow, as well as the running. Carbon and Parity seem to fit in the picture.

Eighth race—Charlie K., Burnside and Vote are my choices in the finale. It will be run after dark, anyway.

Chart of Pimlico Races

Wednesday, November 1, 1933.

WEATHER, CLEAR; TRACK, FAST.

FIRST RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $800. For 3-year-olds and upward (foaled in Maryland). Start good from gate. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 1:30. Off at 1:33½. Winner, Mrs. M. Bond's ch. or ro. g. (5), by Sir Greystee—Kitty Mount. Trained by J. B. Bond. Value to winner, $825; second, $100; third, $50; fourth, $25. Time, 0:23 3-5, 0:48 3-5, 1:13 3-5, 1:39 3-5, 1:46 3-5.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—SALISBURY, $4.20, $2.60, $2.40; GRAND ACRE, $4.60, $2.60; CANTORIA, $5.80.

SALISBURY, taken under slight restraint after reaching the back stretch, gained stoutly when put to a drive and, finishing in determined fashion, was up in the last few strides. GRAND ACRE went into an easy lead when reaching the back stretch, shook off JAFFA and CANTORIA and then held on with excellent courage. CANTORIA raced prominently and outfinished JAFFA in the last few strides. Latter, close up and strongly handled, continued gamely approaching the finish. GLEN BURNIE could not better his position during the final stages. BOKIE B. was unable to reach a forward position. SISKO showed a dull effort.

SECOND RACE—Six furlongs. The Questionnaire. Purse, $800. For 2-year-old maidens. Start good from gate. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 2:06. Off at 2:12 Winner, C. H. Thuriot's b. c. (2), by Pompey—Oonagh. Trained by A. J. Goldsborough. Value to winner, $625; second, $100; third, $50; fourth, $25. Time, 0:23 2-5, 0:47 3-5, 1:13.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—POMPESTIAN, $14.60, $6.60, 4.80; BE SHY, $6.60, $5.60; ROCK X, 25.80.

POMPESTIAN, kept close to the early leaders, gained fast in the last quarter mile and, in a strong finish, was up in the final few strides. BE SHY raced STIRRED UP to the quarter pole, disputed the stretch drive and, finishing in good style, was second. ROCK X, on the outside, lost considerable ground at the turn to drop back, came again and was going resolutely at the end. RUSTIC REST, well up early, bolted out at the stretch turn to finish wide. KNIGHT OF OLD, in rather tight quarters on the inside from the start, came gamely under punishment. Black FALCON was in close quarters midway of the last 16th back stretch. DIAN showed a good effort. STIRRED UP stopped in the final drive.

THIRD RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $800; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start fair from gate. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 2:44. Off at 2:52. Winner, Mrs. H. L. Ughetta's b. g. (4), by Lucullite—Decree. Trained by J. Moran. Value to winner, $625; second, $100; third, $50; fourth, $25. Time, 0:23 2-5, 0:47 3-5, 1:12, 1:37 3-5, 1:44 2-5.

LIVE ONE	119	6	3	5½	4nk	4h	7	7	Mattioli	30.40

Two-dollar mutuels paid—DEDUCE, $13.60, $5.80, $3.60; SEA FOX, $5.40, $4.00; SURETY, $4.40.

DEDUCE, under steadying restraint while in near attendance of SEA FOX, responded readily when put to a drive displaced the pacemaker under punishment and was gradually moving clear at the finish. SEA FOX, stalked in front and saved ground, held on willingly. SURETY closed gamely during the final half mile. FLAMING MAMIE finished with a rush on the outside. SNAP BACK, fractious and breaking from the extreme outside, failed to respond when put to severe drive. DON PEDRO broke slowly and was outrun. LIVE ONE tired.

FOURTH RACE—One and one-eighth miles. The Forest Park (first division). Purse, $800; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from gate. Won handily; place, same. Went to post at 3:15. Off at 3:15½. Winner, B. B. Stable's ch. f. (5), by Wayrood—Queen of the Water. Trained by H. Jacobs. Value to winner, $625; second, $100; third, $50; fourth, $25. Time, 0:24, 0:48 3-5, 1:13 3-5, 1:40, 1:53 1-5.

AIRWAY	115	5	5	5h	6½	8	8	8	Leishman	56.70

Two-dollar mutuels paid—WATERWAY, $7.60, $5.00, $3.20; FAIRLY WILD, $4.60, $3.40; BRIGHT BEAUTY, $4.00.

WATERWAY, hurried to the front at once met repeated early efforts from FAIRLY WILD and held the latter safe when the real test came. FAIRLY WILD, raced on the outside, was under a drive at the stretch turn and, responding, was reserved in the early racing, moved up on the inside with a rush at the final turn, but could not improve her position thereafter. FLAMBOROUGH, kept closer up than usual, was held safe in the final drive. OLAMAY went to the outside midway of the back stretch, lost considerable ground at the turn and could not threaten thereafter. POLITEN tired. AIRWAY stopped.

FIFTH RACE—Six furlongs. The Bathmore Handicap. Purse $2,500, added. For all ages. Start good from gate. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 4:01. Off at 4:02½. Winner, W. A. McDonald's b. h. SAFE with a T.M.C.
BETTER CONDITIONED CAR

No haunting fear of mechanical defects . . . failing brakes . . . lonely-road-breakdowns to spoil motoring pleasure.

You enjoy a sense of security in a TMC Better Conditioned Car because it has been carefully inspected by expert mechanics and worn parts have been replaced.

A TMC Better Conditioned Car is a SAFE car. It is better than accident insurance—it prevents accidents.

Yet, a TMC Better Conditioned Car costs no more than the average run-of-the-mill used car. Drive one today; you can feel the difference!

I DON'T EITHER!
YOU DO SO!
HEY! LISSEN! YOU!
AN' IF I SUNG OFF KEY LIKE YOU DO —
AN' YOU STEPPED ON MY TOE WHEN WE DID OUR DANCE —

Walt Mason, Himself

Cheap Living.

My roll amounts to 20 or 27 bucks, and in this land of plenty I'm eating roasted ducks; I live on goods assorted that come from far away, on sharks-fin soup imported from marts of old Cathay; I purchase pickled herring and oysters and sardines, and gorgeously I'm faring on standard brands of beans. It takes but little money, but little store of dimes, to live on milk and honey in these abnormal times. Now all the merchant princes are holding bargain sales, and sell me prunes and quinces and predigested quails; they sell me things in cartons, and other things in cans, the price so low it heartens the worst of also rans. I view my little bundle with something like dismay, as to the mart I trundle to purchase eggs and hay; to purchase soup and crackers, dish clouts and napkin rings, and there I find my smackers will buy all kinds of things. How well I'm recollecting the golden days of yore, when we were all prospecting in mines that reeked of ore; and then it took $12 to buy a pair of shoes, as much to buy two collars, with shirt of gorgeous hues. And now we jog together to Smithson's cowhide store, and buy good shoes of leather that cost two bucks or four. The dollars of our daddies will travel far today, and buy more finnan haddies more horehound drops and bay.

Pact to Raise Milk Prices Goes to A. A. A.

Provides More Pay for Producer; Consumer Boost Forecast.

A milk marketing agreement for the District, embracing price increases for the producer, has been submitted to the Agricultural Adjustment Administration by the Maryland and Virginia Milk Producers Association.

Adoption of the code, distributors insist, will lead inevitably to an increase in the consumers' price and they are preparing to fight against the 3-cent boost. Both basic milk and surplus milk prices would be raised 3 cents under the agreement.

The proposed marketing pact was brought to the A. A. A. on Tuesday by John McGill, secretary of the producers association. In addition to the price increase, it provides that producers unaffiliated with the association must market their products through the Washington Dairy Council.

Opposition to the proposal already has developed from a number of sources. Insurgent members of the association are preparing to resist it, as are unaffiliated dairymen. The Independent Milk Producers Association has announced it will fight for substitution of a one-price plan for the three-price schedule. All distributors have expressed opposition because of the probable increase in consumers price.

Hearing in the Senate investigation into District milk prices are scheduled to be resumed tomorrow.

U. S. Increases Pension Rate

Civil War Veterans Get Former Payment Less 10 Per Cent.

Pensions of Civil War veterans have been restored to higher levels, the Veterans Administration announced yesterday.

The restorations apply to all cases except those of veterans living under administration facilities. At one time pensions were slashed to $15, and all pensions were cut 10 per cent under the economy act. Under a recent solicitor's ruling, the stipends for veterans not living in soldiers' homes or hospitals were raised from $15 to the full amount minus 10 per cent.

Where veterans live in administration homes or hospitals, $15 a month is paid each veteran. The difference between the $15 and the full pension minus 10 per cent is turned over to veterans' wives or other dependents.

Many Attend "Mum" Exhibit At Greenhouse

Agriculture Department Building Holds Show Experts Call Best.

Many Washingtonians forsook ideal Indian summer weather outside to throng the Department of Agriculture greenhouse, Fourteenth street and Constitution avenue, at the opening of the thirty-second annual chrysanthemum show yesterday. They wandered through an exhibition of floral beauty termed by horticulturists as the "best" the Government has yet sponsored.

Before the doors were opened to the public, wives of Cabinet members and others prominent in Washington society attended a private preview.

On display yesterday were 200 varieties of Japanese and 510 varieties of pompom and single chrysanthemums. Shown for the first time were a collection of Japanese chrysanthemum seedlings, eight new varieties of Japanese matured flowers, two new anemones and a collection of seedlings which originated in the Agriculture Department greenhouse.

Suspended from the walls were plants of the Japanese Cascade or Mountain species, while trailing branches of white, pink, yellow, red and bronze flowers swept the walks of the exhibition house. The show will continue through Wednesday.

Dressler Poem Contest Ends

Twelve o'Clock Tonight the Deadline for Cash Prizes.

When your chronometer marks the hour of midnight tonight it will officially halt the flow of birthday poems that Post readers have been invited to submit in this contest, which will handsomely reward those who pen the cleverest rhymes to Marie Dressler, whom the Nation felicitates on November ninth, her sixty-second birthday.

Yet there's ample time between now and tonight's deadline for you to stir your mental faculties and compose either a four or eight line verse that will adequately express your birthday greetings to the grand dame of the screen.

Many persons turn out their best efforts when time is limited. So, if you haven't already submitted one or more rhymes, now's the time for all good rhymsters, poets and writers of verse to "do write" by Miss Dressler.

Washington's best poetic birthday expression will not only win a local cash prize of $15, but also will be forwarded to Hollywood to compete in a national contest which offers a first price of $250 in cash! The Capital's second best birthday poem will take the $10 cash prize, and the 10 next best will each be rewarded with a pair of guest tickets to the Loew Theaters here.

This contest is fostered by The Washington Post and the Loew Theaters, the Fox, Palace and Columbia, who believe that in this poetry contest they are providing Washington admirers of this beloved actress an adequate chance to express their cordial feelings and contribute tangibly to the birthday observance which the entire country will celebrate.

It is possible that the Palace Theater will show, simultaneously with the natal festival, Miss Dressler's birthday picture, "Christopher Bean," in which she is co-starred with Lionel Barrymore. It is a worthy successor to the long line of hits that have endeared her to the American public.

While there's still time, send in your poem to the "Marie Dressler Poem Contest Editor, The Washington Post, Washington, D. C." But not later than midnight tonight.

National Sentinels to Meet.

The National Sentinels will meet at the Woman's National University City Club preceding a luncheon at 12:30 p. m. Saturday. Mrs. Henry W. Peabody, of Massachusetts and Florida, will be the speaker. Mrs. Jesse W. Nicholson will preside. Wellen Fisher and Mrs. F. H. Brinley are in charge of arrangements.

All in Fun

Dummy Hanging at Bridge Brings Police Alarm.

"The song is ended but the melody lingers on," or something—

Those were the words of Officer Ruby Downs, of the Seventh Precinct, when he found a life-size dummy dangling at the end of a rope under the old Aqueduct Bridge at the foot of Thirty-sixth street early yesterday.

An early riser discerned the dangling form through the early morning mist and ran breathlessly to the station house with the news.

"It's a good thing Halloween only comes once a year," said Downs.

Jury Indicts Two Policemen

Bauer, Schleichert Face Extortion Charges.

Indictments charging Policemen Harry G. Bauer and Randolph Schleichert, former members of the "raiding squad" attached to prohibition enforcement, with extortion were returned by the District Grand Jury yesterday, two days after they were arrested.

The indictment charges the two with accepting $50 in marked money to "go easy" on a liquor dealer they had arrested. The dealer made an engagement to be on the corner of Eighth and L streets northwest Monday morning. Police officials also were there, and after an unopened envelope had passed hands, the two were arrested.

Bauer and Schleichert were suspended from duty at the time of their arrest. United States Attorney Leo A. Rover indicated the accused would be given an early trial.

Pan-American Exhibit Will End Tomorrow

The exhibition on Mount Alban treasure at the Pan-American Union will close tomorrow. The building will be open until 6 p. m. on the last two days.

All Protestant Churches Join In Luther Rites

Diplomatic Corps to Take Part in Anniversary Observance.

Observing the 450th anniversary of the birth of Martin Luther, all Protestant churches of Washington will join 11 Lutheran churches in a celebration Friday evening, November 11, at Constitution Hall.

A procession of leaders of religious, educational and civic organizations, and members of the Diplomatic Corps, lead by His Excellency, Dr. Hans Luther, the German Ambassador, will participate. A choir of 300 voices will present hymns written in 1524 by Martin Luther.

Dr. Luther, a descendant of the great teacher, will speak on "Martin Luther's Influence on Christendom." Following his address, Martin Luther's great hymn, "Ein Feste Burg," written in 1529, will be sung by the massed choirs.

The choirs also will sing Bach's "Praise Him, Praise the Great Creator." The sermon, "When Half-Gods Go, the Gods Arrive," will be delivered by the Rev. Dr. Paul Scherer. The Washington Orchestral Society will present the offertory, "Sunday," by Ole Bull, with the closing of the services conducted by Dr. Snyder. Benediction will be pronounced by Dr. Nicholas. "God of Our Fathers, Whose Almighty Hand," will be played by the Washington Orchestral Society as the recessional.

Maryland Gets $66,000 Of $4,179,283 Fund

Allotments totaling $4,179,283 for 38 non-Federal projects were made by the Public Works Administration yesterday, providing 63,278 man-months of employment.

These include $34,000 to Maryland to aid in construction of a two-story basement dormitory building at the Rosewood Street Training School, Owings Hills, Md. An allotment of $32,000 also went to Maryland to aid in building a fireproof addition to the State tobacco warehouse at Baltimore.

Post's Cooking School Crowds Gaining Daily

Third Session Today at 2 p. m. Will Offer New Delights.

Before an audience that would far exceed the capacity of the average theater, Miss Ruth Chambers, nationally known cooking authority, yesterday gave the second of a series of free cooking lessons and demonstrations at the Washington Auditorium, under sponsorship of The Washington Post.

The huge size of the Auditorium, however, with its more than 6,000 seats, is ample assurance that hundreds of other women who will wish to see and hear these interesting lectures, may join the group at the third session, beginning at 2 p. m. today, and secure seats in most advantageous locations. As a further boon to its guests, The Washington Post has provided Miss Chambers with loud-speaking equipment that carries her voice to every portion of the great hall.

Today, Mrs. Harris T. Baldwin, chairman of the committee on home economics of the National League of Women Voters, will introduce Miss Chambers from the stage and explain the tremendous importance of new cooking facts that recently have been revealed as the result of intensive research by the United States Department of Agriculture and the colleges of 32 States that are engaged in similar activity.

Mrs. Vylla Poe Wilson, of the Women's Department of The Washington Post, introduced Miss Chambers at yesterday's session and told of the eagerness of The Washington Post to keep pace with developments in the household arts, and how they are passed on to the women of Washington and nearby territories through the women's pages of The Post.

In addition to the wealth of information presented by Miss Chambers at each of the daily sessions of the free cooking school, a number of merchants and manufacturers have cooperated with The Post's educational program by providing representative merchandise which is distributed each day. As an example, a Frigidaire electric refrigerator yesterday was presented to Mrs. Lee J. Faris, 1410 M street northwest. More than 40 other gifts also were distributed.

Among other daily gifts are the appropriate ones of ten tickets to "Dinner at Eight," the motion picture masterpiece now being presented at the National Theater. Other "scholars" at The Post cooking school received a more literal "dinners at eight" through the distribution of the tempting viands prepared by Miss Chambers and her assistants.

Paul Goeser, an expert of the National Live Stock and Meat Board, was introduced at Monday's session to demonstrate how meat should be cut to secure greatest tenderness and flavor. Mr. Goeser is now in Washington to instruct retail dealers and hotel chefs in the creation of new and more appetizing meat cuts, and his exhibition won such hearty applause that The Post secured his services for yesterday and for the remaining sessions of The Post cooking school, during which he will conduct similar demonstrations.

It has been the purpose of The Washington Post to make this cooking school an event that will long be remembered by those who attend any or all of its classes. For that reason it made diligent investigation of many experts before selecting Miss Chambers as the most capable and informed instructor. The Post also wished to extend the same courtesy to women who may be employed during the day. It further arranged to hold the last meeting of the series in the evening. This final session will be held at 8 p. m. at the Washington Auditorium Friday night.

Today's session of The Post Free Cooking School will begin at 2 p. m., with the Auditorium doors open at 12:30.

Crawford Case Hearing Is Set For Monday

Motion to Null Indictment Will Be Argued at Leesburg.

Arguments on motion to quash the indictment against George M. Crawford, colored, accused of the murder of Mrs. Agnes Boeing Ilsley and her maid, Mrs. Mina Buckner, will be heard Monday in the Loudoun County Circuit Court at Leesburg. Crawford, in jail at Alexandria, will not be taken to Leesburg for the hearing.

Arrest of Bertie DeNeal, said to be Crawford's sweetheart, was ordered yesterday by Commonwealth's Attorney John Galleher. She was held in Loudoun Jail as a material witness. Bond was fixed at $2,500.

Frank W. Wray, Commonwealth's attorney of Clarke County, has been employed to assist Galleher in the prosecution.

Arguments on the motion to quash will be heard by Judge James L. McLemore, of Suffolk County, designated by Gov. Pollard. The motion to quash is based on the fact that there were no colored citizens on the grand jury that indicted Crawford. Judge J. R. H. Alexander, of Loudoun, will preside at the trial.

Dean Charles H. Houston, of Howard University, will represent the defense.

Women's Aeronautical Unit Will Elect Today

bursts a bubble concerning the man who says he can't wear

Brown

SOCIETY BRAND STAUNCHLEY WORSTED SUITS IN BROWN

Sturdyman Worsteds, $45—Landshires, $55

Along with the number thirteen and walking under a ladder superstition, generations of men have soaked themselves in the thought that there are just two colors for them—blue and grey. As for brown—it's an outcast—let George wear it. This year Society Brand bursts this bubble and definitely proves that it's high time to junk the two-color idea. Brown is clearly a man's color. It's a colorful color, it's got life, it's a true, clean color. And there's hardly a reason on earth why you can't wear it. Society Brand browns are exclusive and decidedly becoming. Rich, but not gaudy browns. Plain browns, dark and mediums are best. Society Brand patterned browns—tartan checks, pin dots, subtle overplaids and striped browns. If you're timid about being broken away from the blue-grey habit, get a good grip on yourself, and step in here today. Get into a Society Brand brown—then try to switch to something else!
